FREDERICTON, OCTOBER 19, 1885.

THE GOVERNMENT VICTORY!

Mr. Blair and his government have once more survived the opposition attack, and go back to the new legislature with the largest majority ever secured at the polls by any administration in the history of New Brunswick.

The opposition indeed is only a ragged remnant. There are sixteen constituencies in the province, and of these the government have carried the entire representation of thirteen and obtained three of the four seats in another. The opposition won nothing they did not have before, and they have lost one seat in Sanbury and one in Kent. Dr. Stockton could only summon ten followers to his aid in the late house; he will only have eight in the new, and the total representation of the province has been increased from 41 to 46. What a Waterloo!

Some of the features of the contest were the re-election of every member of the government Mr. Blair, Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Tweedie, Mr. Emmons, Mr. White and Mr. LaBilloy by largely increased majorities, the defeat of Mr. Phinney the ablest man in the opposition ranks and the disaster which overtook Mr. Perley. Dr. Stockton will not have enough men to fill the front row of opposition benches, and if he was invited to form a government, after taking out seven of his followers to constitute an executive, and one for speaker, he would not have enough material to move and second the address. Such a condition has the opposition reached under the able generalship of the once mighty Stockton.

The most determined assaults were made to defeat Mr. Emmons and Dr. Lewis in Albert. In machinery with Dr. Weldon the M.P. for the county at its head, but the Chief Commissioner and his colleague, Dr. Lewis called up a majority that must send alarm into the Tory camp at Ottawa.

In Kings, the county was led to believe by the Sun that the greatest social and moral revolution of modern times was in progress to defeat Stockton. General White and his colleagues, but beyond agitating the staff of our St. John contemporary, it does not seem to have struck anywhere. Dr. Stockton and Dr. Alward have spent the last week in Kings, haranguing the electors on the inquiry of Mr. White and the government, and they have a very emphatic answer from the sturdy voters of that fine county.

Poor Mr. Phinney. What a bitter pill for him to swallow in Kent. We should judge that his political career is behind him. Restigouche was said to be a great camping ground for the opposition, and Mr. LaBilloy and Mr. Mott were represented as in the very depths of despair, with certain defeat staring them in the face, but they seem to have turned up all right.

Down in Sanbury the result must be particularly pleasing to the government. Mr. Harrison, an old and tried supporter, comes back with a colleague of his own political faith, and the great Glazier who was going to clean everything out, and the veteran Perley, were left at home. Here's to our friend Dibbles, the hero of Carleton, one of the best abled men in the government party, and one of the dearest men in the legislature. We knew he could do it. The Connell revolt and the Irvine dismissal, etc., did not operate to any extent, and Carleton sends a full government representation.

THE NET RESULTS.

The smoke of Wednesday's election battle has cleared away, and the net results are a triumphant government, and an almost extinct opposition. The only man in Dr. Stockton's ranks who is able to get on his feet and command the serious attention of the legislature, is his colleague, Dr. Alward, and his oratorical efforts are generally of the scrap book variety. Even if numerically weak in the last house, the opponents of Mr. Blair could sustain a debate fairly well for an afternoon and evening, but with Dr. Atkinson gone, Mr. Powell gone and Mr. Phinney gone, there remains nothing but the owl-like wisdom of Dr. Stockton and the silly twaddle of Mr. Pitts.

When Mr. Blair entered the legislature in 1878, the opposition, of which he was elected the leader, numbered six, but it developed before the end of four years into seventeen, and won its first triumph at the polls in 1882. Dr. Stockton's progress as a leader has been in the other direction. He started out a few years ago with a party of fifteen, in a house of forty-one members, and now he commands eight in a legislature of forty-six members. At this rate of progress the Doctor will be a very old man before he becomes premier of New Brunswick.

What the Doctor should do to secure a policy—something besides the scandal cry which has not worked successfully outside of York. A statesman of his pretensions should soar a little higher than writing solemn declarations for Mr. Quinn, and criticizing the price of blotting pads. The events of the past three weeks have confirmed, what Dr. Stockton's course in the legislature indicated, that as a party leader he is entirely without tact or ability, and that he will never be able to rally around him a party of numbers or influence. The public expect more from a political leader than carping criticism and scandal hunting.

THE NEW HOUSE.

The new legislature will be composed of forty-six members, five more than the old, the additional seats going to Madawaska, Victoria, Carleton, Kent, and Gloucester, and there will be quite a number of new faces in front of Mr. Speaker the next session. Restigouche, Northumberland, and Queens, return the old representatives. Seats for three new men, although Mr. Johnson some years ago sat in the Assembly. Westmorland has Mr. Killam and Mr. Wells of the late House, Mr. Richard, who was a member of the legislative council when it was abolished, and Mr. Sumner who has never served as a legislator. Mr. Lockhart is the only new member from St. John city, and Mr. Morrow, of Sanbury, will take his seat for the first time. York sends Mr. Black a stranger in the legislative halls; Carleton tries two new men—Mr. Smith and Mr. McCain; Victoria sends Mr. Porter, who sat for that county during the term before the last, and Mr. Beveridge, whose experience as a member is yet to begin. In Madawaska, Mr. Bertrand is a new man, Mr. Fowler in Kings will take his seat for the first time, and Gloucester is yet to be heard from.

The members of the late assembly who have already seats in the new, are Messrs. Blair, Mitchell, Tweedie, Robinson, Killam, Wells, White, Soivil, Stockton, Alward, Shaw, Dunn, McLeod, Harrison, Fidler, Pitts, Howe, Dibbles, and Martin—twenty-eight. Late members who did not appear for reelection were: Mr. Smith of Westmorland, Mr. Smith of St. John, Mr. Flewelling of Kings and Mr. Allen of York. Dr. Atkinson of Carleton, is dead; Mr. Deird of Victoria, is a senator, and Mr. Powell of Westmorland is in parliament. The old members defeated are Mr. Phinney and Mr. Gogan in Kent, and Mr. Perley in Sanbury.

STANDARD TIME.

Mr. Chestnut's suggestion, that standard time should be adopted generally in Fredericton, is in line with what the Herald has often advocated. The post office is now run on standard time, the same is the case with the telegraph, and there is no reason in the world why our citizens should be compelled to make a mental calculation every time they look at the city hall clock or their watches, to learn if it is time to get the mail or catch a train. The change could be very easily and effectively made without any great disturbance or agitation. If the city council at its next meeting will pass an order to the caretaker of the city hall clock, Mr. Harry White, directing him to turn the hands of that institution back thirty-six minutes, every citizen would soon regulate his time piece by it, and the thing would be done. The present council have often wasted more time than that at a single sitting; here is an opportunity for them to reclaim thirty-six minutes of their lost lives, and at the same time bring about a great convenience to the public.

Let the hands be turned back and if the council and Mr. White don't do it, the Herald nominates Mr. Chestnut to attend to the business. He shall have police protection if there is any opposition.

In Gibson, Marysville, Nashwaak, Stanley, Bloomfield, five districts, with about 1105 votes polled, the opposition ticket came out with about 875, or a majority of 645, with sufficient to have changed the result in four counties in the province—Gleason. (Yes, and if Uncle Sandy had been on the other side of the fence, where he used to be, the majority of 645 would have been with the government. Jimmy has a great head for figure this out for himself.—Herald.)

Hon. J. J. CURRAN, Solicitor General in the Dominion cabinet, was at yesterday's meeting of the government, appointed a judge of the Quebec Supreme court. Curran represented Montreal centre, and while genial, witty, and eloquent, has never been considered a very heavy weight politically. He is in the prime of life. His successor, it is said, will be Hon. J. S. Hall of Montreal.

$1,000,000,000 IN TAXES.

Sir Richard Cartwright, speaking at Morrisburg, Ont., the other day, gave this graphic description of taxation under the N.P. "Within those sixteen years something like one thousand millions of dollars had been extracted from the pockets of the people of Canada under the pretext of administering the public affairs, and for the avowed purpose of fostering certain manufactures. About a thousand million dollars would have built ten railroads from the Atlantic to the Pacific; it would have paid the national debt four times over. If funded and invested at four or five per cent, it would provide for all the taxation the people have to pay today twice over. The average amount that each of the two hundred constituencies in Canada had had to pay during the last sixteen years was no less than $5,000,000. There were four townships in this riding, each one of which had been compelled to pay something like one and a quarter millions into the Federal Treasury, or into the pockets of the protected manufacturer. There were about 4,000 families in this riding, and during these sixteen years every family throughout the riding had been obliged to pay or contribute $1,000 into the pockets of one or other of the two powers. The protected manufacturer or the Federal Treasury."

The same application may be made to the county of York, and yet some of our Tory friends raise the howl of direct taxation against the local government. As so it seems that the other end of the Bathurst school agitation has struck Mr. Phinney. This is the Gleason's explanation for the defeat of that great patriot, who spent so much of his valuable time around the Quinn residence a couple of winters ago.

A nervous count from Winnipeg that two of the Dominion ministers are to visit that city shortly with a view to compromising on the school question, but the despatch adds that Greenway still declares he will not consent to any form of compromise.

The story is current, and quite generally believed, that Finance Minister Foster contributed $2000 or $3000 towards the opposition boodle fund in this county.

Our Mr. Fenely is still working off his bile in the Record. What a beautiful saintly disposition his must be. The Marysville election heeler can give points in coercion to the Tory government of England.

HAD SIX HUSBANDS.

Mrs. Wood began marrying at 14 and kept it up.

The town of Brutus, New York, boasts of a woman who has had six husbands to the altar, the first when she was fourteen years old, and the sixth just now at the age of fifty-five. The woman was Mrs. Mahala Goodfellow when she left there a short time ago to go to Chicago to get a divorce from her husband. There she met and married a man named Wood, of Michigan. Her first husband was a widower with only one child. He died, and she married J. Daniels, forty-one years old, soon Mr. Daniels left for parts unknown. She next married a Dr. Bennett, claiming to have secured a divorce from his first husband, A. Goodfellow, out to be already married, and the next day he also disappeared. A P. Meach was her next husband, a widower and an old neighbor. He died several years later leaving her some property. Mourning his death for three years, she again married another young man, Mr. Goodfellow. She lived with him just four weeks, when they disagreed and she got a divorce. Mr. Wood, her sixth husband, is thirty-four years old and wealthy.

ELECTRICIANS DEATH.

Franklin L. Pope, a Noted Inventor Meets a Tragic End.

An accident struck to the heart of every citizen of Great Barrington, Mass., Sunday, when Franklin L. Pope, an eminent, whose skill has made him prominent throughout the electrical world, lost his life by means of the same mysterious fluid that has made him famous. Mr. Pope was into a room to remedy some trouble in his electric lighting apparatus. Soon afterwards, hearing a noise below, members of the family hastened into the cellar. There the electrician was found lying beside the converter, lifeless. Three thousand volts had passed through his body.

Franklin L. Pope was born 50 years ago in the same house in which he was killed. He was well known the world over as a great electrician and inventor, and to his neighbors in his chosen life work the world owes much. His articles upon electricity have been published in some of the leading science journals of the country.

MISSIONARY MEETING

A Very Interesting Gathering at St. Paul's Church Last Night.

A large number of people representing all denominations gathered for a missionary meeting at St. Paul's Presbyterian church Thursday night, and the address, music were of a most interesting character. The gathering was under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the church, and its primary object was to extend a welcome to Mrs. Morton, wife of the Rev. Dr. Morton, the celebrated Trinidad missionary, and to Mrs. Dodge of Halifax, who had just returned from the Society. The pulpit platform was beautifully decorated with potted plants, and the pulpit itself was fragrant with cut roses, giving a very pretty effect. The chair was taken by Mrs. George McFarlane.

Mrs. George McFarlane, president of the local society, and the services were opened by Rev. Willard Macdonald giving out hymn 299, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains." The choir was re-inforced for the occasion by Miss Winter, Mr. H. G. Winter, Mrs. Travis Cooper and others. A number of city choirs, and sang the old hymn with a vim, opening the evening service with enthusiasm and warmth which continued until the close. Rev. Mr. Macdonald read selections from Psalm 72. Rev. Mr. Payson led the meeting in prayer.

Mrs. Dodge was introduced by Mrs. McFarlane as the first speaker, and her address was an eloquent and pleasing effort. She is the wife of Dr. Dodge a prominent Halifax specialist, and is a lady of commanding presence and very attractive manner. She said, in opening, that she and Mrs. Morton did not appear before the public as types of "The New Woman," but only as two modest wives and mothers who know how to cook and sew, but at the same time felt desirous of forwarding the Master's work, especially among the heathen. She felt somewhat ashamed in being called upon to address so large a gathering, and that she had not appeared before meetings in which there were gentlemen, but only at the women's gatherings. However, she was glad to welcome the sterner sex, and wanted them to become more interested in foreign mission work. Mrs. Dodge expressed herself as delighted with what she had seen of New Brunswick, and was particularly impressed with Fredericton, a very charming picture of which she painted in foreign mission work. Mrs. Dodge expressed herself as delighted with what she had seen of New Brunswick, and was particularly impressed with Fredericton, a very charming picture of which she painted in foreign mission work.

Moquequy Spread Out by Mrs. Dodge, and her reference to the sacrifices made by the poor women of rugged Cape Breton to aid the cause, were pointed and suggestive. Some of them walked nine miles and return to attend the auxiliary society's meetings, and they spin, and are in fear and trepidation for their safety, and are disposed of by the Halifax society, and the proceeds added to the mission fund. Mrs. Dodge's address throughout was conceived in beautiful language and made a deep impression on her hearers.

A duet by Mrs. R. Blackmer and Mrs. A. Massie was finely rendered, and Mrs. McFarlane introduced Mrs. Morton. The distinguished wife of the distinguished Presbyterian missionary is a tall pleasant-looking lady, and before her marriage was Miss Silver, daughter of W. C. Silver, one of the leading business men of Halifax. After her marriage she lived at Bridgewater, N. S., where her husband was settled Presbyterian minister. After a short introduction Mrs. Morton described how Mr. Morton was first led to think of doing missionary work among the Coolies of Trinidad. She described their first voyage to Trinidad, and their subsequent eight years ago in a sailing vessel, and the great discomfort. They were the first laborers among the Coolies, although much work had been done for the blacks of the island. Mr. and Mrs. Morton commenced their labors by getting three children to stop on their doorstep and learn the alphabet. It was a small beginning, but the work grew and prospered until they "now have 55 scholars."

With 5,000 Pupils. Three-quarters of the expense in maintaining these schools is borne by the Trinidad government, and the balance by the W. M. F. Society of the Presbyterian church in Canada. Mrs. Morton gave a bright and interesting sketch of Trinidad, its climate, people, trade, etc. The great interests of the country are sugar planting and cocoa raising. 2,000 Coolies are imported every year from the East Indies by the planters for the sugar plantations, and they now number in Trinidad 80,000 souls. They are very poor, and live in filthy huts where it is pretty difficult to do missionary work, and at the end of their five year's indenture, they drift out to the cities and the more frugal to the crown lands where they become small farmers. They are much more intelligent and susceptible to the word of the blacks, and have a much finer moral tone and sentiment.

The Work of the Missionaries is to teach them in the arts of civilization, to improve their morals and assist their souls, and the work, although meeting with many perplexities, is proceeding in a fairly satisfactory manner. The aim is to make the mission self-sustaining, but three great hindrances to it are the poverty of the people—the great amount of sickness, principally malarial fevers, and worst of all, the low moral tone of the blacks who are very numerous—and while professing Christianity bring discredit on it by their open disregard of its principles. Mrs. Morton told several very amusing instances of the manner in which these people conduct their religious services. One old darkey in praying at a Sunday school service, petitioned the Lord that "desse little childen mill roll from pole to pole till moons shall wax and wane more." A woman who Had Stolen a Goose and after detection was on her way to communion without any visible sign of repentance, when reproached with by Mrs. Morton, replied indignantly that she wasn't going to allow a goose to stand between her and the Lord. Mrs. Morton also told of her efforts to educate bible women and the success attained. The Coolie women have constituted her a regular matrimonial bureau, and she is generally given absolute power in making matches between the sexes. She must hurry home now, for several maidens were waiting for her to choose husbands for them. She had interested herself in this to prevent, when possible, the Christians from women from forming alliances with their heathen brothers. Mrs. Morton's address throughout was listened to with intense interest, and this brief notice does not do anything like justice to her lending points.

CHERRY RIPE.

This is made from the juice of sound, ripe cherries, and is only one of the many delicious syrups that we are serving at our Soda Fountain this season. They say we have the best Soda Water in the city. Our drugs are as good as our soda.

C. FRED CHESTNUT, APOTHECARY, 2 doors above Barker House, Queen Street, Fredericton.

Winters and Mr. L. C. Macdonald sang "Saved by Grace," and a vote of thanks, moved by Mr. Z. R. Everett and seconded by Mr. L. W. Johnston, was tendered Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Dodge.

Rev. Willard Macdonald spoke briefly before the close of the meeting, reciting reminiscences of the Trinidad missionaries Mr. and Mrs. Macrae. He was glad Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Dodge had come to Fredericton, and knew their words would arouse the ladies of St. Paul's society to greater effort in missionary work. It was very near his own heart and appealed to every Christian. The efforts at Trinidad had been greatly blessed, and now that we know more of his character and progress, we should be encouraged to assist to a greater extent than ever before.

The Church's one Foundation, by the choir, and the benediction by Mr. Macdonald closed a most interesting and instructive service.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

An Epitome of the Despatches From All Over.

Isabel Ewan, the two and a half year old daughter of George M. Ewan, manager of the Yarmouth Woolen Mill company, was struck by a Yarmouth electric car yesterday afternoon and received a laceration from which she died a few hours afterwards.

At Chelsea, Mass., yesterday, while her mother was out of the kitchen for a few moments, little Ethel Wilkinson, a few old child, crept up to the stove and her clothes caught fire. When Mrs. Wilkinson returned the baby's body was enveloped in flames and in a short time she was dead.

Corbett and Fitzsimmons are at Hot Springs, Arkansas, preparing for their great fight, which the authorities are trying to prevent. Yesterday Corbett was arrested on a warrant asking that he be put under a peace bond. Corbett refused to give bond and his attorney will apply for a writ of habeas corpus. An interesting sketch of the great fighters is published on our first page.

EVERYTHING

FOR THE HOME.

WE hold a reception daily for ladies and gentlemen who wish to view our stock, compare our prices and get acquainted with us and our methods of doing business. We endeavor to make business between our customers and salesmen as much of a social pleasure as possible. We are always pleased to show our stock, because of the quality of the goods, and the reasonableness of the prices. Our practical and popular plan of periodical payments commends themselves to intending purchasers whose means are as limited as their needs are imperative.

It is a fact worthy of repetition that we make but little charge for being paid for an article in a number of weekly payments instead of a lump sum, and the reason why we can do this is because our turn over is multiplied, and our facilities for buying in large quantities are increased to a very great extent thereby. We think our goods and prices are very tempting, and terms we will make so.
