ST. JOHN STAR.
ST. JOHN, N. B., JULY 4, 1934.

A WISE GIFT.
Leaving John D. Rockefeller's personal character and his methods of making money out of the question—they have no place in this comment—there can be but one opinion of the wisdom of his latest benefaction.

Recognizing the great usefulness of the small college in the work of education, he has donated ten millions of dollars in such a way as to provide an annual income of $600,000 to be used in perpetuity for the assistance of these institutions.

Never in the history of the Opera House did that building hold a more thoroughly delighted and well satisfied audience than last evening when Henrietta Crossman, one of the leading actresses on the American stage made her first appearance in St. John.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP IN NEW YORK.
New York will probably be the next great city to try the municipal ownership policy.

THE MINSTRELS OF PEACE.
In the hurry and the worry, where the shadows seldom cease.

Let the birds, in bowers of blossoms, sing the souls of us to God!

Oh, we need that sweeter singing when God's stars forget to gleam—Hearths the world bounds from Life's quiet—that are dying for a dream; And the melodies that know not any note of grief and pain—Sweet as dreams of little children—dear as sunlight after rain.

As wave-bent ships, sea-wearied, seek the shelter of a shore—
—Frank L. Stanton.

AN ARTISTIC TRIUMPH.
Henrietta Crossman Scores One of the Greatest Artistic Successes in St. John Theatre History.

Never in the history of the Opera House did that building hold a more thoroughly delighted and well satisfied audience than last evening when Henrietta Crossman, one of the leading actresses on the American stage made her first appearance in St. John.

And yet Miss Crossman and company were not greeted with a large audience but what was lacking in numbers was made up for in the sympathetic enjoyment and appreciation demonstrated not so much by loud hand clapping as by the perfect stillness and quiet that even reached the usually noisy gods.

It was an audience that appreciated, Miss Crossman has surrounded herself with a small but excellent company, the play presented calling for a small cast. All stage fittings and scenery are carried by excellent means and the stage settings are excellent.

The evening's entertainment consists of two plays, one the well known comedy "The Sign of the Cross" and a two act tragedy entitled "Madeline" by Mrs. W. K. Clifford. It is difficult to say in which piece Miss Crossman appeared to the greatest advantage.
