Down to Business.

Mr. Wilson in calling the convention to order, said it was very pleasing to the exmembers for the county to find such a large gathering of electors in response to their call for a convention to nominate candidates for the pending election. He would move that Dr. Coburn, of Bright, be called upon to preside over the convention, and it was carried unanimously. As Dr. Coburn came forward he was loudly cheered. He thanked the convention for the confidence reposed in him and suggested that the business of the afternoon be proceeded with at once.

L. C. Macnutt was elected Secretary.

The Chairman asked the meeting how it was proposed to proceed, and on motion of Mr. Wilson, it was resolved to elect two delegates from each parish of the county and each ward of the city to nominate the candidates. The committee was then elected as follows:

Before the committee retired, the chairman called upon

HON. A. G. BLAIR

to address the convention, and the Premier was received with a most hearty and spontaneous outburst of applause. He said he had stood on this platform many times before to receive his party's nomination for the legislature, and he could scarcely realize that events have changed and that he is not here in a similar capacity. Three years ago his old constituency had voted to change the representation of the county, and he was compelled to seek another seat. He did not leave this county of his own free will, but under a momentary impulse, the electors thought that their interests would be better served by somebody else. He had been obliged to say good bye to his old county, and he was not here seeking a nomination. But the opportunity has now arrived when you can reverse the verdict of 1892. He did for a little while hesitate whether to come up here or not, in view of the splendid outlook for the government throughout the province, but he concluded there is still a warm feeling in the county for him and his administration, and he came here to ask the electors of York to nominate men to redeem the standing which this county lost in the legislature when the county rendered its verdict of 1892. During his public career he had made the interests of the county the thing nearest to his heart, and he felt he still possessed the confidence of the great majority of the people. You know a religious cry was raised in this county, and people of different denominations living as neighbors, would have been set at each other's throats if the men who were responsible for the agitation could have managed it, but the people were scarcely prepared to see a disvowal of this act so early in this campaign.

It was charged that we were untrue to the Protestants of this country, but since this campaign has opened, the Bathurst School Question has been declared a dead issue by these same parties. It was a live issue when it could be used by these people, but it now suited them to declare it dead. So far as the government is concerned, it has never deteriorated one iota from its position of 1892 on the Bathurst school question. The electors were deceived in 1892 on that question, and many of them were deceived at the same time by the cry that the government was to be defeated in the country. You know that was the cry, but no sooner were the ballots counted than it was seen we were returned by a larger majority of the house than we ever received before. Men had been led to withdraw their allegiance because it was declared the government would be defeated; they had been led to reject men who had stood faithfully in the county's interests. What is the evidence in the present contest? Is there the speck of a cloud which indicates the defeat of the government in the country? No, all the evidence shows that on the 16th inst., the government will be stronger in the new legislature than in the old. We have been attacked on all hands but the result of investigations in the legislature shows the opposition have been unable to fasten any one of the charges on us; and our supporters increased in each successive house. You were told that if the opposition were returned in this county, their investigations would prove something against the government. But what is the volume of the services these gentlemen have rendered since 1892?

Seeing then, gentlemen, that the opportunity is offered you of reversing the verdict of 1892, I ask you to nominate four men who will successfully carry the standard of the government in this constituency. It is the first time in the history of this county that it has not had a potent voice in the councils of the province, and the chance is now presented to have that voice—to recover the standing you lost three years ago. He regretted he had to leave by the train at once, but he felt that he would not be forgetful of kindness extended to him during the many years he had the honor of representing this county. A round of applause greeted the Attorney-General as he resumed his seat. The committee retired and shortly afterwards through their chairman, J. E. Simmons, reported the nomination of Hon. A. G. Blair, Wm. Wilson, John Anderson, and Thos. H. Colter.

The report was put to the meeting and carried amid applause, and took the platform. He referred to his past victories in 1885, 1886, 1890, 1891, and to his defeat of 1892, and thanked the electors for the confidence they now expressed by their nomination to-day. He had carefully resolved, however, that as he had run so many elections that in justice to himself and to his family he would have to decline the nomination, unless it is absolutely necessary for him to go into the fight. A determined attack had been made upon him in this county, and in consequence of the slanders which had been circulated regarding him, he would always feel grateful to the electors for the confidence they had so many times placed in him, and if he could ever be of service to them they had but to command him.

MR. T. H. COLTER

said it had been circulated in the county that Colter was to be unloaded, but the action of this convention gave the lie to that slander. In the last campaign a member of the present opposition had sent it abroad that Colter had sold out the Orangemen by running on the government ticket. What do we find to-day? Down in Kings county the past grand master of the Orangemen, Mr. Fowler, is a government candidate, and in St. John the present grand master is friendly to the administration. Referring to the nomination just tendered him, he said for personal reasons he would have to decline it. But if it was necessary that he should go into the contest, if this convention failed to secure the men they desired, he would not refuse to again join a ticket to victory in the present contest.

in a pleasant speech also declined the nomination, but if the party could not make a better selection John Anderson is with you. (Applause) It had been stated in a section of the press that John Anderson was to be dropped, but the convention's action showed him that he still had a warm place in the regard of his old friends and supporters.

MR. WILSON

on behalf of the Attorney General, thanked the convention for nominating Mr. Blair, but he knew that that gentleman had already accepted a nomination in Queens. He therefore, on behalf of Mr. Blair, thanked the convention for the expression of its confidence and respectfully declined for him the proffered nomination.

The committee again retired and after consultation, Mr. Simmons reported to the convention that they had nominated

John Anderson
Hon. F. P. Thompson
W. T. Whitehead
John A. Campbell.

The report was received with great applause by the meeting.

MR. ANDERSON

then took the platform, and while regretting some other gentleman had not been chosen in his place, said he would accept the nomination, and he would leave nothing undone to secure the election of the entire ticket.

The announcement was received with rounds of applause, showing the strong hold Mr. Anderson had on the electors present.

HON. MR. THOMPSON

was given a grand ovation as he ascended the platform. He said it was not the first time he had been nominated. He had been elected and he had been defeated, and he knew both ends of it. He hoped the Gleaner reporter who was present a few minutes ago, would represent this convention just as it was, a splendid representation of the intelligent electorate of York. He believed the county would be redeemed from the snap verdict of 1892. The opposition ticket now nominated would not serve as a plaster to heal the wounds inflicted by the sectarian agitation of the last campaign. He would accept the nomination and would go into the contest to win. (Great applause). He had been vilified in the press, but there is not a man in this constituency to whom he cannot go and ask him if his character would not at least bear a favorable comparison with the men who had cast reflections on his personal reputation. We have a short time to canvas the constituency, but we will get there on the 16th. (Loud applause).

Mr. Thompson spoke with great energy and eloquence, and every word met a responsive echo from the audience.

was received with round after round of applause. He assured the committee that the nomination had been a great surprise. He had never had aspired to political life, but he claimed to possess some business capacity and integrity, and if this convention thought he was a suitable candidate in this contest his services were at their disposal—(Great cheering).

Mr. Campbell was not present, and on motion of Mr. Wilson, Dr. Coburn, Mr. Thompson, Geo. A. Hughes, Mr. Anderson, and Mr. Whitehead, were appointed a committee to await on him and ascertain his decision, and if he does not accept, to name some gentleman to take his place on the ticket.

On motion of Geo. A. Hughes the following resolution was unanimously passed by the committee:—

"Resolved, that this convention hereby place on record its hearty appreciation of the valuable services to the party and county rendered by Messrs. Wilson and Colter, and that it expresses its confidence in their ability and integrity as public men with the hope that their services may some time in the near future again be called into use."

Mr. Colter brought up the charges made against him in the Gleaner regarding his management of the bye-road money and characterized them as slanderous and unfounded. He challenged the closest scrutiny and investigation into the matter. He was preparad to meet his accusers anywhere, and to convince the people that he is not the vile creature which a section of the press had represented him to be.

MERRY WEDDING BELLS.

The Nuptials of Miss Jennie Logan and Dr. J. Darley Harrison celebrated Thursday.

A wedding which has been looked forward to with unusual interest took place at 1 p. m. Thursday, when Miss Jennie Logan, eldest daughter of Mrs. Thomas Logan, and Dr. J. Darley Harrison, of Edmonton, N. W. T., eldest son of Dr. Harrison. Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick, were married at the residence of the bride's mother, Mr. W. F. Fowler's, Regent Street. Miss Logan was one of our most worthy and popular young ladies, one who enjoyed the esteem of a large circle of personal friends for her many excellent traits of character, and was an energetic, spirited, and intelligent young lady, full of good works, a pillar in the Methodist church organization and societies, and always willing to lend her aid to any deserving work. In the hospital aid society of young ladies', who have done so much to help along a deserving institution, Miss Logan was one of the most active and useful members, and her place will be hard to fill. Affiable, courteous, gentle, possessing all the qualities which mark a perfect lady, it is not too much to say that the bride of Thursday was one of Fredericton's favorite young ladies, and it was fitting that she should unite her matrimonial fortunes with a young gentleman so highly esteemed as Dr. Harrison. The bridegroom, who is a Fredericton boy, born, bred and educated here, has a promising career before him in the medical profession. He graduated in arts at the University of N. B., took his medical course at McGill University, and in the past three years has established a good practice in Edmonton, a thriving town in the North West. But to get back to the wedding. Rev. Mr. Tippett performed the ceremony—in a perfect bower of green. The bride and groom stood in a bay window, which was banked up with ferns and other plants, and smilax trailed over the curtains, around the walls and on the gasaliers, and the rooms looked radiant filled as they were with a brilliant wedding party who had come to wish long life and happiness to the Doctor and his bride. The invited guests included: Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Brecken, Dr. and Mrs. Coulthard, Dr. and Mrs. Coburn, Hon. F. P. and Mrs. Thompson, Hon. A. G. and Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Edgecombe, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Edgecombe, the Misses Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Taylor, A. G. Harrison of Edmonton, Professor Stockley, Dr. and Mrs. Harrison, Prof. and Mrs. Dixion, Mr. and Mrs. Gill, Miss Smithson; the Misses Blair, Lewis Blair, R. W. Hanington, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Bell, Miss Moore, Eddie Moore, Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. Trites, Mr. and Mrs Barbour, Miss Barbour, Ernest Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. Finlay, Miss Logan, Mr. and Mrs. G. Phips, of St. John: Mrs. Z. Currie, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Currie, Frank Currie, of Woodstock; Miss Stevenson, Dr. and Mrs. Evans, Hampton, the Misses Thompson, Mrs. Thorne, the Misses Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. F. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs, R. F. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Coulthard, Miss Sayre, Miss Bessie Babbilt, Miss Aggie Neill, Chas. E. Neill, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilson, Mrs. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Weddall, Dr. and Mrs. Fisher, Marysville, Miss Mackay, B. F. Mackay, Dartmouth.

The bride wore a very pretty costume of of white satin, en train, trimmed with lace—a veil and carried a boquet of white roses. She looked charming indeed. Her sister, Miss Bessie Logan, was bridesmaid and was very effectively gowned in yellow silk with yellow velvet sleeves and trimmings of violets. She carried a bouquet of blush roses, Dr. Harrison was ably supported by Mr. A. G. Blair, jr., of St. John, son of the Hon. Premier of New Brunswick—and one of the rising young barristers of this province.

After the ceremony a superb luncheon was served and Dr. and Mrs. Harrison left in the afternoon train for their home at Edmonton, receiving a lively send off at the depot. They will stop off at Montreal and Calgary on the trip. Mrs. Harrison's travelling costume was navy blue, with tan vest and blue hat.

The number and elegance of Mrs. Harrison's presents were very much admired by the guests at the wedding, but the bride's modesty forbids a newspaper description of them. The HERALD, while regretting that both Dr. and Mrs. Harrison have removed so far from their friends in Fredericton, joins in the general wish of the community for their happiness and success in their western home.

In the account of his death it is stated that he has a wife and two children living on the Nashwaak, about 30 miles from Fredericton, and his only known relative in Montana is a Mrs. John McLaggan of Butte. A search was made by the coroner for his effects, and found a certificate of deposit for $2,100 on the First National Bank of Butte, dated Sept. 11, 1895, and $114.50 in cash in his pocketbook, which was concealed in his bed. About $45 was also found in the post office desk. The coroner took possession of the money and the dead man's watch until they can be turned over to the public administrator.

A VERY SAD AFFAIR.

Byron G. Taylor Accidentally Shot Himself in the Hanwell Woods.

Among the arrivals in the city Saturday, was Byron G. Taylor, formerly of St. John. but recently doing a successful insurance business in London, G. B. Mr. Taylor came to St. John a few weeks ago to visit his old home, and before leaving again for London, thought he would look in upon his many friends in this city. He was a guest of E. Byron Winslow, and having a keen desire for sport in the woods, in company with H. B. Rainsford and the latter's son George, Mr. Taylor drove up the old Fredericton and St. Andrews road, to Green Point, a distance of some twenty miles, Monday. The party secured two guides, Chassie and Myshrall' and their subsequent experience and the sad death of Mr. Taylor, are best told in the words of Mr. Rainsford, as follows:

"Mr. Taylor, my son George and myself, started Monday to spend a few days in the woods after game. We drove out to Green Point road, about twenty miles from this city. We went to Alex. Hood's barn, about a mile and a half from the road leading from Fredericton to St. Andrews, and put up for the night. We had secured the services of Ephriam Chassie and Peter Myshrall, as guides. Tuesday morning, just before starting for the woods, Mr. Taylor said that he would give five pounds for a deer. I had my gun with me. George did not have any. Mr. Taylor had a double-barrelled breach loader and Peter had a muzzle loader. We all started out the road and crossed the Yoho stream, I handing my gun over to Chassie. He took and started down towards the lake and was to return at one o'clock. Peter and Taylor went to the right in the direction of some dead water and I remained on the road. Presently Taylor came back, and I asked him where Peter was, and he replied that he had gone to look for deer. We then walked down the road towards a clump of trees. George and Taylor went into the woods to the left and I remained on the road. Presently I heard a gun go off and a yell. I called Taylor, and getting no reply, thought that something must have happened. Then I called to George and said Taylor was shot. We searched around in the direction the shot came from, and presently I saw him (Taylor) lying on the ground. It was a smooth place near some trees. He was lying on his side with his head facing the road. Just back of him was his gun lying parallel with his body. George opened up the lapel of his coat, and I saw where his vest was burned and torn. In a few minutes Peter Myshrall arrived, and I told him what had happened. I directed him to blaze the trees in the vicinity of the place where the body was found. We left the body and went and harnessed the horse and drove into town as fast as we could. George Rainsford was the last person that saw Mr. Taylor alive. They went into the woods together, and before they separated, Mr. Taylor gave the boy a whistle, which he told him to blow if he ran across any game. This was his last conversation."

Mr. Rainsford arrived in the city at 1 p. m. Tuesday, with the sad news, and E. Byron Winslow, T. Carleton Allen and W. E. Smith, started at once for the scene of the tragedy, accompanied by Undertaker Adams. When they arrived, they found the body just as Mr. Rainsford had left it. On examination they found that the charge had entered in the pit of the stomach and had travelled upwards in a slanting direction and penetrated the heart. Death must have been instantaneous. The gun was lying beside him with one barrel loaded and the other containg an empty paper shell.

Evidence at the Inquest.

The remains reached Mr. Winslow's residence Tuesday night at 11 o'clock and an inquest was held the same night by Coroner Mullin of St. Marys, with Mayor VanWart, Frank I. Morrison, E. H. Allen, H. White, F. B. Coleman, Robert Adams and James McAdam as jurors. The witnesses examined were H. B. Rainsford, Peter Myshrall, W. E. Smith, T. C. Allen and Dr. Bridges. The evidence of Mr. Rainsford was substantially the same as above. Messrs. T. C. Allen and W. E. Smith told of the position in which they found the body.

Dr. Bridges, who examined the body, found a wound extending from the pit of the stomach, slanting obliquely, to the left shoulder. The charge, which was of buckshot, was found to have penetrated the heart, left lung and carried away part of three of the ribs. Most of the shot lodged in the left shoulder under the skin, but a few had made their exit under the arm pit. The body was bleeding profusely from all the wounds, showing that the heart, and probably some of the larger blood vessels had been penetrated. After the discharge of the gun, the deceased could not have lived more than 15 or 20 seconds, and could not have moved more than a few feet from the position where the gun was discharged.

The jury then retired and brought in a verdict that deceased had come to his death by the accidental discharge of a rifle held in his hand, while hunting in the woods.

Capt. Taylor, harbor master of St. John, father of the deceased, arrived from St. John Tuesday evening, heartbroken over the terrible news of his son's death, and, accompanied by E. Byron Winslow, left for home on the 11 a.m. train Wednesday with the remains, which were interred the following day.

The deceased was a most worthy and popular young man. When in business in St. John he was a frequent and welcome visitor to this city, and his wife who survives him with one son, and is now in London, was the youngest daughter of the late Dr. Murphy of this city. It was terrible news which was flashed across the ocean to her on Tuesday, and the sincerest sympathy of the community is extended to her in her great bereavement.

Mr. Taylor was singularly successful in his business, and had a happy home in London. It is understood that he carried a very large life insurance, stated as high as $60,000. He was thirty-three years old, and a young man with all the qualities which go to make up an honorable and high minded character Bright, genial and big hearted he was a general favorite among his acquaintances and his terribly sad death came as a great shock to them.

City Council Meeting.

Ald. Gilman was the only absentee from the City Council meeting Tuesday evening, and the business put through was largely routine.

Policeman Phillips' pay was raised from $1.25 to $1.50, and the city printing for the ensuing year was awarded to the Reporter office.

Ald. McPherson made his usual attack on the electric light service, and moved that an electrician be employed to test the lights.

Ald. Lemont defended the service. He said he had made considerable enquiry. He had written to the inland revenue department, Ottawa, for an inspector, whom he saw personally, and was informed by him that he dealt only with incandescent lights. He (Lemont) thought there was no man in the lower provinces capable of testing the lights, and as it would cost $100 or $200 to bring one here from other places, he thought the council would not feel justified in incurring the expense. As far as he could see the lights were very good. We have not an all night service; the contract only calls for a moonlight schedule. Then some people expect our light of 1,200 horse power to be as bright as that of St. John, which is 2,000 horse power. In Charlottetown they pay $73 per lamp, while this city pays only $59.

After some further discussion McPherson's motion carried.

The city, besides the money retained from the Conollys and interest thereon, paid them $6,875.00, a total of $15,731.73.

Scales! Scales!

A SCALE is a scale: But what a difference there is in scales, not only in quality but in price. We don't claim to sell the cheapest scale, but we do sell scales that are marvellously low in price considering quality. Not cheap scales, but good scales at low prices.

FLOOR PAINTS.

HAVE you experienced trouble with floor paints? It is more important to have a reliable floor paint than any other liquid paint. They must dry hard and quickly. Brightness and durability are necessary. These qualities, it has been proved, are to be found in the paint we sell.
