LOCAL NEWS.

WANTED.—At this office a copy of the HERALD of July 7th, 1877.

THE FORTY HOURS DEVOTION commenced at the Cathedral yesterday morning.

THE AUSTIN PROPERTY at Indiantown was offered for sale yesterday by Mr. Hampton but was withdrawn. Cause, no bids.

A SPECIAL MEETING of the St. Malachi's T. A. [illegible] Society will be held in St. Malachi's hall to-morrow afternoon.

SOME RUFFIANS entered the Fredericton Catholic Cemetery on Sunday night last and broke several tombstones.

A THEATRICAL COMPANY, under the management of E. A. McDowell, will open a Dramatic season at the Mechanic's Institute early in May.

THE CATHOLIC CHORAL SOCIETY of Calais under the management of Madame Maud Russell, celebrated St. Patrick's day by a grand musical entertainment.

FALL.—A child belonging to a Mr. Corbett, Indiantown, fell out of a window 20 feet from the ground on Monday last and strange to say received very little injury.

STRAIGHT SHORE ROBBERY.—The two Frenchmen charged with stealing $35 from a boarder in Mr. Voto's house Straight Shore will be heard at the Portland Police Court this morning.

SUDDEN DEATH.—A Miss Convoy was found dead in bed in her house on the Marsh road at an early hour on Monday morning. A Coroner's Jury returned a verdict of "Death from suffocation."

CURIOUS CHARGE.—At the city police court on Tuesday Gustave Wolfe was charged with throwing a red hot poker at John Golden, which hit him in the eye. He was remanded until to-day, when if he does not pay Golden $80 and a fine of $20 he will be sent to gaol for two months.

Climo's ever-popular Photographs, at liberal prices, are made at 13 Charlotte street (Jack's Building). His beautiful prize stereoscopic views (all saved) of New Brunswick scenery, and St. John before the fire, can also be had at above address and of dealers.

THE Young Canadian, a monthly paper published at the Gleaner office, Chatham, for Mr. S. B. Patterson, Jr., has been received. It presents a neat appearance. The selections are very appropriate, the typographical appearance very creditable, and the paper as a whole is worthy of the support of our young Canadians, for whom it is specially intended.

THANKS.—We have been requested by the St. Joseph's Society, Portland, to convey through the HERALD their thanks to Mrs. McGuire, the Misses McCarthy, Miss Dever Messrs. H. Campbell, C. J. Tommey and F. Keenan—members of the St. Peter's Church Choir—and to the organist, Miss E. Morgan, for their services at High Mass on last Tuesday morning.

ACCIDENTS.—A colored woman named Keltie, living in a house on Duke street, was badly burned about the face and chest on Tuesday [illegible] by the explosion of a lamp. A young man named Backer, was severely injured by falling from Grand Falls Bridge [illegible]. James Clark, a workman in Harris Allan's Foundry, Water street, was badly burned about the face and breast while working at the furnace on Thursday morning.

A FUSS was observable in front of McKeever's building, Main St., Portland, on Wednesday forenoon. Crowdie, hairdresser, had been in arrears for shop rent. McKeever offered him his choice either to leave his [illegible] come under the constable's hammer or go forth, nothing to pay. After a time the constable appearing he accepted the latter condition. He was assisted(?) by McKeever and others to put his things out on the side walk. Crowdie was under the influence of "the cup which inebriates but does not cheer."

THE COMMERCIAL HOTEL of St. Stephen, a new house that has just been opened in that place by Mr. Geo. Foster, is a new departure in St. Stephen enterprise. The proprietor, awake to the fact of the large and increasing circulation of the HERALD, takes advantage of its columns as an advertising medium. We direct attention to his card in our advertising columns. In connection with the house will be found fine sample rooms and one of the largest and best equipped livery stables in the Province, under the management of Eagan & McGarrity.

LECTURES.—The last few days have been very prolific in lectures and lecturers. St. Patrick's night three addresses of note were delivered. In St. John, Mr. R. F. Quigley read a long, learned and eloquent paper on Pius IX., before an audience of nearly five hundred people in St. Malachi's Hall. Mr. Quigley's first effort gives promise of much for the future. The same evening Ald. J. C. Ferguson, a very eloquent and accomplished speaker, addressed a large audience in St. Dunstan's Hall, Fredericton, under the auspices of the St. Dunstan's Temperance Society. Mr. Ferguson's success was, we are glad to hear, very great. At Woodstock, Mr. D. Gallagher lectured before the St. Gertrude's T. A. Society and delighted his hearers. Altogether the display of eloquence and learning on St. Patrick's day has been greater and more universal than at any other period in the history of N. B. Another highly interesting lecture was delivered by Mr. P. Nannary in St. Malachi's Hall, on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of St. Joseph's Society. The members of the society and a few of their friends who assisted were amply repaid. It is understood that Mr. Nannary will lecture before the St. Malachi's Society shortly.

We [illegible] delivered by [illegible] Tilley, R. J. Ritchie, Esq., President of the N. B. C. T. A. Union and the Clergy in Carleton, [illegible] night were productive of much good in Temperance ranks. We have only space to name the different lectures, readings and addresses delivered during the last few days, but from the names and subjects we note above our readers will see that the end of lectures, etc., here is not yet.

HERALD one dollar per year in advance.

ST. PATRICK.

On Sunday evening last, the Very Rev. Father Connolly, V.G., delivered a very able and eloquent sermon on St. Patrick, in the Church of Assumption Carleton. After a few preliminary remarks he said: Princes and Kings and potentates are considered by the world great men, and no doubt are of the same opinion regarding themselves: their command is potential; to hear it is to obey. They do not consider that they are but the instruments of the Almighty who uses them for his own wise purposes. At one time there was four Kings in Ireland, and one of them was called Niall, who according to history, was a famous warrior. The Niall was asked by his neighbors, the Scots, to bring an army to Scotland, in order that they might be aided in driving back the Romans who had invaded that country. With them [illegible] advance of the Romans, he with his army crossed to the continent where he fought many battles, in all of which he was victorious, and doubtless would have fought many more when he fell, not by a shot from the enemy, but by sickness which proved fatal.

After the death of their leader the soldiers returned towards their home, and on their way they plundered and pillaged cities and towns, and also took many of the inhabitants prisoners, whom they afterwards sold in Ireland as slaves. Amongst the prisoners taken was a youth, 15 years of age, whom they captured in Brittany, in France. This youth was bought by a man in the North of Ireland, who compelled him to perform the most menial labor to herd cows and tend hogs. The boy was a Christian. He had been instructed in the Holy Catholic Faith by his parents, in his home in Brittany. He remained in Ireland as the slave of his owner for 7 years, during which time he studied the manners, language and habits of the Irish people. Being a Christian, he accepted resignedly his humble lot as the will of Providence, and bore the indignities which he suffered with patience, in humble imitation of his Divine Master. After 7 years of servitude the boy, now a man, had a dream, in which he was told to escape from his master and go to a certain part of the coast. This advice he followed, and on his reaching the coast he found a vessel ready to set sail; she seemed to be providentially there at the time. He went on board and arrived at his home in Brittany. His devout spirit induced him to enter college, and study in order to prepare himself for the priesthood; and at the age of 40 [illegible] a Bishop of the Catholic Church. His sanctity of life, and his holiness made his name famous, spreading it abroad until it reached the ears of the Pope, who sent for him. He obeyed the call of the Holy Father and presented himself before him. The Pope hearing from him the story of his previous life, saw in him an apostle for the conversion of the Pagan Irish. The highest title conferred on a person in Rome was that of Patricius, which translated means Patrick. This title the Pope conferred on him, calling him by the name Patrick and commissioning him to go preach to the Irish, baptizing them in the name of the Father, &c. [illegible], Patrick landed on the shores of Ireland. He found not a savage people, but a people with an established priesthood, men versed in [illegible] of Ireland, according to [illegible] were learned men. The Irish were [illegible] by their religion [illegible] of the body, and it was to combat this false doctrine that Patrick began his mission in Ireland. He preached the Catholic faith, its penances, its mortifications of the flesh, &c.

Before a King and his courtiers and priests, he explained the trinity by the figure of Shamrock. When the King said he [illegible] understand the trinity, he stooped down and plucking a shamrock, held it up to their view. Taking a leaf from the shamrock and leaving two, he showed what remained didn't constitute a shamrock; showed shamrock, three leaves in one stock; the trinity, three persons and one God. He continued his mission for 40 years, during which time he travelled the whole island converting every one in it, until it was called the Island of Saints. Churches, schools, religious institutions sprang up over the island. All converted without shedding a drop of blood. No nation so received the true faith except through blood of martyrs, but Ireland. Many nations have received the true faith, and some have lost it. No greater misfortune can fall on a nation, when they [illegible] their indifference to God He withdraws His grace from them, and they lose the true faith; For what does it profit a man if he gain the whole world and loses his own soul. The Irish have never lost the faith, never for a moment. Through the centuries of terrible persecution they suffered for its sake, and I trust in God they never will; and the descendants of those Irish, who lost everything, even [illegible] we see around us to-day, have the same feeling for the faith as their fathers of old had. They are willing, and always gave proof, that out of their scanty means for the honor and glory of God [illegible] holy faith, they are ready to make sacrifice. Patrick, at the age of 80 years, died at Down, where he is buried.

A WHAT'S IN A NAME? There is a great deal in a name. It is said that a lady, who at one time achieved a very fair measure of [illegible] literature, was for a long time unable to obtain any recognition of her merits as a writer. She wrote tales and poems which she was quite sure were as good as others that received warm praise, but they attracted no attention. Finally she made complaint on the subject to Mr. N. P. Willis, who was, in those days, a [illegible] literary autocrat. "Why," said he, "the trouble is with your name, people won't read poems written under the name of Chuppuck. Take 'Jenny [illegible]' as your nom de plume, and see if you do not have better success." The advice was followed, and "Fanny [illegible]" stories and poems became immediately popular.—Exchange.

On the 19 ult., the town and suburbs of Tipperary were illuminated in honor of Mr. John O'Leary, Fenian exile, who arrived from Paris. The amateur brass band played several appropriate airs. Mr O'Leary has permission from the Government to visit Tipperary for the purpose of arranging about some house property belonging to him.

It is reported that several Home Rule members of Parliament contemplate the presentation of a petition to the Crown for the discharge of the eight remaining prisoners. Though the crimes actually perpetrated involved in the loss of life and other serious consequences, still it is not improbable that the Government may ultimately remit a part of the unfulfilled sentences on these men.

A pastoral has been issued by his eminence Cardinal Cullen in reference to the bill which Government purposes to introduce respecting intermediate education in Ireland. The letter expresses regret that the Government has not undertaken to redress the grievances of Catholics in reference to primary and university education. It characterizes Mr. Gladstone's scheme as one for forcing on the country the system which the holy see has condemned as intrinsically dangerous to the faith and morals of the Catholic population.

John O'Higgin recently died at Annacarriga, in the parish of Ogonelloe, at the advanced age of 105 years. He was a native of [illegible], in the county of Galway. In the year 1798 he was imprisoned in Galway gaol for his supposed connection with the movement of that eventful year. During the first days of his incarceration he was pampered by the prison authorities, but on the subsequent days he was half starved, their object being to get or extort information from him. He was married a third time at the age of 84 years.

The consumption of horse-flesh as human food in Paris is rapidly on the increase. In 1866 there were 2,758 horses, asses, and mules slaughtered in Paris for consumption; in 1872, 5,732; in 1875, 5,865; and in 1877, 10,008 horses, 558 asses, and fifty three mules. The animals killed in the last year yielded 1,939,490 kilogrammes of meat without counting the tongue, heart and intestines, which are eaten like those of oxen. At present there are in Paris sixty-one horse-butchers and a branch establishment is about to be opened in London.
