THE FORECAST PLEASES THEM.

British Exporters Not Alarmed at Proposed Changes in the Tariff.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Satisfaction is expressed at the forecast outline of the new Canadian tariff, published in an Ottawa telegram yesterday. British exporters quite realize that Canadian manufacturers can fairly claim duties which equalize the conditions of competition where British and Canadian manufacturers compete in Canada. Moreover, all recent inquiries show that Britain's easiest line of advance in Canadian markets is in the displacement of American and other foreign imports rather than of Canadian manufacturers.

It is understood that Fielding has gone most carefully into this branch of the subject with the view of easing the duties against Britain upon goods in which Canadian manufacturers do not as seriously compete, such as large classes if iron and steel products, electrical machinery and apparatus and certain classes of agricultural implements and machines, laces, silks, etc.

There is, however, much anxiety as to the ultimate and proposed maximum and minimum schedules. Obviously a preference based on maximum duties would be ineffective unless the net rate was substantially below the minimum. The fear is that these schedules may lead up to reciprocity with the United States, which would practically nullify the British advantage from the preference.

A FOOD AND A TONIC

What the leading Medical Journal of the world has to say about FERROL.

After making a thorough test of FERROL in its own laboratory the London (England) Lancet published an article from which the following is taken:

FERROL

"This is a successful combination of the well-known valuable remedies, Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus. The formula is no secret, and our analysis showed the presence and amount of constituents as described. The preparation is a good one and of distinct therapeutic value. The association of an easily assimilable oil, in a fine state of division, with a phosphatic salt of iron which does not disturb the digestive functions and which is easily tolerated, determines its success as a food and tonic in wasting diseases."

What the London Lancet recommends as a food and a tonic in all wasting diseases must have very special qualities.

No higher endorsation is possible. The results following the use of FERROL for the past ten years have proved that this endorsation is well deserved.

FERROL is not a patent mystery. The formula is freely published. It is prescribed by the best Physicians. It is endorsed by the most eminent Medical Journals. It is used in prominent Hospitals, Sanitariums, etc.

EXPOSING ANNIE EVA FAY AGAIN.

Herbert Lambourne Tells of Mind Reading by Phone.

Former Stage Manager Declares That all Questions and Answers Were Wired From Under Stage to Mrs. Fay, Hidden in Veil.

John T. Fay and Eva Fay, known sometimes as "The Marvelous Fays," brought suit a while ago against Herbert Lambourne, who is known on the stage as Chauncey Herbert, and his stage partner, Louis Grant, to recover property which the Fays declared had been taken from them by Lambourne while he was their property man. Lambourne yesterday, through Moses H. Grossman, his lawyer, filed an answer to the complaint of the Fays, which, after a short general denial, proceeded to say that the defendant knew all about the Fays, and that nothing could stop him from telling all he knew.

The Fays have been the centre of much controversy. They have a sort of mind reading act on the vaudeville stage that has puzzled not a few. They are declared by themselves to be genuine seers and able to read the future and the like. If that is so, they must have seen Lambourne's affidivit coming. Their powers, however, could not head it off.

Lambourne says that from April 16 to July 10 of this year he was in the employ of the Fays, not as a property man, but as stage manager. He denies that he ever stole anything belonging to the Fays, but that what he did get was with the consent of John T. Fay, as a loan only, and later returned to John T. Fay. Following that Lambourne says that prior to being stage manager he was a performer for the Fays and knew all about their act. His affidivit says:

During the performance whereby the credulity and gullibility of the public is sought to be aroused, in order to advance the sale of the "Dream Book" (Mrs. Fay's), Mrs. Fay pretending to be in some imaginary state of mesmerism or mind reading, calls upon the audience to write questions upon papers, sign them with their names and keep their minds upon the matter inquired about, with the promise that the questions as asked will be correctly stated by her and the correct answers given.

The answers are written upon pads which are ostensibly plain sheets of paper, but which are so prepared that when one sheet is torn off, the writing can be shown by the use of charcoal powder on the sheet beneath. These sheets are developed by confederates in the audience. The correct answers are obtained from the questioner and while Mrs. Fay appears on the stage ostensibly in a trance and covered by a veil she uses a telephone and the correct answers are conveyed through tubes from the audience to the basement below the stage and from there telephoned to Mrs. Fay.

To illustrate one event at a performance: There was in the audience one man who desired Mrs. Fay to state the contents of a letter which he had in his hand. Mr. Fay himself went to the man, examined the letter, made a copy thereof, which was transmitted to a person under the stage and thereupon telephoned to Mrs. Fay, who read as follows:

Mr. D. Reynolds, President, etc., 32 Broadway, City.

My Dear Mr. Reynolds: I well understand and appreciate your impatience because of the delay, but it could not be avoided. I can only say in answer to your question that my study of the case persuades me that the courts ought to, and therefore I believe they will, grant the mandamus you seek.

Very sincerely yours,

ALTON B. PARKER.

May 20, 1906.

The affidavit goes on to say that knowledge of similar questions was similarly obtained and answers made correctly. It continues:

The audience being mystified, the plaintiff, John Fay, makes an announcement that Mrs. Fay cannot be seen privately and can be corresponded with only upon the purchase of her book which contains a coupon authorizing the purchaser to correspond with her. It is also announced that the purchasers of books will receive a facsimile of an Egyptian coin worn by Mrs. Fay, known as "The Fay Mascot," which is supposed to bring luck to the person who carries it.

A large number of books are sold thereupon and coins distributed, and during deponent's employment by the plaintiff's they received 200 coupons and letters asking advice about most important matters, such as questions whether the correspondent should enter into a certain business, whether certain property should be sold whether the husband of the correspondent was true to her, who stole jewelry and similar questions.

None of such questions was answered personally by Mrs. Fay. All she had to do with the correspondence was to rid some of the questions in the presence of this deponent; and this deponent, William Ely, Miss Clara Warmington, Mr. Smith and Paul Lenox, all employees of the plaintiffs, answered such questions at haphazard, with the intent on the part of the plaintiffs that the correspondents should rely thereupon and be guided in their future conduct by such answers; and the deponent verily believes that in most instances such correspondents relied upon such answers and acted thereupon.

Lambourne says further that after he left the employ of the Fays he determined to expose the game. The "Thaumaturgists" is the name used by the Fays. He called his act the "Flamaturgiste—A Fetse," and then announced that he and Granat would give an act in imitation of some certain performers without naming any names.

They used a poster which read: There's a Phase To Fease The Fays.

Then follows the statement that 500 postal cards were sent out to correspondents of the plaintiffs, whose address Lambourne knew, announcing the performance.

Lambourne also says that he has in his possession slips in the handwriting of John Fay, used for the purpose of telephoning to his wife while on the stage in the so-called trance, of which two are given:

"Tell Mrs. Fay to find the nails, then put the phone to work."

"Damn you. Read Beard's letter, I called."

He says that he also has a large number of cards and duplicates of questions answered by Mrs. Fay when she was covered by a veil.

Filed at the same time with the Lambourne affidavit is one from Louis Granat, who says that everything that Lambourne says is true and that he can corroborate it, because he had the same chances to see these things as Lambourne. He adds that he saw the same things being done in 1905 when he was employed with Prof. Baldwin. He says that Mrs. Fay's Dream Book is merely a copy of others already on the market. He winds up by saying:

From the experiences gained through the connection with Prof. Baldwin and the observation of the tricks as performed by Mr. Baldwin, and his experience during the last ten years, deponent knows that there is nothing in the performance of the plaintiffs in any wise appertaining to any mind reading, trance, art of the Yogis or Mahatmas; and that the whole performance consists of tricks, confederacy and the use of mechanical means; that Mrs. Fay has stated to this deponent that she was not a native of India, but was born in a little town near St. Louis, Mo., and that the statements made in that behalf are false.

The programme of the Fays, which is contained in Lambourne's affidavit, announces, "The Fays wish it distinctly understood that the results produced, especially in 'The Thaumaturgy,' are weird and bewildering, but the force and means employed, although at present not thoroughly understood by the mass of people, are perfectly natural and may at some future day be utilised by scientific workers. • • • Miss Fay is a skilled and scientific manipulator of the arts or art of the East Indian Yogi and famed Mahatmas, being a daughter of India. • • •"

Lambourne says also: "In the opening of the performance it is insinuated on the part of the plaintiffs, although not directly claimed, that the feats of Mrs. Fay are due to mind reading or some other occult art of mysticism; while in truth and fact such performance is a trick, fraud and device to obtain the confidence of the audience, for the purpose of inducing them to purchase a certain publication of the plaintiffs, designated as 'Mrs. Eva Fay's Thaumaturgy Dream Book,' which pretends to explains dreams. • • • The dream book contains a fortune table, of which it is said, 'The following pages are translated from a very ancient Egyptian slab found in the cabinet of curiosities belonging to Napoleon Bonaparte.'"

PARIS HAS A SHERLOCK HOLMES.

M. Hamard Finds Murderer With Only a Shoe Button for a Clue.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—There is generally something peculiarly theatric in the methods of the French detective police. A good example of this was the manner in which a confession was extorted from Georges Amyot, a seventeen-year-old ruffian, who with the help of his thirteen-year-old brother, Paul, murdered a woman in the early part of this week after robbing her of 750 francs in money and her watch and jewelry.

The contrast between the methods of M. Hamard, the chief of detectives of Paris, and the English detective could not be more marked. The latter is obliged immediately to warn a person who has been arrested that anything he may say may be used against him. From the start he is protected by counsel of his own or appointed by the court and he is presumed to be innocent until he has been proved guilty.

Things are different in France. M. Hamard inspected the room where the murder had been committed, took a few notes and posted men in the wine shops in the neighborhood. He waited until evening, when he received a message and immediately entered a cab and drove to a dirty little cafe where Amyot. The latter made some pretence went into the wine shop and arrested Amyot. The latter mades ome pretence of resistance and his friends who had been drinking with him drew knives.

Hamard, who is a white bearded, bull necked and solid looking man of 60, said quietly that he was chief of detectives and that they had better not resist. Then turning to the other hooligans present, he said:

"Wait until you have heard the conversation and if I have made a mistake, gentlemen, you may do what you like with me."

Then, addressing the murderer, he said: "You have changed your coat. It was gray this morning, but there is blood on you. waistcoat and trousers."

"My nose has been bleeding," said Amyot.

"From excitement, I suppose," said Hamard. "Excitement, caused by your robbery of Mme. Lucas yesterday evening."

"I was nowhere near Mme. Lucas's last evening," said Amyot, who turned very pale.

"You lie," thundered Hamard, "look at your left boot."

All eyes were turned at the boot and it was seen that the third button was missing.

"Here is that button," said the chief, "I found it in your victim's blood: confess."

Amyot confessed at once.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 17.—Besides eleven schooners wrecked at Belleisle recently by the storms, seven others with over one hundred persons on board were driven ashore on the Labrador coast. Four fatalities only are reported thus far. Over 200 castaways are now awaiting the arrival of a government steamer to convey them home.

WHOLESALE ROBBERY FROM W. & C. SILVER

The Firm's Porter Was Arrested and Large Quantities of Stolen Goods Discovered.

HALIFAX, Sept. 17.—Robbery follows robbery in Halifax. The latest discovery was made by the police today when they found that the wholesale and retail dry goods and clothing firm of W. & C. Silver was the loser in this way of goods estimated to be worth more than $1,000. The police communicated their information to the firm and their porter was arrested.

The officers then went a few miles out the Margaret's Bay road leading from this city, armed with a search warrant. The result is that tonight two wagon loads of clothing which had been seized and which the police believe are Silver's, are on their way back to the city.

The police say that the porter has long had a system of removing goods from the warehouse, passing it over to the country trader, who peddled it to buyers at low rates, dividing the profits with his confederate.

W. & C. Silver had no idea that anything was wrong till the police told them.

HALIFAX BOUND TO HAVE A SOUTH SHORE SERVICE

Will Ask the Government for an Increase of $5,000 in the Subsidy to the Senlac

HALIFAX, Sept. 17.—A meeting of the committee on the steamship service on the south shore was held at the board of trade rooms this afternoon. It was found that nearly all the merchants of the city using the Senlac had signed a memorial to the Dominion government asking that the company be given an increased subsidy of $5,000 a year, making $15,000 in all, and to the local government that the provincial subsidy of $5,000 be continued.

At the same meeting it was unanimously decided to go on with the securing of subscriptions for a Halifax company to take up the service in case the Senlac, failing to get the subsidy, gives up the service. The committe will at once begin this work.

I.O.O.F. GRAND LODGE OPENS

TORONTO, Sept. 17.—The opening session of the I. O. O. F. Grand Lodge in Parliament buildings this morning was one of unusual brilliancy. Flags of all nations adorned the walls, and the Oddfellows in uniform added much color. Addresses welcoming the visitors and containing eulogistic references to Oddfellowship were given by Premier Whitney, Mayor Coatsworth, Grand Master Johnston, Grand Patriarch Powley and Miss Robbins, representing Rebekkahs. It is estimated one thousand Oddfellows are in the city.
