The prospects for the indigo crop in unfavorable. Rain is badly wanted.

Just as the procession was about to start several loud explosions were heard which were believed to be the work of dynamite and the greatest concentration amongst the crowds, but which on enquiry were found to be nothing more than a salute in honor of the birth of the Duchess of Albany's son. The line of march was from the Thames embankment to Hyde Park and all along the route the streets were a surging mass of humanity which at times completely blocked the procession, and one place had to be vacated for fully an hour and a half while the police were clearing the way. At the Park speeches were made and a resolution previously passed was submitted and adopted. It protested against the rejection of the franchise bill by the House of Commons, and the House of Lords, and expressed approval of Mr. Gladstone's action, and declared that the continued rejection of unchecked power of impeding the popular will, which the Lords exercise, is not in accordance with the wishes of the people and the welfare of the country and the prosperity of the country.

All the notables of both Houses of Parliament reviewed the procession at various points. According to their sympathies for or against the bill were expressed by the multitude, but on the whole the people were orderly and well conducted. Very few speakers ridiculed the demonstration as an attempt to "legislate by mob," but even while doing this they showed that they themselves have faith in the effectiveness of such popular gatherings in preparing to get up a counter measures.

A Lamentable Failure of High

Taxation.

(Toronto Globe.)

The suspension of the known firm of

Wm. Parks & Son, St. John, New

Brunswick, is one of the strongest proofs of the deplorable failure of the taxation that has yet been furnished. This firm was doing a good business before Confederation. This business steadily increased and grew more rapidly when the markets of the other provinces were thrown open to them. Their goods and especially their yarns found a ready market. Their factory was repeatedly enlarged, and before the disaster of 1878, had attained a reputation which was well known throughout the country. Mr. Parks was generally considered a man of sound judgment and business ability, and like many others who professed to be successful, he was carried away by the promises made by the policy of high taxation. He was one of those who worked earnestly to force that policy on the country. For the increase of his business, and the increase of his taxes, he was enabled to carry on his business and to expand his capacity of his factory and to pay his debts. In the first year of the high taxation he paid a dividend of 10 per cent. on the value of his shares. In the second year he paid 15 per cent. In the third year he
