FISH BARRELS SCARCE.

Fishermen find Great Difficulty Getting Receptacles for Their Fish. Local fish dealers report a great scarcity in barrels used in shipping their fish. The demand this season is somewhat heavier than last year; but the material for making the barrels has been very scarce. As a result many coopers who formerly earned their livelihood in making barrels and half barrels for the fish trade, were compelled to seek other occupations.

Taylor and White at the present time are the only firm turning out the barrels, and the demand is so brisk at this season that they cannot attempt to meet it. It is expected that the competition will be relieved in a fortnight or so.

FIRE ON LEINSTER STREET.

About half past twelve o'clock today fire broke out in a loft adjoining the barns of Manchester, Robertson, Allison Ltd., on Leinster street. The loft contained only a lot of empty packing boxes, among which the flames gained considerable headway before the efforts of the firemen with a couple of streams from a hydrant could put the fire out. Though the burning building immediately adjoined lots filled with hay, the flames were kept from spreading. The loss is slight and fully covered by insurance. The shed is directly in the rear of No. 3 Hook & Ladder station.

CANTLEVER BRIDGE AGAIN.

Took Another Day Off—Passengers and Mail Transferred. The work on the Cantlever bridge was not finished this morning in time to allow the Boston and Montreal trains from the west to pass over to the Union depot. This contingency was provided against, however, by a temporary transfer train, which carried passengers to and from the bridge. The transfer train will be kept in use for a good part of the day, as it is thought that the work on the bridge will not be finished until after five o'clock this afternoon. The work is similar to that which was carried on last Sunday and Monday, and caused a middle in railway traffic.

Many passengers going west this morning did not avail themselves of the temporary transfer arrangement to the bridge, but instead went over by street cars or hacks. They did this to avoid the inconvenience of walking across the Suspension bridge to the Fairville station.

In consequence of the impossibility of bringing the Montreal express over the Cantlever bridge this morning it was found necessary to keep a train up in the I. C. R. yard to continue the service to Halifax.

MAY QUEEN FLOATED.

She Was Pumped Out Easily—Damage Not So Great As Was Anticipated.

The hopes of the captain and owners of the stranded steamer May Queen have been justified and, barring other accidents, she will be ready again for service on her old route before long.

The steamer, Aberdeen and the salvage crew went to work vigorously on the Queen Saturday. The plan was to pump her out if possible and then to cover the leaks and stop them sufficiently to allow her to be floated to a place where she could be fully repaired. It was doubtful whether or not the pumping apparatus would be powerful enough to get the water out faster than it could flow in through the leaks.

Fortunately it was, and Saturday afternoon the workers had the satisfaction of getting her practically clear of water. The leaks were discovered and were found to be even less than was expected. Some of them were stopped and the boat was practically floated when the wind increased to such an extent that it was considered unwise to complete the operation. It was then decided that the safest plan was to allow her to fill again with water so that the wind would not drive her farther ashore. This was done and she was left on the reef over Sunday.

Work started again this morning, but no word has yet reached the city of its results. However, from the speed with which she was pumped out Saturday, those interested believe that she is by this time safely floated and has probably been towed into New-

On the seventh of this month a new hall will be dedicated at Newville, Northumberland county, Northumberland county Orangemen are particularly proud of this building, which cost one hundred feet by sixty and its material is brick with stone front.
