THE JAMAICA SERVICE.

The strongest evidence that the claim of St. John, to be made a port of call for the subsidized Jamaica steamship service, is a just one, appears in the fact that an unsubsidized line on a small scale, direct from this port, is to be established.

THE BY-ELECTIONS.

Nominations took place yesterday in eleven federal constituencies. Outside of Quebec the seats are all contested on party lines.

The board of health will be supported by public opinion if they see that aid is given to all persons who have been quarantined and who cannot now obtain work.

Newspaper men were well treated in the Ottawa civic elections. The mayor, and alderman and a school trustee were elected from the ranks.

BY ELECTIONS.

WESTON, Ont., Jan. 8.—Nomination proceedings in West York appeared favorable for T. F. Wallace, the conservative nominee, who received a much warmer reception than his liberal opponent, Arch. Campbell.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 8.—Nomination here for West Hastings today was largely attended. E. Gus Porter was nominated by the conservatives and John G. Frost by the liberals.

YARKEE, Ont., Jan. 8.—Mr. Avery, Shabot Lake (con), and F. S. Warrant, Colbrook (lib.), were nominated here today for Addington. The meeting was addressed by the candidates and Messrs. Guthrie and Broder, M. P.'s. The audience was about equally divided.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 8.—J. Metcalfe (con) and Hon. Wm. Harty (lib.) were nominated today. The big mass meeting held was of a very demonstrative character. Mr. Metcalfe was the away winner and received a splendid reception. He was followed by Mr. Harty, who announced that he had only accepted the nomination in the interests of harmony in the liberal party.

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—The St. James Division nomination proceedings were made interesting by the presence of Brunet's gang of hooligans. They undertook to make Bergeron stop speaking. The Beauharnois boy was too much for his would-be tormentors, and, assisted by the facts of the situation, speedily put them to rout.

SETTLERS FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

A short time ago a request was sent to England for one hundred experienced agriculturists to proceed to South Africa to cultivate farms there.

Dr. Beland was today elected by acclamation to represent Beauce in the commons. There were three liberals in the field up to yesterday, when Dr. Beland resigned his seat in the legislature to accept the nomination.

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., Jan. 8.—Belth, liberal, and Thornton, conservative, were nominated for West Durham today.

L'ISLET, Que., Jan. 8.—O. Charbonneau, government, and Jos. E. Caron, independent liberal, were nominated to contest this county.

ST. JOSE, Que., Jan. 8.—Wilson, government, Goyer, independent liberal, and Leonard, conservative, were nominated here to contest Laval county for the dominion house.

Red Rose tea is good tea. That is why it is so popular from Newfoundland to Calgary.

ERNEST RUSSELL, who has been an inmate of the infected Burns house on Duke street for the past three weeks, got tired of the confinement last night and jumped the quarantine. He jumped it through a window. Geo. Breeze, who was the guard, saw the action and started in pursuit. But the runaway went down the street like the wind, and, of course, Breeze wasn't in it. So he gave it up and went to notify Inspector Howard, who in turn notified the police, who started out to find the man. Meanwhile the chase had been taken up by Ernest Flewelling and Dan Taylor, who were more successful for when Russell found who were in pursuit he resigned, and cutting around a corner went back into the house by the same window from which he emerged. He said he felt better for the exercise.

DULL TIMES IN GERMANY.

Yesterday's cable from Berlin stated that the speech from the throne, delivered in the Prussian diet, took a gloomy view of the economic situation.

This is explained by the fact that the German budget, which was laid before the Reichstag some time ago, showed a deficit equal to $14,000,000, to meet which it was deemed necessary to increase the federal contributions nearly $6,000,000 and effect a loan of over $7,000,000. It was explained that the financial position of the individual states of the empire was such that it would not be expedient to increase the burden on them to the whole extent of the deficit, and hence the proposed loan. The revenue for 1902 is estimated at a lower figure than that of 1901, which is also significant of a general depression.

HEALTH MATTERS.

The Globe last evening discussed the public hospital and arrived at the conclusion that the responsible head of the institution should combine business ability with practical experience and technical knowledge.

Why should there be an election in St. John county and none in Kings? Does the provincial government regard the people of Kings as such a poor lot that it can afford to ignore them? What does the attorney general think about it?

The great activity in the harbor this winter is further evidence of the wisdom of the builders of the short line, and the short-sightedness of those who sneered at the project and talked of the folly of fighting against geography.

The board of health will be supported by public opinion if they see that aid is given to all persons who have been quarantined and who cannot now obtain work.

SLEIGHING WITH A BEAR. Pennsylvania Pedler's Wild Ride Down a Steep Mountain.

Fritz Stein is a pedler known by every one on the road between his home at Hackensack and Scranton, Penn. He carries in his red wagon box everything from a darned needle to a stove.

Fritz was driving his sleigh along the road down Pocono mountain near Manunka Chunk on Friday at twilight, singing because of the good sales of the day, when, with a savage spring, his horse jumped into the air and lurched forward.

Fritz' hair stood on end, for right ahead, in a bend in the road, was a huge black bear. The brute shambled forward and struck at the horse, which gave a sudden spring, twisted off the thills, and went down the mountain at a furious pace. The sleigh was left standing upon a knoll.

Fritz was unarmed, and he saw certain death ahead. He leaped from the sleigh, tumbled into the box in which he stored his stock, and fastened both doors.

The enraged bear attacked the sheep hides on top of the sleigh and tore them into shreds. Then he tried to tear off the top of the box to reach Fritz, who was holding the doors closed and expecting every moment that the top would break.

Then the unexpected happened. The sleigh was standing in the deep, smooth tracks made by the heavy sleds of the lumbermen, and the exertions of the bear, with his added weight, suddenly started the outfit down the incline, shooting ahead with frightful velocity.

The bear realized his danger and growled as he crouched and clung to the guard rails on top of the box. Poor Fritz closed his eyes and braced himself for the shock which he well knew would soon come.

The road was straight ahead for two miles. In the middle of the mountain a farmer's team pulled to one side just in time to escape disaster and to see the strange outfit shoot by.

Near the foot of the mountain is a sharp bend in the road. There the sleigh left the track, shot directly across the road and colliding with a huge pile of railroad ties.

Some hours later a sleighing party on its way home from a country dance encountered the wreck. The bear was jammed in between the sleigh and the timber, fearfully mangled and quite dead.

Fritz was fished out of a huge pile of snow and woolen goods, stunned and lacerated. The sleigh was a wreck, and the goods were scattered among the snowdrifts.

Fritz was carried to a farmhouse, where he received medical attendance. In a day or two he discovered his home on a farm a few miles away, and he rode it to his Hackensack home.—New York World.

HER LAST VOYAGE. A Famous Old Warship Sent to the Knacker's.

A few years ago Portsmouth Harbor was rich in relics of our fighting navy of bygone days. Most of these old ships have now disappeared. Almost the last of them that has had blood spilt on her decks in a naval engagement is the Nettle, which has just been given over to the knacker.

This ship has an interesting history. She began her career over a century since as the Comet, a second-rater mounting 82 guns. In 1808 she captured a French man-of-war named Le Syph. She was again hotly engaged at the bombardment of Sidon and St. Jean d'Acre. By this time she had been rechristened the Thunderer, taking the place of the ship which bore that famous fighting name at the battle of Trafalgar. Some forty years ago the sturdy old ship was once more renamed, this time the Nettle, and by this time a hulk she was used for many years as an armor-plate testing ship.

The vessel's decks are laid in the ancient diagonal fashion, and the oak is still apparently quite sound, despite her long and trying services. Her sides are, however, like touchwood. New testing cells having been built, there is no necessity for retaining the Nettle in service, and her history, interesting as it is, has not sufficed to save her from the fate that has befallen so many other British warships whose day of good service is past.
