THE TWIST OF THE EARTH.

A London correspondent writes: "A telegram sent from Bucharest, Rumania, at 1:30—was posted up in the window of a firm of confectioners in Chamberwell road, with a notice calling attention to its having been received two minutes before it was sent off." There is no deception, says a London exchange. We have to allow for the twist of the earth, and mid-European time and Eastern Europe time—which is Bucharest—are ahead of Greenwich. This gives us our only advantage over America. Our watches are always hours ahead.

NATAL TAX PAYERS.

The task of the tax collector in Natal is no easy one, and lately the natives have in many cases positively refused to pay the hut tax until compelled to do so by the law. This snapshot shows a Natal magistrate's court in the open, with a group of natives who have come in to pay the tax.

GENERAL STRIKE A DECIDED FAILURE; CALLED OFF BY THE WORKMENS' COUNCIL.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 7, 2:30 p. m.—The workmen's council has decided to call off the strike in St. Petersburg. The announcement will be issued tonight or tomorrow. This action does not apply to the province, but there is little doubt that the workmen there will follow St. Petersburg's example.

More than half of the factories here resumed work today, and while the employees of some of the establishments at Moscow are still out none of the predictions of the strike organizers were fulfilled.

Many of the trades unions totally refused to join in the movement. The railroad men, whose co-operation was vital, could not be induced to give the signal for a strike, and there was no sign of a serious peasant movement. While the repressions and arrests of the leaders undoubtedly were a great factor in bringing about the present situation, it is apparent that the movement was ill-chosen for a strike. The people were not in a temper to support it. As a consequence the revolutionary leaders, who inspired it with the intention of transforming the movement into an armed uprising, have suffered a severe loss of prestige.

CAMPBELL FOUND GUILTY; WILL APPEAL.

Magistrate Ritchie Delivered Judgment This Morning and in Doing So Sharply Criticised Methods by Which Police Force is Run—Has Found it of No Use to Instruct Policemen in Regard to Law.

This morning in the police court Magistrate R. J. Ritchie found Sergeant James Campbell of the police force guilty of assaulting Peter LeClair, a ship laborer. The case has been pending in the court for a couple of weeks, and arose from a complaint made by LeClair some time ago, that while he was on the I. C. R. wharf looking for work Campbell laid hands on him, pushed him away, and thus hindered him from obtaining employment.

The police sergeant claimed he asked LeClair to please move up the wharf and get in the way of workmen employed discharging a fruit steamer, that LeClair who was not employed refused to move and was pushed gently aside.

J. B. M. Baxter appeared for the prosecution and Dr. A. W. Macrae for the defence.

There was a large number of spectators in the court room this morning when in delivering judgment in the case the magistrate gave a lengthy oration on how he contended the law meant for the police force should be handled and on the duties of the policeman.

His honor said that in the LeClair vs. Campbell case the circumstances were not many. The police officer in the case was at the time working under the law of the fruit importers. When an officer requests a citizen to move it is not always becoming for a citizen to say that he will not move. The officer in the case admits that he laid hands on LeClair, and was employed for a private concern, can he do just as an officer can do on his regular duty? The man who hired Campbell was not a taxpayer, and even if he was, it is a question if the policeman can be hired.

The magistrate said that when he first came into office he used to take up the bye-laws and thoroughly explain them to the policemen. "You take a man from St. Martin's, the Washdenook or some other place and make a policeman of him, he is supposed to know the law. After I explain the law to this policeman he goes down stairs to the police station and there a man says that is not right, take the law from us here, and the result is that I have now stopped telling the policeman like I used to. Now when a policeman gets in trouble it is up to me to decide, and it is decided according to law. The safety board or somebody interested in clear, solid discipline of the police force want men who understand their duty, and if they don't understand their duty they can come to the court and find out. The clerk, Mr. Henderson and myself and always ready to give advice but I believe that the policeman are almost forbidden to come here, Mr. Henderson and I were not blacksmiths or millmen, but we are lawyers and if the police want to know the law they should come to people who know the law. The police are paid from the taxes, and as the majority of violators of the law are taxpayers the police have to go and arrest the prisoners who furnish the wages. My request has always been not so much as to get the offenders to try and deter the offences. A policeman to do his duty is to do it without fear or favor. If he sees a man going along with his dinner can and he is drunk and in no other way breaking the law it is better that the unfortunate man should be helped home, just as I would be if I was found under the influence of liquor.

"The very day I told the police to do this they were told by others not to do so, but to get all the prisoners they could. No policeman ought to go out and make arrests so that he will have a great list of arrests to his credit. The officer who makes the least arrests is the best man, he may not get the dollars for working at the Opera House, ball games or other extras, or he might not get the stripes, but he is the best man."

"There is no officer on the force who can truthfully say that for the seventeen years I have been here that he has not got assistance. As far as the policemen themselves are concerned they are all right."

"Take Sergeant Baxter, for instance, in a crowd. He is a big policeman, uses good judgment, he is not offensive and does not rush at a

McMahon, were united in marriage at 10 o'clock this morning at St. Dunstan's church, Rev. Father Carney performing the ceremony in the presence of a congregation which well filled the edifice.
