

I break all silver bonds, nor feel
A shadow of regret,
...let thy future give
Color and form to mine,
Before I part with all for these—question thy soul
To-night for me.

Brought to Justice,
OR—
GRACE HENSON'S ABDUCTION.

BY FRANK A. MARSH.

CHAPTER IV.

"Well Vocho, why have you returned without Maria? Where is she?" demanded Quarillo, as the dwarf entered the cave.

CHAPTER V.

When Maria fell into the water, she felt herself borne rapidly down stream.
The current swept close to the shore, and she managed to grasp hold of a projecting rock before she was carried to the lake.

CHAPTER VI.

"I am not a spy; and even if I were arrested, no one could prove that I ever committed any crime."
"You don't look as though you'd committed a murder. It's not your fault that you are an outlaw daughter but it would not be well for anyone in H— to know who you are, or you might get into trouble."

CHAPTER VII.

A large number of persons have had their eyes opened by poverty, the greatest bringing all their friends discovered and praised; while poor they had views which ranked at them intangible to their old companions.
Sugared fortune always bring the fire, sugared misfortune always drives them away.
Here is a dirge on the subject—
"When I was young and vigorous and healthy,
I knew not what it was to pine or sigh;
The world seemed made for me when I was wealthy."

CHAPTER VIII.

At a hall at Long Branch there was an immense concourse of people. A lady who had been jammed against the trunk of a man, and who had been caught the trimming of her cloak in the button of a gentleman's coat. Arreiving toward around a few minutes in this sort of way, she remarked to her involuntary captor, "I'd thank you, sir, not to pull my cloak off me!" "Good gracious, madame!" he replied, "I hope you will excuse me; but I'm just as anxious to keep my clothes on as you are."

Three Women Perish.

A terrible scene was witnessed a short time since at the burning of a large building in Birmingham, England, occupied by a Mr. Dennison and family.
The flames soon gained possession of the entire building, cutting off all escape by the staircase. Presently Mr. and Mrs.
Dennison, in night attire, with their infant child, were seen by the glare of the wildly gesticulating at the third floor, and bedroom, which was some distance from the ground. Neither the engines or fire-escape had yet arrived, and the crowd, which now numbered some thousands of persons, appeared to be momentarily paralyzed by the greatness of the tragedy.
