FIRED AT A SHED FULL OF DYNAMITE.

Several Tons Exploded by Two Fools With a Shot Gun, Who Escaped With Their Lives.

QUEBEC, Nov. 30.—An almost incredible story comes from St. Romauld, forty miles north of this city, on the Quebec and Lake St. John Railway. The town of St. Romuald is engaged in building waterworks, and had several tons of dynamite in a shed for the purpose of blasting. Yesterday two young farmers of the village with a shot gun, started out for target practice. They espied the shed containing the dynamite and came to the conclusion that it would make an excellent target. Evidently unaware of its dangerous contents, they stood off from their object several hundred yards and fired. The dynamite exploded with a terrible report and the two men were hurled into the air. Strange to say they were not killed though seriously injured. The explosion violently disturbed the country for miles and broke almost every pane of glass in the village, a short distance away. It also caused lamps and other articles of furniture in church and other places to fall. The report was heard for miles and frightened the inhabitants of the countryside. The names of the young men responsible have not yet become known here.

SCOTCHMEN HONOR ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

Brilliant Gathering at York Theatre---Able Addresses Delivered and Splendid Programme Carried Out---Affair a Great Success in Every Way.

The anniversary of their patron saint was observed in true Scottish style last night by the St. Andrew's Society, and the celebration was regarded as the most successful that the society has ever carried out. Almost 800 of Scotland's sons and grandsons assembled to do honor to the land of the heather. The decorations were lavish, the red lion of Scotland being much in evidence, large standards being draped from the curtain and at the side of the stage, while around the sides of the gallery were festoons of blue and white.

This year a change was made in the arrangements. The programme of music and addresses was carried out in the theatre, and afterwards the stage was used for dancing, as it is a little larger than the ballroom. The ballroom was used as a dining room, and the reception rooms as dressing rooms.

Shortly after seven o'clock, members of the society assembled in one of the drawing rooms, and the officers elected at the last annual meeting were installed by President Macaulay. A few minutes after eight, the officers with guests, and headed by the pipers, marched from the lower room and to the stage in the theatre. The mull was duly placed on the table and the programme at once begun.

President Macaulay on behalf of the society briefly welcomed all the guests and expressed the hope that the enjoyment of the evening would be as unalloyed as on previous occasions. Of the society itself he could only say that it is now in a more prosperous condition than at any time during the hundred and eight years of its history. He thought it worthy of note that of the past presidents no less than eight were on the platform with him, while four others are still members of the society, and it is a matter of gratification that during the past year the society has lost only one member by death, while the new members who have been received were more numerous than in any other year. The finances, too, are in a flourishing condition. Again he welcomed the friends of the society to the celebration of St. Andrew's day.

Harrison's orchestra then played the opening overture, a selection of Scotch airs.

W. Watson Allen, president of St. George's Society, on behalf of the latter, desired to convey to St. Andrew's the hearty good wishes of their English brethren. Personally he was greatly pleased to be present on this occasion, and he could enjoy it too, for not many generations ago his forbears luxuriated in oatmeal and haggis, though at a later date they found a north of Ireland climate more suited to their constitutions and potatoes took the place of oatmeal. Still later in England the potato in turn was brushed aside by beefsteak.

Geo. V. McInerney, president of the Irish Benevolent Society, cordially thanked the president and officers of St. Andrew's Society for the cordial invitation to be present and he wished to bring to the Scotchmen the good wishes of the Irishmen.

"Mr. Allen rather took the wind out of my sails by saying he had a wee drop of Scotch in him. I thought that was a copyrighted phrase of my own. Mr. Allen also said that when the Scotchmen went to Ireland they left the oatmeal and haggis behind them. He should have added to the list the shorter cathechism." A country which had produced Bruce, Wallace, Burns and Scott need not be ashamed of anything, for what Burns and Scott had done in the world of English literature is enough to bring everlasting fame on any land.

Andrew Malcolm, acting chief of Clan Mackenzie, brought the good wishes of that kindred society. Clan Mackenzie represents some nine thousand men in the United States, and they were all of the same family as the St. Andrew's men.

Judge Wilrich, U. S. consul, on rising was greeted with the Star Spangled Panner. He explained that the secretary of St. Andrew's Society had assured him that he would not be called upon to speak. Thus he had hoped to enjoy the evening and let others enjoy it. But now that he had been called upon the audience would have to suffer. He had not been in St. John long enough to have a meal before he was asked to make a speech. Ever since he has been coming to the conclusion that he never met a finer class of men than in St. John, but now that he sees the ladies he understands why the men are so.

A Hundred Pipers, the first solo on the programme, was magnificently rendered by S. J. McGowan, and was warmly applauded. Mrs. Fred MacNeill followed with Loch Lomond and in response to a hearty encore rendered the Land o' the Leal. Mrs. MacNeill was in excellent voice and has seldom been heard to better advantage.

Much of the success of the programme was due to the work of Mrs. J. M. Barnes and D. Arnold Fox, the accompanists.

This was followed by the oration of the evening, The Day and All Who Honor It, by Rev. A. A. Graham, of St. David's church. Mr. Graham's address was an able effort, delivered with much force, and arousing the enthusiasm of the audience to the highest pitch. Among all the anniversaries which the nations celebrate he thought none could be compared to St. Andrew's day. The speaker described the qualities which had brought the Scots to the front wherever they have settled. He gave the history of the race as follows:

There is a very ancient history connected with the Celtic people. We claim a great antiquity, and as far back as the annals of men go the Gaelic people were a noble race. There was nothing mean or unmanly about them. Before our early forefathers found a home in Scotland, or contemporary with that period there was a scattering of the race. In the early days of European history the Celtic people occupied a much wider territory.

There are some who trace the Scottish people and tongue back to the Garden in Eden, and they tell us that the Gaelic language was spoken in the primitive garden. We are told that when Adam first saw Eve in all her beauty, fresh from the hand of her Maker, he addressed her with the well-known Highland salutation; and Eve, with the most graceful and winsome modesty, made her reply. Although I have studied some theology and have tried to solve some problems of that science, I have never seriously undertaken the examination of this claim of our Scottish language to such great antiquity. Perhaps my esteem for the race to which I belong has prevented me from doing so. For I remember that there was a third party in the garden, the tempter, who had a very important influence upon the future of our primitive parents. He seemed to be thoroughly at home with the language of Eden; and if we acknowledge that our first parents were acquainted with our ancient Highland language, we would have also to admit that this distinguished personage was a Gaelic-speaking Scotchman. However clannish the sons of the heather may be, we would hesitate about claiming relationship with him.

However, the Celtic race played a very important part in the early history of many of the countries of Europe. In almost all the countries along the north of the Mediterranean there are evidences of the place occupied by this people. In the third century B. C. a large detachment of Celts moved eastward and crossed into Asia Minor. After half a century of conflict they settled in the mountainous districts of the interior, and their territory was known as Galatia. Among them the Apostle Paul preached the Gospel when, on his first missionary journey, he visited Antioch, Iconium, Derbe, and Lystra. To them he addressed his Epistle to the Galatians. The Gaelic language was spoken in the highlands of Galatia for at least two hundred years after Christ; and it had therefore maintained itself as a living language for about five hundred years after the coming of the Gaels to Asia Minor.

The first great dispersion of the Celtic people thus took place before the Roman Empire rose to a commanding position in the world The Romans eventually gained control over all the nations surrounding the Mediterranean, and the detached Galatians were gradually absorbed and lost their identity as a separate people. In the west of Europe they were also overcome by the Romans, although the Picts and the Scots of the north made the lot of the conquerors much harder in Britain.

The great dispersion with which we are most concerned is that which has taken place in the colonial period of the last two centuries. In fact, the nineteenth century has been particularly the period when many of our people have gone abroad to find new homes for themselves. The United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa have received large numbers of our brethren; and they have risen to eminence wherever they have gone. Lord Selkirk's ships brought these interesting people to Cape Breton; and when the Sutherland clearances took place thousands of families came to the new world and began life in those pioneer days.

S. J. McGowan again appeared, in Scots Wha Hae, and as on the former occasion ably sustained his reputation.

The ceremony of the passing of the mull, new to many people in the audience, was full of interest. Preceded by the pipers, the marshals of the society carried the mull through the theatre, offering some of the contents to all who chose to partake.

An enjoyable change in the programme was the dancing of the Highland Fling by Major J. J. Gordon, one of the oldest and most enthusiastic members of the society, and an expert in all Scotch dances. To the music of the pipes this dance was very skilfully executed, and Major Gordon received well deserved applause.

A recitation by Mr. Ballentyne followed, delivered in a manner which could not but appeal to the feelings of all of Scottish blood. D. B. Pidgeon's fine baritone was especially suited to the rendition of Bonnie Dundee, and he was compelled to respond to an encore, choosing as his second selection Bonnie Doon.

Mrs. Spencer was, as usual, a great favorite, and her solo, Mary of Argyle, was very sweetly sung. As an encore Mrs. Spencer gave Annie Laurie.

The last number on the programme, but by no means the least enjoyable, was the song by Thomas White. He was down for Heather Jock, but instead of that gave When the Kye Comes Hame, rendering his programme number as an encore. In this latter selection the audience joined heartily in the chorus.

The procession to the dining room was then formed and the officers of the society with their ladies and headed by the pipers, marched down. When the first party had gone from the theatre dancing was begun on the stage. The crowd was very large, the stage at times being almost uncomfortably full and the building was a trifle warm, but these slight drawbacks did not interfere with the enjoyment.

The programme consisted of fifteen dances and a number of extras. In the dining room, where the catering was done by Frank White, the bill of fare was an excellent one.

The ladies who officiated at the tea table were Mrs. (Dr.) McIntosh, Mrs. John Burpee, Mrs. (Dr.) Johnson, Miss Stevenson, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. B. R. Macaulay, Mrs. (Dr.) Inches, Mrs. Frank Rankine.

The dancing was kept up till 2 o'clock, when the grand march took place. The three pipers were at the head, marshalled by Charles Bell. President R. B. Macaulay, with Mrs. Hazen, were the first couple, followed by Dr. and Mrs. Inches. A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of Will Ye No Come Back Again, by S. J. McGowan, accompanied by D. Arnold Fox, Auld Lang Syne and God Save the FREDERICTON, N. B., Nov. 30.—The Fredericton Society of St. Andrew celebrated their 80th anniversary this evening with a dinner at the Barker House. The affair was one of the most enjoyable of its kind held by this society. The dinner was served in the main dining hall of the house and covers were laid for 100 guests.

Among the distinguished guests in attendance were the Rev. G. M. Campbell, St. John, who replied to the toast, "The Day an' a' wha honor it;" Dr. Daniel, M. P., St. John; R. D. Wilmot, M. P.; W. T. Whitehead, M.P.P., Fredericton; Robert Murray, M. P., Newcastle; Thos. B. Blair, St. John; the Hon. A. G. Blair, Ottawa, and Judge Fraser, Nova Scotia, sent regrets.

Appropriate songs were given between the speech-making. Those rendering solos were J. N. Sutherland, St. John; Dawes Gilmour, Montreal; Frank L. Cooper and T. B. Gidner of this city.

BISHOP SCANNELL TAKES STRONG ACTION

And Declares Excommunicated Catholics Who Attended Wedding of Divorced Congressman.

OMAHA, Nov. 30.—Right Rev. Bishop Richard Scannell of the Nebraska diocese of the Catholic church has declared excommunicated ipso facto all members of the Catholic church who participated in the wedding of Congressman Kennedy and Miss Pritchett on Monday. There were a number of prominent Catholics present, including Mrs. Edward Cudahy, wife of the packing house magnate; Miss Mae Hamilton, whose individual fortune is rated at over a million, was one of the bridesmaids.

Congressman Kennedy has a divorced wife living, and for that reason the bishop issued last Sunday a pastoral forbidding all Catholics to participate in the ceremony. The bishop today declared excommunicated all members of his church who attended the wedding. The ceremony was conducted by Dr. E. H. Jenks, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which Congressman Kennedy is a prominent member. The bride of Congressman Kennedy, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Pritchett, prominent members of Omaha society, is a member of the Episcopal church. None of the members of either Mr. Kennedy's family or his bride's family is a Catholic. Mr. Kennedy's divorced wife is a Christian Scientist.

Bishop Scannell today talked freely of his action. He said that he would take steps in the matter, declaring that the Catholics who participated in the wedding ceremony and also those who attended the reception following were equally culpable, and said that they had excommunicated themselves by their action in the face of the warning issued by himself last Sunday.

ST. PIERRE AUTHORITIES ARE ALARMED

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 30.—There is alarm among the authorities of St. Pierre, Miq., at the extent to which emigration from the colony has grown, over 1,000 persons of a total population of 6,500 having left there within the past three months. No one will predict what the future of the colony is destined to be. The poorer classes are talking of petitioning the Paris government to permit the annexation of the islands to Newfoundland, for it is pointed out that so long as Newfoundland maintains the bait act, St. Pierre's industry cannot thrive.

WEARY DAYS AND SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

Many men and women toss night after night upon sleepless beds until near dawn. Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system that it cannot be quieted. Or, again, you have heart palpitation and sensation of sinking, a feeling you are going to die; or perhaps you wake up from your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and rest leaves you for the night. Allow these conditions to continue and you will feel your health declining.

It is the nerves and heart that are not acting properly.

They can be set right by the use of

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

They soon induce healthful, refreshing sleep, not by deadening the nerves, but by restoring them to healthy action and removing all symptoms of heart trouble, which is often the cause of nervousness and sleeplessness.

Mrs. Ennis Chambers, Massey Station, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with dizziness, weak spells and fluttering of the heart. I was so bad at times I could not lie down in bed at nights but would have to sit up. I doctored for a whole year and got no relief. I took three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and was so completely cured I have not been troubled since. I cannot recommend them too highly."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or sent direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
