FARM AND FIRESIDE.

Timely Hints Useful to the Farmer and His Household.

The stalk of corn that grows the tallest and appears the most conspicuous, nearly always bears a blasted ear.

Oats are too light to be made a main part of the feed of hens. The fowls will not eat them at the same time with other grain. Young chicks grow on a diet of oat meal sifted so as to remove most of the hulls, and then mixed till nearly solid and dry with sour curd cheese.

In a week or two after farrowing, the sow will develop an enormous appetite, and she should have all she can eat, but not food of a fattening character. Skin milk and fine wheat middlings make the best combination. This furnishes material for making a large amount of milk; though it may not be the richest it will keep the pig thrifty. If the pigs do not get enough it is better to feed sparingly, than to give richer food to those which will be likely to fatten her.

On the right kind of diet a young sow will make a considerable growth of frame while she is rearing her pigs. If she does not it is evidence that she is not given enough food or of the right quality.

A New Zealand farmer tried sowing brimstone on a patch of Canada thistles, and he reports that it completely destroyed them. He sowed it thickly enough to destroy all vegetable life for two years, but after that the soil was as productive as ever and he had rid the land of thistles. There are other much less expensive ways to destroy Canada thistles than this. Letting them get into blossom and then plowing them under deeply, so as to cover the growth of tops, with little breaking of the soil, will destroy them. Any sap from roots that are not attached to the stalks, cultivated during the summer so that none are allowed above the surface, will make a finish of them.

In times of great scarcity of potatoes it is possible to get good crops by removing the outside skin, cutting pretty deeply where the growing germs are set, and planting these, while using the middle of the potato as food. But it needs rich soil and well-prepared seed bed to do this.

The substance of the potato in connection with the germ furnishes the first sustenance for the young plant until its roots get hold of the soil. It is difficult to get the right kind of plant food for the potato set where it can be used so easily as in the setting itself. Economy of seed should only give rise to the plan to plant too many eyes or buds in a hill. The larger the piece of potato attached to each of these the better it will grow.

QUEENS COUNTY STEAL.

Mr. Ellis Imprisoned Discussed in Parliament.

The House of Commons, which has been exceedingly dull this session, was aroused last week by Hon. L. H. Davies bringing to its attention the imprisonment of Mr. Ellis of the Globe, and the events which led up to it. Mr. Davies reviewed the whole case, reciting the facts beginning with the Queens county steal away back in 1887. He will be remembered that in that election, Mr. King, the liberal candidate received a majority of sixty-one votes, but returning officer Dunn assented to the view put forward on declaration day that Mr. King had been irregularly nominated, because his agent had not paid in the deposit in the form prescribed by the law, and declared Mr. Baird duly elected by acclamation. A recent was elected before county Judge Steadman, but the conservatives applied for and obtained an order from Judge Steadman of the Supreme Court, prohibiting Judge Steadman from recounting the votes, and declaring who had been duly elected. These facts Mr. Davies said, sent a thrill of horror and disgust from one end of Canada to the other. In the heat of the excitement, the press reflected the public opinion, and the arbitrary conduct of the returning officer was roundly condemned. The St. John Globe, among others, commented upon what it called a "flagrant outrage" and popular rights, and a grossly immoral transaction, and referred to Judge Tuck's interference as a prostitution of judicial authority for party purposes.

Mr. Davies in an able speech, argued that the law of contempt was intended to protect a jury of his peers he would have been found guilty. I put it to the judgment of every fair-minded man in this country that the sentence passed on Mr. Ellis was simply outrageous in its severity—condemned to thirty days imprisonment, a fine of $200 and costs, which I am told are claimed to cover $3,000. This is an outrageous sentence in severity. My hon. friend beside me, (Mr. Davies), puts a question yesterday: "What was the cause which prompted the passing of a sentence of such unusual severity? The cause is not to seek. The reason was simply a desire to gag the press, and make it impossible for any man to review the conduct of the judges, even if they were found to be prevaricate, because there are very few men in this country who would be able to pay $3,000 of a fine and undergo all the cruel punishment to which Mr. Ellis was subjected. The reason, I repeat, was to gag the press, to crush the press, and to make a repetition of Mr. Ellis's action to be impossible. I am speaking by authority—I am speaking by the authority of Judge Palmer himself. I will quote his own words. Here is what he said: "I am not quoting from the sentence, but from the judgment rendered in 1887 or 1888. Judge Palmer said: "All I at present say is that sufficient is shown to make it our duty to bring him into court to answer for the act charged against him. When here it will be the duty of this court to give him an opportunity to fully defend himself, and if it turns out according to his own oath that he has not violated any of the principles of the law, then the sentence will be rescinded. Here is what he said: "I am not quoting from the sentence, but from the judgment rendered in 1887 or 1888.
