AN INCH AND AN ELL.

Whether or no the New Russian minister of the interior, Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky, when he reduced the despotic rigor which has marked the administration of Russia's internal affairs, had a clear idea of following his reforms to their natural conclusion—the establishment of a constitutional government—it seems certain that the Russian people will accept peaceably no other conclusion.

If he had no such idea the Liberal minister's policy was a mistake. Under the cruel and irresponsible rule of the present autocracy Russia has been seething with revolution for years and an eruption has only been prevented by such methods as marked the administration of the late Von Plehve. Though these methods increased the people's hatred of the government, they kept them in subjection. Prince Mirsky inaugurated an era of reform. Among other things he relaxed the censorship of the press, adopted a more humane policy toward Finland and the Jews, abolished the practice of punishment by administrative order without trial, and allowed the Zemstvos or provincial assemblies to meet and pass resolutions stating their views with reference to further reforms. It is possible he hoped that these concessions would placate the revolutionary sentiment, would create among its adherents a more favorable feeling toward the government, and a belief that the process of time, if they insisted peaceably, would bring the consummation of their desires. If he did, the events of the last few days have proved his mistake. The people having a taste of fraedom are frantic for more. The demand of the mass of the Russians has been for a constitutional government and, especially since they have experienced something of its advantages, they will be satisfied with nothing less.

The Russian government today is in greater danger than it ever was and the only way to avert the danger is to grant the concessions asked and grant them speedily. The giving of a constitution with the establishment of representative government under a limited monarchy would probably satisfy the bulk of the people now, but once let the masses get clear of control and started on a reform movement on their own account there is no predicting what red disaster would sweep the country before a stable government was evolved.

An absolute despotism cannot exist in a civilized country these days, except by such means as have made Russia accursed of so many of its people. Now that Russians have been given their inch of freedom they must have their ell, or work more serious than the quelling of Sunday's riots will be cut out for the autocracy.

AN ANTI-PUGSLEY CONSPIRACY.

The revolt against Attorney General Pugsley is the most interesting of recent developments in provincial politics.

It has been generally known that Mr. Pugsley strongly favored the candidacy of his brother-in-law, Dr. J. M. Smith, for the city seat and many of the two thousand two hundred men who signed Dr. Smith's requisition last summer did so with this understanding. The Star is authoritatively informed that before Mr. Pugsley went to England a few weeks ago it was agreed that no move should be made toward filling the vacancies in the legislature until he returned. Had the agreement been kept, undoubtedly Dr. Smith would have been the regular city candidate.

But in the attorney general's absence there has developed an anti-Pugsley conspiracy, in which Mr. Emmerson is said to be concerned and of which the springing of tonight's convention has been the result. Locally, the intention is to strike a blow at the attorney-general by turning down his candidate and, so cleverly have the plans been laid that the attempt will probably succeed. How long-lived the success will be, the next few weeks will tell, as Dr. Smith declares his decision to run as an independent, if refused the nomination, and Dr. Pugsley, without supinely admitting defeat, cannot desert his candidate.

The filling of the solicitor-generalship and the calling of the election in Westmorland are also said to be contrary to agreements made with the attorney general before his departure and probably indicate the result of Mr. Emmerson's interference.

So far in the game the points are in favor of the man who is minister of railways as against the man who wants to be, but interesting developments and perhaps a turning of the tables may be looked for when Mr. Pugsley comes home.

LET THE PEOPLE DECIDE.

The most sensible motion made at the special meeting of the common council yesterday was Alderman Frink's amendment that a plebiscite of the city be taken with reference to a change in the system of aldermanic representation. It was not even seconded.

The mayor and Ald. McGoldrick believe that the present system is a failure and want a return to the old ward system, or a modification of it by which the city shall be divided into a certain number of districts electing two or three or more aldermen, who shall be responsible only to their districts. This policy is favored by at least two of the city newspapers and presumably by a number of people. But the rest of the common council are satisfied with present conditions, and decline to consider a change.

There is room for a great deal of argument in favor of both systems; but the common council chamber is not the place for it. It is a matter for the people to decide how they shall be represented and already pretty strong enough indications have been received that a change of some sort would be favored to warrant the submission of the matter to the electorate by a plebiscite.

CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE.

We may expect a large and immediate increase in the number of Canadian commercial agents in England. These are appointed by Sir Richard Cartwright, who sent the famous Mr. Jackson to Sheffield. The court at Belleville has reported several attempts to suborn perjury in connection with the false ballot box trial. Perhaps offices cannot be created for all the endeavorers, but there are many cities in England.—Sun.

LIFE.

(A. T. Schumann in the Literary World)

A little longer and the toil is done,
A little farther on the road to go,
A little stress of shifting, drifting snow,
A little journeying through shade and sun,

A little rest where quiet waters run,
A little parleying with friend and foe,
A little oasis where blossoms grow,
A little darkness where the light is won.

A little sin that leaves a little stain,
A little sorrow and a little joy,
A little mending of a broken toy,
A little pleasure and a little pain,

A little thought of when I was a boy,
A little fear that I have lived in vain.

SANTA CLAUS' DEPUTY.

I. C. R. Officer Collins Receives Many Letters for Saint Nick.

A very pretty story of the childish idea of Santa Claus and Christmas comes from the Union depot. This morning Officer John Collins, who is a friend of the little ones, received a letter addressed to Santa Claus in his care. The youthful writer requested the generous-souled officer to present the note to Santa Claus as he stepped from the train upon his arrival in this city.

Officer Collins says that he has been the recipient of such messages from children for the past twenty years. Some way or other, he says, the children of St. John have got the idea that Santa Claus comes here on the train, and knowing that Officer Collins is always at the depot, they believe that through him they cannot miss Santa. So every year these messages come to the officer, who frequently puts himself out to assure the little ones that he will do all in his power to see that Santa Claus receives them.

The letter which the officer received today specified a number of things which the writer would like to receive from Santa, and closed with the loving farewell: "Goodby, dear old Santa Claus."

ST. JOHN LAWYER POR PAY.

Editor of Kings College Record Gets Even With Delinquent Subscriber.

The following is the way in which the editor of the Kings College Record, the organ of the University of Kings College, Windsor, N. S., disposes of a refractory subscriber, who is evidently a St. John man:

"The way in which we have been treated by one subscriber — a D. C. L. —is, to say the least, not very encouraging. He has allowed himself to get four years in arrears and is so indignant at receiving a bill for the amount, that he has refused to take our paper from the post office. Accordingly the postmaster at . . . has notified us to that affect. Apparently it has not yet dawned upon the gentleman that he is still liable for his back debts; but we presume he is trusting to the generosity of the business manager to forgive him all that is past, and to leave him in undisturbed possession of his beloved dollars. Be it so. May the sunshine of prosperity ever rest upon him, and the arrows of adversity never come nigh him; may the furrows of care never leave their marks upon his noble brow; and when he dies, as no doubt he will, full of wealth and honor, may his soul go to that delightful country where the rigors of a New Brunswick winter are absolutely forever unknown. And so we bid him a last farewell, and, as a token of loving appreciation, cancel the figures on that page of the ledger which is graved by his name with those magic letters under which people are accustomed to hide such a grievous multitude of sins. —R. I. P."

A. O. Skinner when seen by a Star reporter said that he was in the fight in earnest and that his name would come before the nominating convention tonight. He was asked if he had noticed that Dr. Smith had announced his intention of being a candidate, even in the event of the convention going against him.

"Yes, I have noticed that," said Mr. Skinner with a smile.

"Would that have the effect of altering your course of action?"

"Not in the least," replied Mr. Skinner.

Beyond the few remarks quoted above Mr. Skinner observed a discreet silence.

Following is a partial list of the names signed to the requistion which was presented to Dr. Smith last summer and which induced him to become a candidate. There were about 2,000 others:

To Dr. J. M. Smith, St. John, N. B.

We, the undersigned electors of the city of St. John, would be pleased to have you represent us in the local legislature of this province in the interest of the Liberal party. We hereby request you to offer as a candidate at the coming election to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of the Hon. H. A. McKeown, and we hereby promise and pledge you our support.

NO CHANCE.

Canada Cannot Compete With British Woolens.

OTTAWA, Dec. 12.—J. B. Jackson, commercial agent at Leeds and Hull, the centre of the Yorkshire woollen industry, reports to the trade and commerce department that he considers it hopeless for Canada, under existing conditions, even with a protective tariff of 30 per cent. and 3,000 miles of freight charges in her favor, to compete against the British woollen manufacturers. She may possibly have a fighting chance in the cheaper and poorer grades, he says, but in the finer cloths, "she is not in the race, but is flagged half-way along the track." Jackson suggests that the only chance Canada has of ever being able to compete against those conditions is by importing heads of departments who are graduates of textile schools, and by importing also English workmen and their families. He also advises the establishment in Canada of chools of practical training. In this connection he says: "I would here suggest to merchant princes and wealthy men of Canada the advisability of establishing scholarships in connection with technical education, which would enable some of the bright Canadian youth to take a thorough course in textile and technical departments of colleges in this district. I know of nothing in this regard which should redound more to the fame of doners, and from which Canada herself would reap more real business advantages in years to come."

MRS. MARY JACOB'S DEATH.

The death occurred at Fredericton Sunday of Miss Mary U. Jacob, an old resident of that place. Death was due to congestion of the lungs. Miss Jacob was born in England in 1821 and came to this country in 1829 with her father, Rev. Edwin Jacob, D. D., fellow of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, who became vice-president of King's College, Fredericton, now the University of New Brunswick. Miss Jacob has spent her life in charitable pursuits and in works of help for her fellow beings. She was ordained a deaconess by the late Bishop Medley, and passed much of her time in work among the missions of Ludlow, Doaktown and Bolestown.

MRS. F. W. STEVENS.

The Sun is authorized to contradict the report from New York published in the papers last night that Mrs. Frederic W. Stevens had taken up her duties again as a nurse.

Telegrams were received by her family yesterday from Mrs. Stevens from Atlantic City, that her address was Hotel Brighton, Atlantic City.

After the 19th Mr. and Mrs. Stevens will be at their home 33 West 35th street, New York.

The New York reporters confounded Mrs. Stevens with her sister, Miss Helen M. Seely, who registered at the Nurses' Home on Friday last.
