FREDERICTON, JULY 14, 1894.

THE VICE REGAL VISIT.

It is officially announced that Lord and Lady Aberdeen will arrive in Fredericton on the evening of August 15th, and that they will remain here until the morning of the 17th, so that all arrangements for their reception and entertainment may be made with those dates in view. The committe in charge of the Farmers' picnic, met the Government Thursday, and obtained permission to use Government House grounds for the gathering, and also the drawing rooms in the building for the presentation of the Farmers' and Dairymen's Association address to His Excellency. The grounds in the rear of the building will be seated for an audience of some thousands, and the speeches will be delivered from the balcony. The details of the affair, of course, have yet to be arranged, but there is every promise of an immense attendance at the picnic. The civic programme is also yet to be arranged, but no doubt it will include the presentation of an address, a torchlight procession, and display of fireworks by the firemen, and other features. It is understood the Government have offered Governor Fraser the use of the Assembly Chamber in the Parliament buildings for a formal reception in honor of the distinguished visitors, so that all who desire to personally meet them will have an opportunity either in the afternoon at the old Government House or at the Assembly Chamber. The Mayor proposes calling a meeting next week to arrange for the civic programme, and no doubt citizens of all classes will be present to assist in the proposed arrangements. The vice regal visit will doubtless draw thousands of people to Fredericton, and everybody should be ready to lend a helping hand in making the occasion a great success.

THE CAUSE SUFFERS.

The temperance men and prohibitionists of Canada are pretty well disgusted with Hon. Geo. E. Foster. It is not so many years ago that he was their acknowledged leader, and his voice was heard on platforms all over the country (at $10 per night) denouncing the liquor business and all who aided or abetted it. Prohibition, he said, would come, but in the meantime the Scott Act must be sustained. "License the liquor traffic? What! license a wrong?" his voice used to shout in the City Hall. But, like many other aspiring politicians, Mr. Foster was only employing the temperance and prohibition platform and its friends to get into office. His ambition satisfied in that respect, prohibition might look out for itself. Who ever hears now of Mr. Foster standing on a temperance platform and proclaiming his earlier views. Does he ever preach prohibition now? No, his voice is stilled by the greed for authority and gold. The philanthropist, the humanitarian has been lost in the politician. Not only is Mr. Foster entirely indifferent to the advancement of temperance sentiment, but he has openly countenanced and advocated a measure which will go a long way towards preventing actual legislation for the suppression of the liquor traffic. The French treaty, which has been carried through parliament, largely by Mr. Foster's advocacy, reduces the duties on French wines and encourages their introduction and use in Canada. Every straight prohibitionist in the country was earnestly opposed to this feature of the treaty, but that made no difference to Mr. Foster. Politics and political party, self, and personal profit first, temperance and prohibition afterwards. Mr. Foster, as a temperance man, has proved one of the greatest frauds of the age, and surely temperance men have been enough to assure themselves on that point. To have been consistent with his former professions, Mr. Foster should have been seen introducing a measure prohibiting the importation and sale of liquor; but what has he done—actually advocated and carried through a measure which drops the duties on wines to a figure that encourages and invites an extension of the liquor traffic in this country. Our prohibition friends should take a note of this fact, and when Mr. Foster and his government next appeal to the electors, show them that the temperance and prohibition sentiment in this country is not to be trifled with in that way.

As a result of the great railway strike in the United States, the infected districts are under martial law. The troops and the strikers have collided several times during the week, and many persons have been killed. Near Sacremento, Thursday, a train carrying a company of soldiers, was derailed by the strikers, and four persons were killed. Grand Master Sovereign, of the Knights of Labor, has called on his men to join the strikers, but they have not responded to any extent. It is believed the worst of the strike is over, and that the trouble will be settled by arbitration.

THE report that serious defects have been discovered in the superstructure of the Woodstock bridge, due to carelessness of the engineers plans, is absolutely and unqualifiedly denied at the Public Works Department. The Woodstock Dispatch says that very good progress is being made in the bridge construction just now. Placing the iron was begun on Monday, and the hands are now getting along with the first span satisfactorily. Enough of the structure is up to show that it will be a very sightly affair when completed.

Hon. John Glasier, whose life and death is sketched in our local columns, was a prominent figure in the commercial and political life of Sunbury for many years. He had many excellent traits of character; he was a generous man when he had the means at his command and he enjoyed the esteem of a wide circle of friends.

COL. Marsh this week imposed a fine of $5 each on a number of bicyclists who had been using the sidewalks contrary to city byelaws, and the fines were allowed to stand for future good behavior. The offenders should understand however, that the law must be obeyed in the future.

WHILE the fast line steamship subsidy, a most important matter to St. John, was being discussed in parliament this week, Mr. McLeod, who represents that city, was absent from his post, and was here in Fredericton attending to his private business in the court.

THE prohibition commission cost the country $120,000, and the amount might as well have been thrown into to the sea so far as advancing prohibition is concerned. However it provided many pleasant holiday jaunts to a number of the government pets.

THREE-PART COMEDY

In which a Pretty Wife an Impressionable Young Man and an Indignant Husband Assume the Roles.

St. John's Latest Social Sensation.

"Big boy" Stevens, and the dashing Shatford, have dropped out of the realm of St. John sensational journalism, but the newspaper men have struck another rich lead and promise developments of a most interesting and readable character. This time there is no minister or bank clerk in the case, but it loses nothing in importance, because one of the principal figures is a good-looking, popular young man with a large and respectable family connexion, and a good situation at his back. The story is largely told, as usual, in an "affidavit" that most convenient, and eminently dignified mode of laying charges before the court and public.

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ.

The alleged "indiscreet" young man is J. Fraser Gregory, who claims Fredericton as his birthplace, but has for some years been financial man with W. H. Murray, the well known St. John lumberman; the pretty woman who is said to have infatuated the ex-Celestial is Mrs. Herbert G. Beeman, a resident of Boston, but formerly a Belleisle maiden; and the man who wants blood or money is the latter's husband, now of Boston, also late of Belleisle, in the Finance Minister's constituency.

THE CURTAIN RISES.

Mr. Beeman arrived in St. John from Boston last week with gore in his eye, determined to avenge the alleged destruction of his home and domestic happiness, and it would appear that his original idea was to meet and conquer, if possible, the young man whom he says has stolen his wife's affections; pecuniary damages were at that time a secondary consideration. His wounded pride thirsted for blood, but when he dropped into the presence of Mr. Gregory his first impulse apparently was stilled. Mr. Gregory is an athletic young man, with a long reach, and 'tis said has often handled the gloves. Mr. Beeman, although fresh from the city which produced John L. Sullivan, and inflamed with a desire for

did not challenge his rival to deadly conflict in the Murray mill yard. On the other hand after presenting his card to Mr. Gregory, and discussing the weather for a moment, he made a demand, so Mr. Gregory says, for money — money to heal the wounded family pride — money to atone for the departed wifely affections — base coin of Canada as a solace for a broken heart and fireside. Although Mr. Gregory deals in thousands in the management of Mr. Murray's big mill business, and pays his men promptly every Saturday night, he had no cash for Mr. Beeman. His name was not on the pay roll. The conversation at this point

GREW TERRIBLY INTERESTING.

Mr. Beeman says Mr. Gregory admitted writing a letter to Mrs. Beeman, and sending photographs of himself to her, but he and Mrs. Beeman were free agents and could do as they liked. This was little satisfaction to Mr. Beeman, so he called another day, a week ago last Wednesday, and threatened to take legal means for satisfaction. To this he alleges that Mr. Gregory replied "that he had no property in his own name; that he (Beeman) could not get blood out of a turnip; and that anyway he (Gregory) was unmarried, and if need be, would pack up his valise and leave the country."

The next step Mr. Beeman took was to seek a lawyer and

MAKE AN AFFIDAVIT.

He called on Mr. Currey. "Did he ever write an affidavit?" "Hundreds of them — see Rev. Mr. Stevens and J. Shatford." Yes, sit down Mr. Beeman, and give us your facts. We have attached to the office typewriter, special appliances for grinding out affidavits. Just in our line. What was it. Somebody been masquerading in a fur coat at midnight? Another "big baby boy" looking for pie. Perhaps a festive bank clerk, only a friend of course, treading on the forbidden domestic hearth." "You catch on" Mr. Currey, and here is my story. The shorthand man took it down; the typewriter merrily clicked it off as if no broken heart, no deserted home lurked beneath the legal phraseology, and a full grown — amply developed "affidavit" — a regular character killer — leaped from its narrow bounds.

Mr. Beeman, to put it tersely,

SWEARS LIKE THIS:

"I am a machinst and live in Boston, Blanch Downey has been my wife since March, 1889; that J. Fraser Gregory well knowing the same wrongfully enticed and procured her unlawfully to be absent, from my house and society; that the said Gregory debanched and carnally knew my wife; that in consequence thereof my wife and I have separated and no longer live as together as man and wife; that for several summers past my wife has been in the habit of coming to New Brunswick to spend a few months telling me she was so coming to visit her mother and other relations, but I have ascertained that she spent her time in St. John, having improper relations with said defendant. Last summer, I was desirous to have my said wife remain with me in Boston, but she stated to me her mother was very ill at said Belleisle and she must visit her. I consented for said reason and furnished her money for said visit, but I have ascertained she did not visit her mother at all, but spent her time with the defendant, and in a most improper and illegal manner, going with him alone in bark canoe trips to lonely and secluded places and accompanying him to improper places in the city and county for immoral purposes.

That I have in my procession

A LONG LOVE LETTER

dated St. Jonh, and bearing the date the 19th day of June last and, written by defendant to and received by my wife in which defendant requests my wife to come to St. John for the summer, telling her of the good time they can have together and referring to their previous correspondence and intimacy. That said letter begins with the words "My dear Blanche," and ends with the words "Your loving Fraser." That said defendant in said letter refers to kissing my wife, sending her photographs of himself, and uses the strongest terms of love and endearment, and it refers also to my wife's "love letter" to him. That I first knew of the improper and criminal relations of defendant with my wife a week ago last Tuesday morning, when I discovered several of defendant's photographs in my wife's private drawers, and found the said love letter in her person. That I then charged her with deceit and unfaithfulness, and she than admitted she had had improper relations with the defendant and had deceived me relative to her visits to New Brunswick. That we separated that day as man and, wife, and I at once came to the city of St. John to seek redress for the great wrong done me by the defendant

THE DEFENDANT ARRESTED.

The affidavit is dated July 6th and the same day an order was made by Judge Tuck to hold Mr. Gregory to bail. On Saturday Mr. Gregory was served with a writ of capias and held to bail in $1000 furnished by himself, Mr. Murray and Fulton Beverly. Then the facts got out; and the gossip started. The Telegraph understands that Mr. Beeman first became aware of his wife's unfaithfulness through the treachery of a Boston lady who was in his wife's confidence. He than watched his wife and seized her letters which, together with photographs and other articles given her by the defendant, Mr. Beeman has now in his possession. The letters, which will be produced at the trial, are said to be of a very spicy nature and to contain language which, in endearing epithets and general sentiment, equal if they do not surpass the now famous effusions of the Rev. Mr. Stevens, Mr. Gregory, who was evidently much enamored of the charming Mrs. Beeman, poured out his passion on paper in a way which, with the references of the letters are said to contain to their past intimacy will leave little other proofs necessary. In addition to this Mr. Gregory, who is an excellent amateur photographer had taken numerous pictures of himself and Mrs. Beeman during the time when the pair were on their canoeing expeditions. It is said that some of these scenes are highly interesting. These also are in the possession of the plantiff and will be produced at the trial. It is also alleged that Beeman has in his possession also numerous photographs of Gregory in different sizes and in different attitudes which he claims he found in his wife's private drawers.

THE WOMAN IN THE CASE.

Mrs. Beeman is a young and pretty brunette of about twenty-three. The intimacy between her and Mr. Gregory is said to have commenced several years ago when Mrs. Beeman was on a visit to her mother at Belleisle, Kings county. It was almost a case of love at first sight. Mrs. Beeman, her husband claims, spent the greater part of every summer in the company of Mr. Gregory. The lady, while in St. John, is supposed to have resided in the North End, not far from Mr. Gregory's boarding house. Mr. Gregory having considerable leisure time, spent the most of it with her; going, as her husband claims, on canoeing and other trips into the country, and sometimes remaining for several days. Mr. Beeman is said to have the letters and documents with him to corroborate the above facts, and will rest his case on them.

MR. GREGORY DENIES.

Mr. Gregory has engaged as his counto defend him McKeown, Barnhill & Chipman, and says the case is one of blackmail. His lawyers declare that they will fight it to the finish, and express the belief that they will show that Mr. Gregory has not been guilty of either improper or immoral conduct with Mrs. Beeman. Mr. Gregory told a Telegraph reporter that he knew Mrs. Beeman, but she had never remained in St. John with him. There would be no spicy developments in the case, It had been stated that Beeman could produce criminating letters, written by Mr. Gregory to Mrs. Beeman. "I never wrote Mrs. Beeman but one letter," said Mr. Gregory, "and there was nothing in that. I have known her two or three years, and there was never any intimacy such as alleged between us. On June 27 Beeman came to my office in the mill, and tried to extort money from me, I refused to pay up, and he threatened to take the matter into the courts. I told him to go ahead. I suppose he thinks he can frighten me into paying money to hush the blackened story he has compounded. I think a man can have very little love for his wife who would implicate her in such a scandal as he is trying to raise. Mrs. Beeman I am sure, is not a party to the blackmailing scheme."

The friends of Mr. Gregory in Fredericton hope he may be able to clear himself of the charges. The suit which Beeman proposes instituting for the alienation of his wife's affections may come to trial in September next, before Judge Hanington.

WHITEWASHED.

The House of Commons have applied another coat of whitewash to Sir Adolph Caron and even Sir Hector Langevin the disgraced ex-minister came in for a few daubs of the sanitary lotion. Mr. Edgar brought up the public works scandal and thought it was a great shame that one of the men who handled the funds with which the Canadian electors were bought up in 1887 should still remain a minister of the crown while another held a seat in parliament. Mr. Edgar quoted Mr McGreevy's evidence in 1891, where he admitted having received $55,000 for political purposes and having expended it exclusively for the Conservative party. The sum was much larger but Mr. Edgar took this sum because it was admitted under oath. Mr. Edgar quoted the evidence before the Caron commission to show that Sir Adolphe Caron admitted under oath that he had received $25,000 from the late Senator Ross, 'in dirty bank notes,' which he handed over to Mr. Thomas McGreevy for election expenses. At the same time every dollar of the $262,000 of subsidies to the lake of St. John Railway company was payable at Senator Ross. The whole record failed to show a single disinterested contribution. Before the commission Mr. Thomas McGreevy swore that he honored the drafts of this fund drawn by Sir. Hector Langevin and Sir. Adolphe Caron. He himself and these two leaders were a committee of three controlling the fund so that Sir. Hector Langevin and Sir. A. P. Caron were equally involed and equally responsible. These orders covered twenty separate counties. Sir. Adolphe Caron ordered $5,000 paid out for his own county. Edgar read from sworn statements of election expenses made according to law by the financial agents of the two ministers. Sir. Adolphe Caron sworn election expenses in 1887 amounted to $904, yet he got $5,100. Sir. Hector Langevin's sworn legal expenses were a few dollars more, leaving for Three Rivers $12,232 for corrupt purposes.

As the readers of THE HERALD well know, one member of this interesting trio, to wit McGreevy has served a term in prison for his share in the corruption, another Sir Hector Langevin, was relieved of his portfolio for the same reason, but the virtuous Caron is still a leading adviser in the cabinet, and snaps his fingers at the public horror of his corrupt career. No doubt his great ability for raising campaign funds is his strongest recommendation to the patronage of Sir John Thompson, who so soon must be looking around for another "reptile fund" with which to bribe the constituencies of Canada.

The resolution providing for a subsidy of $750,000 per year to the fast Atlantic steamship line, has passed the House of Commons at Ottawa. The terminal point on this side will be Halifax, with a chance for St. John as an alternate.

John McBey, Edward and Daniel Logan, three St. John fishermen, are supposed to have drowned in the falls Thursday night. They were last seen at Indiantown, and yesterday morning their boat was found wrecked and bottom up, below the falls.

Chas. Donovan, sixteeen-years-old, of Halifax, died Thursday morning, the result of a bicycle accident which occured on Monday. Young Donovan was thrown from his wheel, his foot caught in the wire spokes and he fell head first and was badly injured internally.

A terrible accident occurred at Andover yesterday morning. George McCluskey, a Woodstock baggage master, who was running on a mixed train, was riding on the cow catcher when he fell off, and was struck by the locomotive. His skull was fractured and five ribs were broken, and his recovery is doubtful.

Turcotte, the tory M. P. for Montmorency, who violated the independence of parliament act by accepting money for supplies, was whitewashed by the House of Commons last night. The Government majority was only twenty-nine, Dickey, Weldon, McCarthy, O'Brien and McNeill, voting against the whitewash.

Hon. Mr. Laurier will start for the North West and British Columbia about Aug. 20th. He may visit some places in northern Ontario at the outset. He will go through to the coast from Winnipeg, but on returning will make a tour of the Territories. It is possible that Mr. James Sutherland, M. P., will accompany the Liberal leader.

The specific charge which led General Herbert to suspend Col. Powell was that he had permitted the insertion in the Canada Gazette of a general order without the permission of the General, and without the initials of the Minister upon the proof sheet, which was sent to the Queen's printers. Col. Powell has been reinstated and the General severely snubbed. He ought to resign.

The Intercolonial conference at Ottawa has closed, but no accredited report of its work has yet been made public. A contemporary remarks that the main object of the conference in the eyes of many has been how best to pull out subsidies for cable and steamship communications. It is said that Hon. MacKenzie Bowell who presided at the conference and was instrumental in organizing, it, expects kinghthood as a reward for his services.

A young man named William Kelly about twenty-two years of age, belonging to Chipman, Queens Co., accidently shot himself Saturday evening. He had borrowed a gun from a neighbor for the purpose of shooting in the woods. As he was returning to his home about sundown members of the family hearing the report of a gun, went out, and found him dead upon the roadside. The expolsion of the gun had ignited his clothes and his coat and shirt were burning.

Ira D. Sankey, the celebrated singing evangelist, spent last Sunday at St. Andrews and sang at the evening service in the Methodist church. The Beacon says he gave three of his most beautiful songs, "The Life-line," "Some day We'll Understand," and "The Ninety and Nine," prefacing each song with interesting and touching anecdotes concerning it. His trumpet tones fairly made the building shake while his earnest manner made a deep impression on all who heard him.

The passenger steamer Vladimir, bound from Sebastepol to Odessa, came into collision with the Italian steamer Columbia, Sunday night, near Upatoria, a town of Russia, on the western coast of the Crimea. The Vladimir was so badly injured that she sank. The Vladimir was cut down amidships and sank immediately. Many of the Vladimir's passengers were killed in their berths when the Columbia crashed into her. A number of others jumped overboard in their fright and were drowned. A large number were injured and 75 passengers were drowned.

Welcomed at Woodstock.

(From the Dispatch.)

Lt. Governor Fraser was in town of last week, attending the Church of England Synod. He was accompanied by Mrs. Fraser. On Friday afternoon His Honor was presented with an address by the Mayor on behalf of the council and citizens of Woodstock. The address pointed out the esteem in which Governor Fraser was held by all classes, referred to the honorable positions he held in the province, and expressed the hope that he might be long spared to occupy the gubernatorial office. His Honor responded felicitiously. After this, the Mayor introduced the representatives of the town council and others, who having duly signed the roll, were admitted into the royal presence. Major Montgomery Campbell was aide-de-camp, and Major Drury was also on hand in full regimentals to add lustre to the festive occasion. A detachment of the Field Battery, in command of Col. Dibblee, formed a guard of honor, and the town band played the National Anthem and other patriotic airs. The balcony of the Wilbur House was gaily festooned with bunting. After the more severe formalities, the Governor and Mrs. Fraser received some seventy visitors.
