ELECTION TALK.

Dr. Stockton and his opposition friends are in a feverish state of excitement lest a general local election may be sprung upon them in the next few months, and his organs are taking various methods to arouse the people into activity against the Government. One feeble little paper advocates drawing Liberal and Conservative lines with the hope that the Government might meet with disaster, and we observe the Sun follows on similar lines. The Sun's flattery of Dr. Lewis of Albert, is so glaringly transparent that the shrewd doctor must have had a hearty laugh at our contemporary. It is not many moons since the Sun had quite different treatment for the senior member for Albert. The Sun also expresses some confidence in the probable result in Westmorland, but anybody familiar with that county must be fully aware that Dr. Stockton's supporters have no chance whatever in that constituency. THE HERALD is informed that in St. John the Government cause has been greatly strengthened in the past three years, and that Dr. Stockton and his colleagues in the city will have to fight the battle of their lives in the next election. The Sun need not reckon on Carleton. Half a dozen candidates are named in the Government interest and no opposition man is yet in sight. The strength of the opposition in that county died with Dr. Atkinson.

Some interesting stories are afloat regarding opposition plans in York county. It is known that the wire pullers are anxious to get rid of nearly all the present representatives. They are tired and sick of Mr. Pitts, who has proved himself simply useless as a member of the House, and was only sent there in the first place as a freak,—they do not want Pinder and his rock blasting record—or Mr. Howe who has not startled the world with his legislative talent. Neither do they take kindly to Mr. W. K. Allen, who has not shown himself willing to be entirely moulded to suit opposition fancies. The wire pullers want an entirely new combination—like the Indian's gun, the old one is useless lock, stock and barrel. They are aware that the county does not intend that it shall again be made the laughing stock of the province, and they are earnestly on the lookout for new men.

MCGILL'S NEW PRINCIPAL.

Every loyal Canadian is interested in the success of McGill University at Montreal, our great national educational institution, and all are pleased that the governors have been able to place such an able man as Dr. Peterson at its head. Under Sir Wm. Dawson's presidency, the university grew and prospered and it is not too much to hope that its success will be continued. Dr. Peterson comes with the best of records from two or three Scotch universities, and has already created a favorable impression personally among those who have met him at Montreal. He arrived there this week, and our Montreal exchanges have given his advent the prominence it deserved. In the Witness we find a detailed personal description of Dr. Peterson, and it would seem that physically as well as mentally, he is well equipped for the great work that lies before him.

He is described as a young man. In the wavy black hair which curls about a fine head there is here and there a streak of grey, which adds to the seriousness of an aspect otherwise youthful and even gay. Dr. Peterson is in the prime of life, a robust man, greatly belied by his published pictures, which represent him as thin and rather frail-looking. He has, in truth, the build of the athlete, with broad shoulders, a splendid chest, and a physical virility of the whole man which would be the delight of a captain of a football club. He has a fresh color in his cheeks; flashing dark brown eyes, a firm chin, whose strength is forgotten in the cordial smile which plays about a mobile mouth. One might add the charm of the Doric which adorns his speech as embroidery adorns the plain garment.

THE YACHT RACE.

The great Anglo-American yacht race upon which has been centered the eyes of the English speaking world, ended Thursday in a most inglorious fizzle. The Valkyrie, Lord Dunraven's boat, and the Defender, owned by a syndicate of wealthy Americans, were the contestants for the international cup, and sailed the first race Saturday, the Yankee jacket winning by over eight minutes in a very fluky wind. The second race came off Tuesday, and in the preparatory skirmish just before crossing the line, the yachts collided, doing some slight damage to the Defender, which, however, followed her rival over the course, and was beaten forty-seven seconds. The Defender protested, and was given the race. The third trial was made Thursday, and when at the starting line the Valkyrie seeing it was impossible to have a fair contest, so crowded was the course with excursion boats, withdrew, and the cup was awarded to the Defender. The result is most unsatisfactory to the sport loving public, who would liked to have seen a fair trial between the yachts. The Americans have retained the cup, but nobody outside the republic envies them its possession, under the circumstances by which it was awarded.

THE DOMINION government do not show such promptness in calling on the bye-election in West Huron, Ont., as they displayed in the case of Westmorland. The date of the contest in the latter county was gazetted on the same day that Senator Wood's appointment was announced. West Huron has been vacant for some weeks, but there is no sign of an election in that constituency. It was recently held by Hon. J. C. Patterson, now governor of Manitoba, and his majority over M. C. Cameron, Liberal, was only sixteen. Perhaps this fact has something to do with the government's delay in issuing the writ. Perhaps they are not anxious to test the feeling of an Ontario constituency where the Liberals have equal fighting chances with the Tories.

OPEN TO WOMEN.

An announcement from Washington, is of interest to women, especially those who claim communion with the Roman Catholic church. The great Catholic university of that city, richly endowed and with a splendid faculty, which has hitherto been devoted solely to the education of priests, has thrown open its doors to women. This is a radical departure from the ancient traditions of the Catholic church, and must have an important bearing on the educational future of its adherents.

It is expected that the first women who will apply for admission to the college courses in the higher studies—those of science, philosophy and the arts—will come from the religious orders. This is because it is thought advisable to have the teachers in the convents of the United States take a university course, so that the convent schools may be kept abreast of the modern movement in education. A woman's department will be founded, and the standard of excellence will be the highest obtainable for the instruction of women of superior intellect, who have devoted their lives to study.

Not only will nuns be welcomed, but the university will throw its doors open to all seekers of instruction, and woman students from every part of the globe will be admitted to all the lectures and studies of the university in the regular and special courses, side by side with the men, the only provision being that they shall not be permitted to matriculate or secure degrees.

Another of Mr. Foster's fads has gone to the wall. The failure of the trade extension to Australia is reported by Special Commissioner Larke, who finds the antipodean colonies disgusted with protection, and instead of desiring to make commercial treaties with protectionist-government ridden countries, are now reducing duties and reforming their tariffs so as to encourage the world's traffic.

Mr. Foster not long ago was intensely excited over the prospect of trade with the West Indies. He subsidized a line of steamers, but like his other chimerical ideas it amounted to nothing. Mr. Foster wants Canada to trade with every other country under the sun but our natural market the United States, and his useless experiments have cost the country thousands of dollars.

The opposition papers have no foundation for the rumours they are publishing regarding the personnel of a local government ticket in this county, as no action as yet been taken towards the formation of such a ticket. Let them possess their souls in patience, however, and they will see a combination in the field that will win this county back to the allegiance from which it temporarily strayed in the last contest. York county is not going to be represented in the next Assembly by the Pitts-Pinder crowd.

HALE AND HEARTY AT 91.

Robert Bird of Birdton and his Scores of Descendants.

The Parish of Douglas contains within its borders one of the most remarkable old men, in many ways. Mr. Robert Bird, of Birdton, one of the original settlers of that section of the Parish, is still hale and hearty, in his ninety-first year; does his day's work every day of his life; is as ruddy of cheek, bright of eye, and strong of mind, apparently, as ever he was; reads the papers assiduously, (particularly the Herald), is well versed in politics and on other questions of the day; and can listen and talk with surprising vigour. This is all the more remarkable when we know that he has always been a very hard worker. He settled at Birdton about the year 1825, and there married and brought up a family of fourteen children, three of whom are dead, and eleven, with their children and children's children, nearly all living within a few miles of the old homestead. On Wednesday the 4th instant, Mr. Bird's children and grand children, held a family reunion at the old home in Birdton, now occupied by Mr. Samuel Bird. Besides the immediate descendants of Robert Bird and their connections, there were present five others Mr. John Bird and wife and three young ladies from Keswick. When the time came to count noses, is was found that Mr. Bird's descendants present numbered eight children, thirty-five grand children and seventeen great grand children.

The absent ones included 3 children, 25 grand children, and 12 great grand children. Then there were sons-in-law and daughters-in-law, and grandsons and daughters-in-law, until the total of those present amounted to within a few of one hundred. A very enjoyable day was had, and there was fine weather and everything that heart could wish to make the reunion a success. Dinner, spread in the orchard in front of the homestead, was announced at five o'clock, Mr. Bird himself returning thanks for all good things and singing in good tone the doxology, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." The dinner was a triumph of culinary skill, and reflected great credit on housewives among the family.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Walter McFarlane of Nashwaaksis; Mrs. J. V. Johnston of same place; Mr. and Mrs. Bond, children and grandchildren; Mrs. James Bond and daughter; Mrs. Benj. Evans and family; Robert Evans, wife and family; W. H. Wilson and wife of Milford, Mass.; John R. Bird and family; Fred. Bird and family; Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Allen; Duncan Bird and family.

ZEALAND IS SOUND.

Mr. Allen Addresses a Crowded Meeting There Tuesday Evening.

E. H. Allen the Liberal candidate in York, accompanied by Geo. L. Wilson, drove out on Tuesday evening last to Stone Ridge School House on the Keswick, where he was advertised to address the electors on the political issues of the day. Although the notice had been short the attendance was very large. The good-sized school house was filled almost to overflowing, the greater number of those present being qualified electors. One of the prominent men of the district placed the number of voters in attendance at 60, a representation which, in view of the present lull in political matters, and the position of the place of meeting, was extremely gratifying to Mr. Allen. The chair was taken at 7.30 sharp, A. Tyler Burtt, of Zealand Station, an enthusiastic Liberal, acting as chairman. Mr. Allen spoke for over two hours, delivering an eloquent and well considered address. There was plenty of material to keep him going, and he covered the ground remarkably well, touching upon nearly all the leading political topics of interest to the average voter. Mr. Foster came in for a considerable amount of good humored satire, which provoked frequent laughter and applause. Indeed, the audience seemed to heartily appreciate the force of Mr. Allen's remarks throughout the whole evening, and he was frequently greeted with cheers. His references to the Manitoba school question, and his sharp criticism of the Government in that connection, were received with unmistakable evidences of warm assent to the position he took. At the close of his remarks Mr. Wilson spoke shortly, and the meeting adjourned, after passing a unanimous vote of thanks to the chairman. The meeting was an undoubted success, and the enthusiasm displayed by the voters present, goes to show that the Liberal cause is strong, and strengthening daily.

DEATH OF E. B. BROWNLOW.

A Gentleman Well Known in Fredericton Passes Away at Montreal.

His Succesful Literary Career.

Fredericton friends of E. B. Brownlow were very much pained to hear of his death which occurred at his home in Montreal, Sunday. Mr. Brownlow was connected with the bank of B.N.A., and when Mr. Inglis, the late manager of that institution in Fredericton, visited Europe less than three years ago, Mr. Brownlow acted in his absence, and with his wife occupied the bank residence. He became very popular in business circles, and with his accomplished wife soon made a very large circle of friends. The disease which cut short Mr. Brownlow's promising career was of the stomach. He sought the best medical aid on both sides of the Atlantic but without avail.

The following references to his sad death will be read with melancholy interest by his Fredericton friends:

Montreal Herald: Literature in Canada will suffer a severe loss by the death of Mr. E. B. Brownlow, which took place Sunday at his residence, 143 Park Avenue. Mr. Brownlow was employed at the Bank of British North America, but spent all his leisure moments in literary work, and his non de plume, "Sarepta," was widely known. He was for some time literary editor of Arcadia, and was also a frequent contributor to the Week. He devoted himself principally to the study of sonnet. After coming to Canada from London, he perfected himself in French, and also learned German, Italian and some of the Scandinavian dialects, and made himself familiar with the works of European sonnetters. Just before his death he had finished a history of the sonnet. He was 38 years of age. He leaves a widow, who was a Hamilton lady, and the remains were interred in Hamilton.

Montreal Gazette: The death of Mr. Edward B. Brownlow, though not unexpected, will be to many readers of the Gazette a source of sincere regret. He had been ill for several months, and it has for some time been known to his friends that there was no hope of his recovery. All that medical science could do to effect a cure had been done, and Mr. Brownlow himself was well aware that his days were numbered. Solaced by the love of a devoted wife and the attentions of many friends, he bore his long illness with resignation, and at last passed peacefully away. In business circles Mr. Brownlow, Londoner by birth, a member of a distinguished family, was known as an officer of the Bank of British North America. In literary circles he was better known as an enthusiastic lover of all that is best in literature. Gifted with no slight share of poetic inspiration, he has for a good many years been a welcome contributor of poetry and criticism to the magazines, especially the Week. He had won a reputation in a circle, that is not confined to Canada, for his researches in the history of the sonnet. This was, he said, his hobby, and to this pursuit he gave a great deal of his leisure for many years. In order to study this form of poetry in its mother tongue, he learned the language of Dante and Petrarch as well as the other neo-Latin, the German and the northern tongues. In fact, he spared no pains to attain success in this, the quest of his too short life, and to those who sypathized with his labors it is at once a source of gratification and regret that he lived just long enough to put the finishing touches upon his literary life-work. He had completed the History of the Sonnet, when his health broke down, and the crowning task of publication will now fall to others. We have reason to know that Mr. Brownlow's conscientious, far-reaching and many sided research into the origin, diversities and great masters of the sonnet had already won that succes de merite which, implying the approval of worthy and judicious critics, is so dear to the lonely and unostentious toiler. Of Mr. Brownlow's original work, especially as a poet, it is enough to say here that he ever aimed high, and in his best work there is much that deserves to live. He rarely published over his own name, though his initials, "E. B. B.," were sometimes appended to communications. It is as "Sarepta" that he is known throughout Canada. As a critic he was sometimes disposed to be severe, but those who had the privilege of knowing him personally need not be told that in his nature malice, envy and all littleness had no place. Mr. Brownlow gave ample evidence of literary judgment during the year in which he edited the third department of Arcadia. As our readers may recall, Arcadia, a journal devoted to music, art and literature, was founded in 1892 by Mr. Joseph Gould, who was also its editor-in chief. Mr. Brownlow was literary editor, and there is but one opinion as to the manner in which he discharged his duties. After Arcadia ceased to engage his attention Mr. Brownlow devoted all his spare energies to the perfection of his work on the sonnet. From the character of such intellectual exertion it is almost needless to say that the two-fold strain—for he was busy at night as well as during the day—was too much for even a strong constitution. Some eighteen months ago he began to feel the consequences. A trip to England failed to bring about the recuperation that his wife and friends so earnestly desired. For nearly twelve months Mr. Brownlow was an invalid. Three months ago there seemed little hope of recovery, and thus gradually the bright life, once so full of vigor and activity, faded into the darkness. With his friends he has left the memory of his happy disposition and strong attachments. In her grief Mrs. Brownlow has the sympathy of all who knew her husband and the unbroken happiness of their union.

Wedded at Wolfville.

There was a large number present, particularly of ladies, at St. John's church, Wolfville, N. S., Wednesday of last week, when Rev. E. W. Simonson, rector of Queensbury and Southampton, N. B., and Miss Alberta Quinn of Wolfville were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. K. C. Hind, assisted by Rev. Canon Brock, D.D., rector of Kentville. The bridesmaids were Miss Amy Pratt of Wolfville and Miss Ella Simonson, sister of the groom, while the groom was supported by Mr. Clarence Quinn, brother of the bride. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Messrs. R. Pratt and Dick Stara acted as ushers. The bride's wedding dress was of white corded silk and trimmings of white lace, satin and satin ribbons, with white veil and bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. The first bridesmaid, Miss Pratt, wore a dress of pale pink crepon, trimmings of white and pink satin ribbons, white net veil, with bouquet of pink carnations. Miss Simonson was attired in pale yellow crepon with yellow satin trimmings and boquet of pink carnations. The groom's present to the bride was a very handsome gold watch and chain, and to the bridesmaids, silver chain bracelets with padlocks and ring. After visiting Digby and Yarmouth they go to Boston and Newport and from thence to Niagara Falls and Toronto. They will remain for a while at Woodstock, Ont., the home of the groom's parents and then settle at their future home, at Temperance Vale, York Co., N. B.

Woodstock citizens by 132 to 20 have voted to reduce their town council from ten to six members who are to be elected by the town at large. The act will go into force next January.

B., well known to many in Fredericton, and who was so badly injured a few weeks ago by the explosion of a gun, was taken to Houlton one day last week, where Dr. Fitzmaurice removed the eye. Nelson was held by the Waterville municipal court on the charge of intent to kill, and placed under $10,000 bonds to await the action of the grand jury at this term of court. On Wednesday Nelson pleaded guilty, waived examination and will be sentenced today.

The case that probably excited the most interest in the King's County Circuit Court this week was the suit of Rev. H. W. Little against the Corporation of Trinity church for services rendered as rector. Judge Tuck urged a settlement out of court, and it finally was effected in the following way: The Corporation of Trinity church is to pay Rev. H. W. Little $1,000; he to have his inhibition removed so he can open the church and preach until February 1st, at which time he is to hand in his resignation; the corporation is also required to give the rev. gentleman a recommendation of good character.

Among the industrial exhibits at the horse show, says a Londonderry, Ireland paper, much interest will, no doubt, be centered in the superb spicmens of needlework sent from the art school, Dalkey. The collection chiefly consists of ecclesiastical vestments embroidered in gold, table centres, etc., in artistic work. The most beautiful object, however, is the cope —executed to order—for presentation by command of the Queen to the Most Rev. Dr. O'Brien, archbishop of Halifax, in recognition of the respect paid by the bishop and clergy on the occasion of the obsequies of the Canadian prime minister, Sir John Thompson.

The fastest time for long distances ever made by steam was achieved by the New York Central and Hudson River railroad on Wednesday. Four hundred and thirty-six and one-half miles in 407 minutes is the new record, which was accomplished by the Central's special train from New York, which left that city at 5.40 that morning and thundered into Buffalo at 12.34 in the afternoon. Previous to this the fastest time ever accomplished had been made a few weeks ago by the London and Northwestern train, which covered the distance between London and Aberdeen, 540 miles, in 512 minutes, an average of 63 1-4 miles an hour. By Wednesday's feat the New York Central has placed the record at 64 1-3 miles an hour.

THE CASE HAS BEEN SETTLED.

What Promised to be An Interesting Suit Withdrawn From the Docket.

[St. John Telegraph.]

A case which promised more than usual interest and which was to be tried at the St. John circuit—now adjourned till the 20th—has it is understood been settled. The plaintiffs in the suit were Street & Co., of St. Andrews, who have an agency in this city, and the defendant was G. F. Gregory, Q. C., the well known Fredericton barrister. The suit was brought to recover balance of an account for liquors supplied to the firm of Davis & Co., of which Mr. Gregory was a partner. The amount in dispute was in the neighborhood of $500, and was the balance of Street & Co's. account at the time Mr. Gregory retired from the business.

The defendants raised a very nice legal question. Mr. Gregory disputed the account, not that it was not exact as to the amount, but that the sale was an illegal transaction and that Messrs. Street & Co. sold him liquors knowing that he had bought them for the purpose of selling them contrary to the law in the drug store, at Fredericton, York county, it being a Scott act county.

Mr. Gregory's pleadings allege that liquors were bought for the purpose of illegal sale, and that Street & Co. were privy to it. Street & Co., on the other hand affirmed that they were not aware that the liquors would be sold in violation of the law, and that no matter how Mr. Gregory may illegally have disposed of the liquor, or what law he violated in so doing, they were entirely ignorant of his intention when they made the sale to him.

The question which was being raised by Mr. Gregory in this case—now abandoned by settlement of it—is something very similar to the case of Patton vs. Russell, tried in Fredericton some few years ago. Russell resisted payment of Patton's account, setting up the plea he was selling liquor illegally, and Patton knowing he was so doing, was equally guilty with himself. Russell got off scot free in that case.
