HEALTH OR SICKNESS!

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady, whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

USED THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

ALARMING DISORDERS.

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infirmity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alterative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

GENERAL WEAKNESS—NERVOUS COMPLAINTS.

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and healing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victim of general debility.

DELICATE FEMALES.

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

SCIENTIFIC ENDORSEMENTS.

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Female Complaints	Piles
Bowel Complaints		Stone and Gravel
Coughs	Heaches	Secondary
Colds	Indigestion	Symptoms
Chest Diseases	Influenza	Venereal Affections
Costiveness	Inflamation	Worms, of all kinds.
Dyspepsia	Indward Weakness
Diarrhœa	Liver Complaints
Dropsy
Debility
Fever and Ague	Lowness of spirits

Keating's Cough Lozenges

A SAFE AND CERTAIN REMEDY FOR

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness,

AND OTHER AFFECTIONS OF THE

THROAT AND CHEST.

IN INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, AND WINTER COUGH they are unfailing. Being free from every hurtful ingredient, they may be taken by the most delicate female or the youngest child; while the PUBLIC SPEAKER and PROFESSIONAL SINGER will find them invaluable in allaying the hoarseness and irritation incidental to vocal exertion, and also a powerful auxiliary in the production of MELODIOUS ENUNCIATION.

Prepared and sold in Boxes, and Tins, of various sizes, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., No. 79, St. Paul's Church Yard, London. Sold retail by all Druggists in the whole world.

N. B.—To prevent spurious imitations, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraven on the Government Stamp of each box, without which none are genuine.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL.

34, Wine street, Bristol.

Sir,—It is with much pleasure I have to inform you of the benefit I received from your Lozenges. I was attacked with the typhus fever, during which time I had a violent cough, so that it kept me awake the greater part of the night. A friend persuaded me to try a box of your "COUGH LOZENGES" which I did and am happy to say that with only one box of your valuable compound I was quite free from cough.

You can make what use of this you please, for I think such valuable medicine ought not to go unnoticed.

I remain, Sir, your obedient Servant,

LIVERPOOL OAKUM.—Landing ex "John Duncan"—5 Tons Liverpool OAKUM. For Sale by JOHN WALKER,

MY FIRST PATIENT.

A SCRAP FROM A PHYSICIAN'S DIARY.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

One beautiful spring morning I sat down at my desk to write a letter to my friend Burchard. I informed him that I had surmounted every difficulty—that I had passed my examination with extraordinary success and honor, and that I had received my diploma with feelings not only of gratitude, but with a deep sense of the responsibility I had taken, or was about to take, upon myself. I furthermore informed him that I wished to enter into practice at once, and would be be kind enough to tell me of some place where there was a good opening? After my signature I put an enormous M. D., and then folded the letter—directed it, and dropped it into the post. In a few days I received an answer, in which my friend after a due amount of flattery and encouragement, informed me that there was an excellent opening at Popham. He said he had had an eye on it for some time with especial reference to myself. He also sent a letter of introduction to one of the most influential men in the place, whom, he said, that I would find honorable and trustworthy.

As soon as I could settle up my affairs at college, I posted off for Popham, which I found to be a thriving country village, beautifully situated upon a small stream with plenty of noble mountains around it. There was one physician in the place, but he was an old man, and had laid by a snug little fortune from his practice. I called upon him, and he said he was glad I was coming for he had done about as much work as he cared for. I engaged rooms with a respectable widow lady—laid in a good stock of drugs and medicines—made the best possible show of my charts and pictures—left such of my surgical instruments in sight as would be likely to attract attention, and then put out my "shingle."

The first day I spent alone in my office, if I except one or two visits from my landlady, who came to see how I liked my room. On the second day an old lady called in to inquire if I was from York State. I told her I was, and she then wanted to know if I could tell her anything of her son John. What was his other name? I asked.—"John Wobblepep." No, I never heard of the name before. She answered me that John was in York State somewhere, and she as much as hinted that he was a good-for-nothing scape-grace, remarking at the same time, that he might turn up to be a lawyer or a doctor yet.

On the next day a young man called upon me, and from the thickly padded bandage about his face, I judged he had the toothache. And so it proved. One of his molars "had been jumpin' all night," he said. I brought forth my instruments, and at the sight of them his tooth became suddenly quiet, and he concluded not to have it out.

And so four days passed away, and I had not a patient; but on the morning of the fifth day the sky brightened a bit. I had just finished my breakfast, and had sat down over a book, when my bell was rang, and presently the landlady, who happened to be in the hall, opened my door and introduced the caller. He was a small, pale, nervous looking man, somewhere about fifty years of age, with a keen, brilliant, restless eye, and an intelligent face. He sat down without speaking, and as I cast my eyes towards the door, I saw my hostess beckoning to me. I went to her, and she whispered in my ear—

"That's old Guilford—Peter Guilford." And then she went away.

What did she mean? Why did she whisper so mysteriously? I was on the point of following her, to inquire if there was anything peculiar about my visitor, when he spoke to me.

"You are the doctor?" he said.

"Yes," I told him, resuming my seat at the table.

"Are you at leisure?"

"Entirely so," I answered.

"Well," he resumed in a lower key, and, as I thought, with some tremulousness in his speech, "I have a case which I wish you to attend to.—If you will come with me you shall be made acquainted with all the circumstances."

"What sort of a case is it? What is the disease?" I asked.

"You must come and see for yourself," he replied. "It is a very curious case, and has baffled them all thus far. You must see to it."

"Then it is something very intricate," I suggested.

"Not at all," he said. "On the contrary, it is very simple and plain; but none of them dare to undertake the operation."

"Ah! a case for surgery?"

"Yes. You are a surgeon?"

I professed to be, and I was, for I had dissected every part of the human frame, and knew all its ramifications, besides having assisted at many critical operations.

"My name is Peter Guilford. You may have heard of me," the man said.

I told him I had never heard the name before to my recollection, only as the landlady introduced him. He said he was glad of that, for I could attend to the case without prejudice.

"If you should succeed, or if you will make a fair trial," he then added, "you shall be amply rewarded. Now come with me."

I had detected from the first that my visitor was not of a perfectly sound mind, but I could not see anything in his speech or manner that was at all out of the way. It was only in his eye, and about the corners of his mouth, that I could discover the signs of mental difficulty. Yet I resolved to go with him. There could be no harm, if there was no good; so I put on my hat and I followed him from the house. As we passed along the street, I noticed that the people watched him narrowly, and I thought they regarded me with a sort of pitying look. At the first this troubled me much, but I soon overcame that, and, moved partly by curiosity, I kept on.

Finally the old man stopped before a cottage-built house, which was surrounded by a very fine flower garden, while beyond was a magnificent orchard, containing fruit trees of every possible variety that could flourish in that climate. He passed up the garden to the broad piazza, and having opened the door, he bade me enter first.—I did so, and he then waited upon me into a well furnished apartment, containing quite a valuable library, and several choice paintings.
