CLOTHES WRINGERS.

ON account of the Wringer Manufacturing Co's not being able to form a new combination to keep up the prices (the old combination having expired Jan. 1, 1882), there has been a very keen competition since and the result is that we can sell Wringers at less than it formerly cost to import them. Now is the time to buy, as a combination may be formed again at any time and prices advanced. Orders from the country promptly filled and delivered at the trains or boats without any charge for cartage or packing.

AYER'S

Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.
A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.
E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

IRISH NEWS.

IRISH NEWS AGENCY,
Palace Chambers,
London, March 15.

The Irish News Agency sends the following:—

The Government is not in a strong position. Mr. Gladstone has resisted as long as he could the Jingo section of his own Cabinet, but he has been compelled at last to yield; and now it seems that the so-called forward policy in Egypt is adopted. It is unnecessary to point out what complications this may lead to. It will be sufficient for the present to deal with the matter so far as it affects Parliamentary affairs. This new departure will, of course, necessitate lengthened discussions, and array against the Government not only the Conservatives, but some of the "Peace-at-any-price" Radicals. The Conservatives have never obstructed so openly or so shamelessly as during the present session. They have made up their minds upon two things:—First, that the Franchise Bill must be got rid of at any cost; secondly, that the Government are so weak that they can afford to flout it; and that an appeal to the country cannot by any possibility do them any damage. The result is that motions for adjournment, irregular conversations and the like are constantly occurring; and, meantime, no progress whatever is being made in Parliament.

The Government have been obliged by the pressure of the Squires on the Liberal as well as on the Conservative side to bring in a Cattle Diseases Bill. This measure was expected to pass without any controversy, but the representatives of city constituencies have got the cry up that it will raise the price of meat by excluding foreign supply, and the outcome is that the Bill has become a highly contentious one. It was the current belief that the measure would pass in a few days, but up to this, it has not been even reached. Another difficulty in the way of the Government has been the backward state of Supply. Mr. Childers, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pathetically remarked some days ago that the estimates had never before been put off to so late a period of the year, and there has been already the most unusual occurrence of a Saturday sitting in the month of March. Finally, the Government have got into another scrape by their Merchants' Shipping Bill. The shipowners are a very powerful body on both sides of the House, and they have formed a combination against Mr. Chamberlain's measure, which threatens it with prolonged discussion and probable defeat.

The result of this is that the London Reform Bill is already given up as lost, and the Franchise measure removed to a distant and not uncertain future. Lord Salisbury has been speaking against the latter reform in a manner so vigorous as to leave but little doubt that, so far as he was concerned he would have no hesitation whatever in throwing out the Bill, even if it came with a large majority to the Lords from the Commons. It is still doubtful, of course, as to whether he would be able to get his followers to take up the same rash attitude as himself; but, on the whole, the prospects of the measure reaching final success are very small.

The other question which politicians are eagerly discussing is the date of the dissolution. The opinion is pretty general that the appeal to the constituencies is certain not to take place until next year. It was thought that the programme of the Government was to pass the Franchise Bill a second time, so as to have it rejected by the Lords on two different occasions, and thus to give the Liberals a good cry to go the country upon. It seems, however, to be now quite possible that the general election will take place at a much earlier period. There is no doubt that there is intense division in the Cabinet. Mr. Gladstone is profoundly dissatisfied with how things are going, and the weakness of his health is largely due to mental worry. He is a man of so excitable and impulsive a temperament that nobody would be surprised at anything he does, and his resignation or sudden dissolution is among the possibilities, though not the probabilities of the occasion.

The Irish people are impressed with the fact that it is time for them to be prepared for the Election. Some of the constituencies are talking of the selection of candidates; and various means are proposed for doing this work. It has been suggested, for instance, that there should be County Conventions; and that these Conventions should select the representatives. The example of Cavan, where a man of good sense and excellent record was chosen, is pointed out as showing the success of this system. On the other hand, there are a great many people who regard such a mode of choice as extremely haphazard, and as likely to thow the representation into the hand of the person who would be able to intrigue most skillfully or to howl most loudly. The time has come, however, when the constituencies will have to look not merely for honesty, but also for real ability and sound sense in the representatives chosen for the new Parliament.

Everybody knows that the next Irish Party will probably have the responsibility of settling the first stage of the great Irish difficulty; and such a responsibility requires the very highest elements of political intelligence. Then a party of 70 is one which it will not be easy to keep together, and most people are aware that unless the Irish Parliamentary Party be a solid unit it might as well not exist. In order to have unity, there must be an absence of crotchetiness and of self-will which are among the rarest gifts in political life.

The Irish members have taken full advantage of the opportunities which the Estimates have given them of arraigning the whole policy of the British Government in Ireland. The decrease in the population, as shown by the last Returns, has excited considerable feeling; and by denouncing emigration, whenever the question was at all brought forward, the Irish Members have properly succeeded in destroying that form of solving the Irish difficulty. The infamous conduct of the Government in their criminal prosecutions has also been fully reviewed, and Mr. Trevelyan has made his usual lame excuses.

The Government have in the end overreached themselves, and the general tone is now so strong against them that juries have in many cases refused to convict.

The Land Commission has also been severely overhauled; and the Police tax has been so strongly assailed that it is doubtful whether any further attempts will be made to collect it. A few items rapidly mentioned will conclude this letter:—The Redmond Brothers have received a splendid reception everywhere that they appeared; the funeral of Jerome Collins was very imposing; dissatisfaction has been created by the slight sentence of eighteen months which has been inflicted upon Thos. Doherty, who fired a revolver at the procession, on the occasion of Mr. Dawson's visit to Derry, and destroyed a man's eye; and the Lord Lieutenant has again yielded to the Orangemen by prohibiting the Nationalist demonstration in Derry.

CINCINNATI, March 28.—Shortly before noon a portion of a brick building on Second street, which workmen were tearing down, suddenly fell, burying six workmen in the ruins. They were all supposed to be killed, all but one, who is still missing, were rescued. Four were injured, but none fatally.

TELEGRAPHIC.

CINCINNATI, March 30.—In all the history of Cincinnati there has never been so exciting, so terrible, and so fatal a series of events as those of Saturday night. The bloody struggles of Friday night were followed on Saturday by others still bloodier. Although the mob is composed of the better class of citizens, it is wild, leaderless and unorganized, and its mighty efforts, guided by impulse and void of system, fall unavailing, where, under organization, the very foundations of the city might easily be shaken. During the past week there has been talk of mob law and vigilance committees, but no one could have foreseen the terrible events of the past two nights. The outrageous verdict of the jury in sentencing Berner, a self-convicted, cold-blooded murderer, to 20 years' imprisonment only, was the culminating influence that inflamed the populace. There were forty murderers in jail on Friday night. Many of them had not even been tried, and when the fury of the mob was aroused, the first steps were towards the jail. Here a desperate struggle ensued during all of Friday night, many of the citizens, policemen and soldiers being killed and wounded: but the mob was repulsed, and at daylight on Saturday morning dispersed, although the citizens had reached at one time the cell doors where the murderers were confined. On Saturday night the mob again assembled and stoned the jail and court house. At nine o'clock coal oil barrels were rolled into the court house and set on fire. The mob had armed itself by ransacking an armory and a gun store. The troops fired upon the mob from the jail and court house windows, killing and wounding the rioters by scores. The mob persevered, however, and shortly the great new court house, with all valuable records, was destroyed. The mob at one time captured several cannon and were preparing to load them with nails and spikes, when the police made a rush and recaptured the guns. The military kept up the fire all night. At 3.45 a. m. on Sunday the mob dispersed, leaving many dead and dying near the scene of the conflict.

CINCINNATI, March 30, 9 p. m.—Mayor Stephenson issued a proclamation calling upon the rioters to disperse, and measures have been taken to place civil and military forces under capable leadership. There has been great lack of a leader during the entire difficulty. It is generally believed that a little generalship could have saved much loss of life last night. This was shown from the attack made by the rioters on Powell's gun store. The first man who entered the store was shot dead, as was also the second. The third wounded, and the fourth killed, when the mob gave up the attempt. Thirty police captured a cannon from the mob, vastly outnumbering the officers. The streets in the vicinity of the court house are strewn in places with bloody pools.

As far as can be learned 27 persons have been killed and 77 wounded, many of the latter fatally. Probably a dozen militiamen are among the killed and wounded.

About 8 o'clock to night the regiment guarding the Court street approach to the jail was fired into by one of the mob from the alley. The troops answered the challenge by a few shots, which were followed by a volley and several shots from a Gatling gun stationed there.

The number of injured at this hour cannot be ascertained. Firing is now being continued at intervals in all directions. It is the purpose of the militia to clear the streets.

A later despatch says that at 9.25 o'clock word was received at general headquarters that a large mob had broken into the Music Hall by forcing the door and were trying to man the cannon in Power Hall. Companies D and E. of the 6th Regiment were sent to drive them out and succeeded without bloodshed. The streets of Cincinnati present a strange appearance indeed. Innumerable concert halls, saloons, restaurants and other places of resort are closed, and knots of men are standing around discussing the situation, instead of promenading the streets or seeking different places of amusement as is usually a Sunday evening's programme.

In judging the posibilities of the action of this mob its origin must be borne in mind. It is not organized to destroy property but to deal out justice to criminals where the courts failed. The destruction of the court house was not in the line of its purpose, and not approved by hundreds who would willingly have broken the jail to pieces in order to get at the murderers. Now that the military guard all the jail approaches and are in power, the mob has no further cause to exist.

The Turner's Society have armed themselves to join the mob. The Germans have been intensely indignant at the Berner verdict. Should this organization enter the lists most serious trouble may be expected, as they are men of such tenacity of purpose as to be well feared.

CINCINNATI, March 31. 12.15 a.m. The mob have taken possession of the roofs of houses in the vicinity of Court and Walnut streets and are firing down upon the militia in line in front of the court house. The crowd has almost entirely fallen back from Court street, leaving the street clear to Vine. Very evidently the backbone of the mob is broken. The military seem to be getting entirely demoralized in their firing.

LONDON, March 28.—Orders have been sent to Gen. Graham to return immediately with troops.

The presence of the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur, at an elephant fight given the Rajah of Bhurtpore, India, will be made the subject of a question in Parliament. The elephants are made to fight by giving them copious draughts of rum. Some become so drunk that they can scarcely stand while others are rendered furious.

LONDON, March, 30.—It is reported that on the 16th, Gen. Gordon made a sortie from Khartoum with 3,000 men, two guns and a squadron of Beshi-Bazouk cavalry, accompanied by three steamers in the river. The rebels were encountered near Halfiyeb. Sixty of the enemy's cavalry charged the Bashi-Bazouks and put them to flight, causing a panic among the infantry; who also fled in great disorder. Gen. Gordon returned to Khartoum. Notwithstanding this check, he declares Khartoum is quite safe.

On nearing the rebels, Gen. Gordon drew up his troops in the form of a square, in which they kept until attacked by the enemy, when the Egyptians turned and fled Two hundred of them were slaughtered. and three guns were lost. There are enough provisions at Khartoum to enable the town to hold out until winter.

To Our Subscribers.

Many of our subscribers have not yet renewed their subscriptions for the present year. They will oblige us very much by forwarding the amounts at once. Others in different sections of the Province owe for the paper for various periods longer than a year, and as we have had to incur a heavy expense recently in procuring additional machinery, &c., we find it necessary to call on them to pay up. The sums due are not large in any case—in some cases mere trifles—but they aggregate an amount larger than, with our present expenses, we can afford to have standing on our books. We hope, therefore, that all our friends will send along without delay the amounts they owe, thereby enabling us to meet our own engagements and at the same time to make some contemplated improvements in the paper which, we believe, will render it still more deserving of the support of those whose support and approval it has for so many years received.
