ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., OCTOBER 24, 1901.

IT WILL BE BUILT.

It is suggested that a grand concert might be given in the exhibition building for the benefit of the soldiers' monument fund. This idea may or may not be acceptable, but in some way the monument scheme must be carried through. Other things have lately taken the attention of the people away from this patriotic enterprise, but it has not been forgotten or given up. Nova Scotia has already raised the ten thousand dollars required for a monument in commemoration of the soldiers from that province who fell in Africa. The foundation of this structure was laid by the Duke of Cornwall on Saturday last, and the monument itself will soon be in place. New Brunswick will be behind in point of time, for as yet no opportunity has been given to the schools as was done in Nova Scotia, and the people have not been personally asked for contributions.

ANOTHER ADDRESS NEEDED.

In his farewell message the Duke of Cornwall and York makes mention of "the train built specially for the occasion by the Canadian Pacific railway," which he describes as "a marvel of convenience and comfort." It is fortunate that the duke did not use the Ohio creation ordered for him by Mr. Blair, for then he would have gone away convinced that Canadians could not build suitable cars. It is bad enough to have our minister of railways filled with that vain idea without communicating it to the royal family. But though the duke's message makes no mention of the car which the people of Canada bought for him it is not necessary that it should go unpraised. The Duke of Cornwall is not the only man who can write addresses. Why should not Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who has taken the Ohio car for his own private use, issue a formal address to the Canadian people, telling them how he likes it?

ASSURANCES OF PEACE.

On the authority of Count Lamsdorff, according to a press despatch, the relations between Russia and Japan are quite amicable, and there is no basis for the rumor of the likelihood of war. If this is true it means that Russia is not prepared for extreme action. It has generally been her course to proceed as far as possible with her plans for acquiring territory. If her work is not noticed a temporary occupation becomes permanent. Should her plan be foreseen and met swiftly and with determination, it has been the general rule for Russia to suavely explain the situation. The blame is openly placed upon some subordinate, and her statesmen sit down to quietly work out to the end in view by another and if possible more plausible way. In the light of past experiences her agreement with Japan to make Korea a sort of buffer state may be taken for what it is worth. In respect to its situation this country occupies a position between Japan and Russia similar to that of Afghanistan between British East India and the possessions of the czar.

MISS STONE'S ABDUCTION.

The accounts of the recent abduction of Miss Stone, together with the uncertain reports as to her whereabouts and safety, have created in all minds not only a feeling of anxiety for her, but one of intense anger against her captors. The story which has lately been circulated to the effect that she willingly gave herself up to them in order that by the ransom demanded their circumstances would be improved is scarcely worthy of notice. Miss Stone's abductors have been living for a long time in a country where Christianity is supposed to be the ruling religion. They have been quite able to take advantage of the teachings of the missionaries and have professed to do so, but now, by their latest outrage, they have shown that their pretensions were altogether hypocritical, and in place of acting up to the dictates of their professed belief they have come out in their true colors. The conduct of these people seems to show that they are of lower principle than almost any others among whom missionaries from Christian countries have labored. It is, of course, true that in endeavoring to revolutionize their social ideas by the work of missionaries the religious people of this and other countries are only following the teachings of the Bible, but it does seem as though different measures would be more satisfactory and that after Miss Stone's release from captivity, instead of offering prayers for the conversion of her abductors swift punishment would have a more potent effect upon their brutal natures. In this connection the Hamilton Times says that female missionaries are not needed in that country so much as a strong military force backed by a hard-working hangman. At all events when Miss Stone is released she should remain in a place where there will be no danger of a second abduction.

The American people have most generously contributed the amount of her ransom this time, but they won't feel like doing it again. Besides this, paying ransoms for missionaries is a bad precedent, for the knowledge that they can receive almost any amount demanded in such cases will be liable to lead semi-civilized peoples to further outrages of this sort.

JUG HANDLED QUARANTINE.

Can any person explain why there is a rigid quarantine against vessels arriving at St. John from the United States and no provision whatever to prevent contagion coming into the city or province by train? If it is really intended to watch the avenues by which the disease may reach New Brunswick from the States, why should one route be so closely guarded and all the rest left wide open, unless it is known that small-pox has shown a special preference for water routes. The boards of health and Dr. Montizambert should either relieve the steamship companies and the sailing vessels of the inconvenience to which the regulations now expose them, or should make their inspection more general.

The closing exercises of the two hundredth anniversary of Yale were held yesterday, and the function was brought to a triumphant close. The roll of those who yesterday received honorary degrees from the great college is a famous one. Yale has contributed many men to public affairs, and in all of the different professions she has been conspicuously represented by her graduates. The tribute paid to the institution was not only from the United States, but from England, Canada, Europe and the Far East. In her two hundred years of life the university has through her graduates been united with many countries.

THE KAPLAN MURDER.

Preliminary Examination Concluded at Barrington Yesterday.

BARRINGTON, Oct. 23.—The preliminary examination in the case of Julius Rill, charged with the murder of Nathan Kaplan at Clark's Harbor, Oct. 7th, began here at 10 a. m. yesterday before Stipendiary Watson, and ended today in his committment for trial.

Drs. Brown and Freeman gave expert testimony at some length as to the condition of the man when found, the nature of the wound and the cause of death. Other witnesses swore that the prisoner bought a black mask on Friday preceding the day of the murder, and that a mask corresponding to it in color and make was seen in his room in the hotel early Monday night, and found torn to pieces in Kaplan's store next day. Conrad Burns testified that the prisoner had bought a revolver which was found under the bridge, 40 yards from the scene of the murder, and was produced in court and identified as far as could be by the witness as the one he sold the prisoner. Witness was handed the box of cartridges found in prisoner's trunk in Kaplan's store, and pronounced them also similar to those he had sold the prisoner. Four of the cartridges in the box had the ends chipped to make them fit the chambers of the Young American revolver. The four shells taken from the revolver found as described above, were chipped in the same way. This was the case also with the bullet found on the floor of the prisoner's room at the hotel, and with the bullet taken from the brain of the deceased.

This was the most sensational evidence of the day, and the prisoner quailed visibly while it was being brought out. He began to show increasing anxiety, and eagerly scanned the faces of the witnesses.

The principal witness called by the crown this forenoon was Isaac Kaplan of Yarmouth, brother of the murdered man. He had known prisoner only four months previous to his going into business with Nathan Kaplan. The prosecution brought forward two letters written in jargon, and addressed to witness, but found among the prisoner's effects after the murder. Witness read and translated the letters, which were written by Nathan Kaplan. One was dated Oct. 2nd, and stated that thirty dollars was sent in it for the latter's wife. Witness never received either letter or money, which had been intrusted to Julius Rill at Clark's Harbor to be forwarded. In a letter dated Oct. 7th, Nathan Kaplan complained to his brother that he could not get along with Rill. This letter was also never sent, but was found on the counter the morning after the murder.

The defence waived the right to call witnesses. The prisoner was then committed for trial at the spring term of the supreme court.

OTTAWA.

The department of militia was notified today of the following casualties to Canadians in South Africa: Harvey Gale Milne died from enteric fever at Pietrusburg, on Monday. His next of kin is J. Z. Milne, Q'Appelle Station. Trooper J. B. Dewolfe, dangerously ill of enteric fever at Bloemfontein, son of J. Dewolfe, Ingersoll. Henry Tunstead, reported missing last week, has rejoined his troop.

The total shipments of hay from Canada to South Africa on account of orders received from the imperial war office, will up to the end of next month aggregate 106,000 tons of 2,240 lbs. Of this quantity, 85,00 tons will have been shipped since the first of February of the present year. Four or five consignments are to be sent during the month of November.

YORK THEATRE.

Opened With a Delightful Concert by the Fadettes Woman's Orchestra.

If the opening concert given in York Theatre may be taken as an index of the quality of entertainment to follow, the new management and the public are alike to be congratulated. The Fadettes Woman's Orchestra of Boston provided the inaugural entertainment last night before a large audience and scored a decided and deserved triumph, every selection both of the orchestra and the soloists drawing instantaneous and hearty applause and in nearly every instance an enthusiastic and repeated encore.

The Fadettes provided a delightful concert in every respect. The semi-circular assembly of young ladies grouped around their instruments forms a charming picture to begin with, and every member of the orchestra is an artist. Under the able conducting of Miss Nichols, their concerted work, both in classical and popular music was splendid, and the instrumental and vocal solos were of equally high class.

Miss Mary Reuck-Wilczek, the first violin, led the orchestra with grace and spirit, and in her solos showed a sympathy of touch and mastery of technique that won her a high place in the hearts of her audience. Miss Rogers, the vocalist, has a sweet contralto voice of good range and power, and pleased her hearers greatly with her various selections.

The Fadettes will return to the city Saturday and give a matinee performance, leaving on the evening train for Montreal.

NO FAREWELL FOR LORIMER.

At a meeting of the executive committee of Tremont Temple, Dea. O. M. Wentworth, the chairman, presiding, to discuss the farewell reception to Dr. Lorimer, it was, according to the Boston Herald, ascertained that he had suggested giving it up entirely, as it would be too pathetic for him and for the people. Instead of the reception, a prayer meeting will be held Friday evening in Converse Hall. Baptism will be administered to several candidates at that time by Dr. Lorimer.

On Sunday there will be services morning and evening, when Dr. Lorimer will preach. Sunday afternoon there will be a communion service, at which it is expected every member will be present who is able, as it will be Dr. Lorimer's last service of the kind as pastor.

There have been many reports circulated as to possible pastors for Tremont Temple. The executive committee has declared that neither that body nor the committee on pulpit supplies had considered the name of any minister, and none would be considered until Dr. Lorimer leaves.

VERY OLD POST OFFICE.

The old familiar place known to every traveller on the North Shore as MacDougall's post office, has changed hands, says the Chatham Commercial. When the government established a mail service on the north side of the river, about eighty years ago, the MacDougall homestead at Oak Point was chosen as the post office, and the position of postmaster and postmistress remained in the MacDougall family through all the long years, until Monday, when Mr. Dickie, who recently purchased the MacDougall farm, took charge of the office, which still remains at the well known house. It is doubtful if there is another post office in the county that has remained with one family for such a number of years.

PLEASED WITH THE TRIP.

Major Templeton has returned from his trip to St. John, says the Chatham Commercial. He was one of the veterans' guard for the Duke of York. "The celebration was something grand," said the major. He was delighted with the trip and spoke in high terms of the courteous treatment received, especially at the hands of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. MacLaren. "Yes," said the major, 'that MacLaren is a fine fellow, and is right full up of John Bull."

Now, Mary, if you'd make yourself

Just bring to me a cup of tea,
A cup of Union Blend.

AN INTERESTING SEQUEL.

ST. STEPHEN, N. B., Oct. 23.—A sequel to the recent McLaughlin murder trial at St. Andrews was enacted in Calais yesterday. The prisoner, Geo. H. McLaughlin, was acquitted largely through the testimony of Lydia, widow of Harris McLaughlin, whose death caused the trial. Her evidence established an alibi for the prisoner. Yesterday afternoon George H. McLaughlin and the widow were married by S. D. Morrell, city clerk of Calais.

HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 23.—The Halifax reception committee met last night to settle accounts. The appropriation by the city was $3,000, and there is a balance on hand of $15. At the same time the city fathers are congratulating themselves that the reception was a first class one.

Doctors Like It.

For over twenty years Vapo-Cresolene has received the unqualified support of the medical profession; we feel very proud of this. Physicians everywhere realize the importance of this direct way of treating all throat affections. Put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light lamp beneath, and then breathe in the healing and germ destroying vapor. It is the doctor's prescription now for whooping cough, frequently curing it in a few days.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. Vapo-Cresolene Co., 180 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

KIPLING ON TWO GENERALS.

Mr. Kipling on the Appointments to The First and Second Army Corps.

(London Spectator.)

To the Editor of the Spectator:

Sir,—In your protest against the appointments of Generals Buller and Wood to command the First and Second Army Corps, it seems to me you have missed one aspect of the case—its likeness to the aged anecdote of the man with the ferret-bag of whom a fellow-traveller inquired the contents. "Mongoose," was the answer. "My brother sees snakes, and I'm taking the mongooses up to kill them." "But your brother doesn't see real snakes." "No, but these aren't real mongooses." Three or four years ago we should have accepted both imaginary army corps and imaginary generals as serious additions to our defences; but in the past twenty-four months we have been manufacturing a real army, etc. in South Africa. Thanks to "God and the Mauser," we have there now large bodies of men habituated to the use of arms, as well as leaders who possess certain experience of the conditions of actual warfare. Not a few of the latter have by this date acquired sympathy, insight and comprehension as regards matter that touch their professional work and the needs of the nation. In like manner, each according to his lights, but all more or less, the rank and file have imbibed new notions of detail and aims of war.

Behind these men—it is well to remember—stand a large proportion of the English people intimately connected with them by means of the penny post, and through that post informed with minuteness of the defects in fact and in essence of the system under which their kin are employed. They have paid no small price in money and in blood that there might be born an army, handled by fit and proven leaders. They feel that the nomination to vital commands of the generals above mentioned is, perhaps, an inadequate return for their outlay. The step suggests a revival of certain impenitent and unlearned methods which they have been many times assured the nation has abandoned for ever. It seems to indicate that, in spite of the pledges of the government, the whole army machine is to be hauled back as soon as may be to the old ruts of impotence, pretence and collapse. Men see that the chosen commanders are not quite in touch with the real army, which with a little tact and a little seriousness might so easily survive. It is not the triviality or inaptitude displayed in this matter that appals, but the cynical levity,

I am, sir, etc.,
RUDYARD KIPLING.

SCOTT'S TRYSTING-TREE.

An event of considerable literary interest took place in Harthill-walk, near Todwick, a picturesque village on the confines of the West Riding of Yorkshire, a short time ago, the Duke of Leeds planting a young oak-tree on the exact spot where for centuries had stood the famous trysting-tree, mentioned so frequently in Ivanhoe. Readers of Scott's romance will remember that the trysting-tree was the headquarters of Locksley and his outlaw band, the Black Knight, Gurth born thrall of Cedric, and Mamba, son of Witless, when they besieged Front de Boeuf's Castle of Torquilstone. It stood in an open glade in Sherwood Forest, in a sylvan amphitheatre, "about three arrow flights distant," as Scott tells us, "from Torquilstone." A monarch of the woods, its decayed trunk shot up into the air until close upon a year ago, a silent witness of the time when Merrie Sherwood covered this part of Yorkshire. The trunk was dug out by Mr. Mosey, agent to the Duke of Leeds, on whose estate it stood, with a view to its preservation and the planting in its place of a young oak grown from an acorn dropped by the celebrated major oak.

MINISTERS SWIMMING.

(Portland News.)

A whole faithful of Congregational ministers! This may sound undenominational, but it's a glaring truism. It appears that among other courtesies extended to the visiting clergymen, Sec. E. T. Garland, as chairman of the entertainment committee, gave the delegates carte blanc to the swimming tank in the basement of the Y. M. C. A. building, and while Congregationalists do not believe in immersion as a tenet of faith they are not averse to water for ablutionary purposes, and some of them can swim like a fish.

One is accustomed to thinking of ministers with little stiffer necks and more rigid spinal columns than the average layman, but every vestige of dignity and solemnity seemed lost in those natatorial frolics in the bath tub.

There is good value in every pound of Red Rose tea.
