MR. FOSTER TO RETIRE.

For some time past, there have been rumors to the effect that the Minister of Finance had decided to abandon York county and seek some other and safer constituency. These rumors, which seemed to be well founded, began to circulate soon after the minister's chilling reception in Fredericton, and were even doubtless due to Mr. Foster's reflections over his city hall reception, and as over the discouraging reports which were made by those who were sent out through the country to look over and size up the prospects. It is a well known fact that Mr. Foster became aware, shortly after his nod and come nomination for York, that he could not reasonably hope to be elected. The sentiment of the county was plainly against the government, the map, and the arbitrary clique which brought him here, and intimated that the people of York would simply have to accept him as their representative.

This was the way the matter stood before the Manitoba school question came upon him to roost. The course pursued by Mr. Foster in this matter seems to have alienated the small fragment of voters upon whom he depended for the nucleus of his support.

As the result of his many mistakes he finds the whole county, to which he came asking for bread, ready to give him a stone. Throughout all his wide expanse he can see no ray of hope or comfort, while from every part of this county he hears the cry of the men of York, "depart, hence, etc." And now comes the report, which seems to be well authenticated, that the signs he has seen and the warnings he has heard, has scared him back to Kings; while he is on the run he hardly think he is heading towards Kings. The forbidding figure of the cavalry colonel would loom up, and cause him to shy off in some other direction. Where he may eventually bring up will depend largely on how the Manitoba school question is disposed of. But while he may not be able to fall back on Kings, "if the worst comes to the worst," he can fall back on temperance lecturing. The pay may not be as good as it was in the old days, but the school houses are just plenty, the field of operations is just as large, and the need of a David to fight the Giant of strong drink and to educate men up to vote right on the temperance question is just as great now as in the days, when, in a moment of weakness, Mr. Foster voted for prohibition. For he has not Mr. Foster himself said that the country is not yet ripe for prohibition for fifty years!

While this is the real state of affairs in the Tory camp, their mouth organ is making itself ridiculous by publishing absurd reports to the effect that the Liberal candidate is going to retire. While every sane man knows that there is nothing in such yarns, and that about all the Liberal candidate has to do is quietly wait until the people have a chance to go to the polls to become the representative for York in parliament, it might be well to say that no matter what the prospects are or may be, Mr. Allen will be in the field to the finish. He was nominated by the Liberals of this county to defeat any Tory candidate who may care to face him, and while the easy victory before him is not displeasing, he is ready, with the help of the independent voters of York to retire—not himself—but whoever his opponent may be.

DR. ATKINSON'S DEATH.

Dr. Atkinson, M. P. P., passed away at 2 o'clock Monday morning, at his home in Bristol. He did not long survive the premature announcement of his death in the papers of a week ago, and his end was not unexpected, as he was a victim of consumption. He twice sought the mild climate of California, and only returned a few weeks ago with no relief, to die in his native land.

Marcus Chappell Atkinson was born at Baie Verte, N. B., on the 7th January, 1854. His father's family came from Yorkshire and settled at Sackville towards the close of the eighteenth century. He received his early education in the Baie Verte common school; attended the provincial normal school in 1875, and obtained a first-class certificate. In 1882, he married Miss Mary J. Stewart, of Antigonish, N. S., who survives him. On June 17th, 1882, he settled in Bristol, Carleton Co., and there began the practice of medicine. On April 26th, 1888, he was elected one of the county's representatives in the house of assembly, and at the general elections of 1890, the people of Carleton sent him back to the legislature. He was again a candidate in the general elections of 1892, and on June 17, 1895 he was elected by acclamation. His funeral took place this morning at 10.30 o'clock.

MARRIED HIS STEPMOTHER.

A despatch from Tacoma, Wash., says: Henry Veazie, aged 23, married Hattie Klingensmith, aged 46, who was thought to be his stepmother. His father, Wm. H. Veazie, a prominent and wealthy mill man and logger, has distinguished himself. The father says the ceremony performed that was supposed to have made Miss Klingensmith his wife was not legal. A few months ago he had Mrs. Veazie sign deeds of all his property which had been given to her, to his son Henry. A few days ago he went to California, and on his return found his son Henry and Hattie Klingensmith married. He ordered that the Veazie estate, valued at $150,000, can never be wrested from him. He said he wanted to do all he could to right the wrong done to Miss Klingensmith by his father.

At this time the inmates of the house were two on discovering their new visitor on them immediately left the house, the other, being a little more courageous succeeded with the aid of some cre which she had hurriedly brought to the cellar, in coaxing bruin into an adjoining shed, where he was at once securely chained, and it is to be hoped he will never again visit the house.

Beckwith in which he offered to make a complete plan for the city for $250. This plan is to be used in making an estimate of the cost of a complete system of sewerage. After the cost is ascertained the scheme will be submitted to a vote of the citizens.

The New Brunswick Railway Company have decided to appeal to the supreme court of Canada from the unanimous judgment of the supreme court of this province, delivered at the last term of the court, in their suit against Mrs. Margaret E. Kelly. The case on appeal was settled before Judge Tuck at St. John Monday. This case has been in the courts for over six years. Mrs. Kelly won at nisi prius, lost in equity and won again before the full bench of this province. Now the case goes to the supreme court of Canada, which will cause a delay of two more years.

GEN. HERBERT RESIGNS.

He is no Longer Commandant of the Canadian Militia.

The question whether or not Major-General Herbert will resume his duties in Canada has been settled by the receipt of the General's resignation, which has been accepted, and his connection with the Canadian militia force is, therefore, terminated. Rumors as to his probable successor have been revived in consequence of his resignation. The names most frequently mentioned are those of Col. Johnson, a Canadian by birth, who has been frequently referred to as Major-General Herbert's successor, and Col. Gascoigne, commanding officer of the Scotch Grenadier Guards. My own impression is that the chances are in favor of Col. Gascoigne being Major-General Herbert's successor, but the matter will not be settled for some little time yet. Col. Gascoigne is a very distinguished officer of the Guards, who served with his corps through the Egyptian campaign, taking part in the battles of Tel el Kebir and Sunken. He is deputy adjutant-general of the military district of London in the volunteer service and has had a great deal of experience with the Metropolitan volunteers, which will, no doubt, be of very great service to him should he be offered and accept the position of commandant of the Canadian militia. Col. Gascoigne is a full colonel in the Guards and has recently been recommended to promotion to a major-generalship so that his position fully complies with all the requirements of the Canadian act relating to the commanding officer of the militia. From all that I can learn Col. Gascoigne is said to be a most excellent officer in every respect and one who would most probably prove a valuable acquisition to the Canadian force.

was still vigorous and wished it to be clearly understood that he never desired to leave the position he has occupied for 39 years. During a violent thunder storm at Bonchurch, Westphalia, Berlin, Thursday, an explosion of fire damp and coal dust occurred in Pritz von Preussen mine, which is 350 metres in depth. Friday morning 25 dead and 11 injured men were found in the pit, but the total number of deaths is not yet known, as the pit has not been fully explored. Hundreds of widows, children and other relatives of dead, injured and missing men are congregated about the mouth of the pit and their cries and lamentations are most heart-rending. Thirty-two bodies have thus far been recovered.
