

A dark, textured horizontal band, possibly a book cover or a scan artifact. It appears to be a close-up of a material with a grainy, fibrous texture, possibly leather or a heavy book cloth. The lighting is uneven, with a lighter, more textured area on the left and a darker, smoother area on the right. There are some small, light-colored specks and fibers visible throughout the material.

The texture of the dark area is grainy and uneven, while the light band is relatively uniform and bright. The overall composition is simple and abstract, focusing on light and shadow.
