HIS SEQUIT.

Little Harry's affection for his old grandmother is all that the affection of a child should be for a grandparent. One morning when he was "nursing" in her bed he put his plump little arms around her neck and said: "Gramma, I'll tell you a big sequit if you won't ever tell anybody in all the world."

"Having heard herself to secrecy and even 'crossed her heart," the old lady was made the recipient of the following confidence: "Well, grammy, some day I'm going to get married to—you can't guess who."

"No, I'm afraid I cannot."

"To—you, grammy!"

The female pickpocket, as a rule, carries her operations to the point of the Atlantic.

VOCAL TALENT.

I had been taking a horseback ride through the southern part of Missouri, and one night, finding myself in a very sparsely settled district, I was forced to discontinue in the saddle until midnight before I saw the dark shadows of a village at the end of a road. Just outside this village I came to a miserably little cottage where a light still burned in the window; I knocked on the door to inquire for a place to put up for the night.

"Is that you, Tad?" came a gruff voice from within.

"No," said I. "Open the door a minute, I want to ask you something."

The bolt was drawn, and a man attired in a cotton undershirt and overalls looked out sleepily into the darkness.

"I thought you was my boy, Tad," he explained, rubbing his eyes, "and, snip my ears! here he is now!"

A barefoot youth came panting out of the shadow with his arms full of shoes of various sizes and colors.

"Get any?" asked the man, expectantly.

"Kassir," replied the boy in a filial tone—"seven of 'em tonight and two of 'em is a pair."

"Good!" the man said, and then he turned to me with the manner of one who thinks an explanation would be polite.

"You see, Tad can make a noise that sounds louder and has more worry to it and sounds more natural like a tom cat than any cat in this country can make. So he just goes into the village and yells under windows about his tin with the manner of one who picks up a thing out."

"And you get shoes enough for winter," I finished.

"Stranger," said the man solemnly, "I can see you ain't a fool."—March Lippincott's.

REMARKS ABOUT WOMEN.

I believe the Creator called together all the omnipotent powers when He made woman! I believe she is the crowning masterpiece of all Nature. I love woman because she is a woman. Behind every great accomplishment of man, you will find the prompting influence of a woman. All women would be good if the corrupting hand of man had not made some of them bad. The man who belittles all women, condemns his own sex. It is the man, who, somewhere in past generations, has planted the seeds of wickedness, or else he planted them in his own time. Show me a human being who wears trousers and hates all women, and I'll show you a male monster who is not a man.

Women are the great comforters in the time of pain and sickness. They are more practical as well as more gentle than men. Women investigate while men scoff. Women try things and see for themselves. More Hutch is bought by women than men; but I notice after a wife gets a bottle of it in the house, it doesn't take the husband long to put it to use. If he has a headache, heartburn, dizziness, pain in the stomach, caused by indigestion or dyspepsia, or if he feels bad in any way, many a man can thank his lucky stars that his wife had the good sense to investigate Hutch, and then keep it in the house. The man from Indiana.

Sarah Grechetsky, a Russian Jewess, and her fifteen-year-old son, will be deported to Liverpool on the Allan liner Parisian today. The woman arrived at Quebec last year and went to Chicago. While there she was found insane and is now brought to St. John to be deported on the steamer which brought her across the Atlantic.

JIU-JITSU, AS IMPORTED FROM JAPAN.

Jiu-jitsu has its most distinguished American exponent in the president. And he has been more, in every way, than all of our athletic sports combined. He has emphasized his opinion by securing Yamaoka, instructor in the art for the Naval Academy. After a while, the same work is to be taught at the Military Academy. The heads of several military police institutes are to introduce the work among the policemen under them. The present difficulty is the scarcity of qualified instructors for this country. It is the Kanjo system that presents benefit from the introduction of Jiu-jitsu here, the start must be made in the right way. In Japan, there are many methods of Jiu-jitsu. There is only one, however, that is recognized as official. That is the eclectic system devised in recent years by Prof. Jigoro Kano. Jiu-jitsu in Japan is the art of the gentleman; it is not intrusted to the class of subjects who would correspond to our prize-fighters. Hence it is appropriate that the recognized authority on Jiu-jitsu is also one of the leading educators of his country. It is the Kanjo system that the president has mastered; it is this system which is to be taught at Annapolis and at West Point. The Kano is the official system of Japan, which is taught to every officer and enlisted man of the Japanese army, navy, and police departments. All of the other schools of Jiu-jitsu, which are only against that which is clever to the uninitiated American, are helplessly inferior before the Kano methods. Some of these inferior systems contain as many as three hundred feints each; the Kano has but one hundred and sixty feints, yet the Kano provides a wholly adequate defense, not only against the Anglo-Saxon boxer and wrestler, but against the adept of any one of the inferior, old-style Japanese schools. From Japan, Jiu-jitsu was introduced to the United States by Prof. Irving Hancock, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for February.

PROGRESS AT THE ASYLUM.

A short time ago Dr. J. V. Anglin, superintendent of the asylum issued an appeal to the public for magazines and other publications. In response to this appeal over one hundred persons have sent contributions of various kinds, consisting of books, Chambers' London Illustrated, Youth's Companion and many others. They have been distributed among the various wards and have proved a source of great delight to the inmates.

ROUGH DRY.

The oak-leaves are, like washing, hung beneath a winter sky. Starched by the frost and pinned with dew.

They rustle, stiff and high, Till Spring, the pretty laundry-maid, Shall take them in to dry.

—Isabel Howe Fiske, in March Lippincott's.
