

or a portion of them, many and serious obstacles are presented, which can only be overcome by mutual consultation of the leading men of the Colonies, and by free communication with the Imperial Government.

"Therefore resolved, That His Excellency the Lieut. Governor be respectfully requested to put himself in communication with His Grace the Colonial Secretary and His Excellency the Governor General, and the North American Colonies, in order to ascertain the policy of Her Majesty's Government, and the opinions of the other Colonies, with a view to the enlightened consideration of a question involving the highest interests, and upon which the public mind in all the Provinces ought to be set at rest."

The charge of having pressed this matter "with indecent haste," the Council cannot understand, as more than a year was suffered to elapse after the proposal to unite these Provinces was submitted to the Legislature before any action was invited thereon.—The Council emphatically deny that any "use or abuse of Her Majesty's name" has been resorted to in carrying this question, which has not been fully sanctioned by Her Majesty's Ministers, who in the papers submitted to Parliament by Her Majesty's command, declared that it was "the determination of Her Majesty's Government to use every proper means of influence to carry into effect, without delay, the proposed Confederation."

It is quite true that the Council have felt themselves justified in drawing the attention of the Legislature strongly to the following paragraph in the despatch of the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and in urging upon them the duty of adopting the defensive measures thus emphatically urged upon our attention, lest we might imperil the disposition of the Imperial Government to afford us protection:—

"But there is one consideration which Her Majesty's Government feel it more especially their duty to press upon the Legislature of Nova Scotia. Looking to the determination which this country has ever exhibited to regard the defence of the colonies as a matter of Imperial concern, the colonies must recognize a right and even acknowledge an obligation incumbent on the Home Government to urge with earnestness and just authority the measures which they consider most expedient on the part of the colonists, with a view to their own defence."

"Nor can it be doubtful that the Provinces of British North America are incapable, when separate and divided from each other, of making those just and efficient preparations for national defence which would be easily undertaken by a Province uniting in itself all the population and the resources of the whole."

The statement that the action of the Legislature gives power to "certain gentlemen to be selected by the local Government to change, modify, or overturn the institutions of this Province at their pleasure," is best refuted by the terms of the resolution itself, which are as follows:—

"Whereas, in the opinion of this House it is desirable that a Confederation of the British North American Provinces shall take place:

"Resolved therefore, That His Excellency the Lieut. Governor be authorized to appoint Delegates to arrange with the Imperial Government a scheme of Union which will effectually ensure just provision for the rights and interests of this Province, each Province to have an equal voice in such delegation—Upper and Lower Canada being, for this purpose considered as separate Provinces."

It is complained by the Memorialists that this action is proposed to be taken without "any reference to the people,"—it is declared that they would resent "such a violation of the trust reposed in their representatives," and it is asked that nothing shall be done without having the measure first submitted to "the people at the polls."

When the late Government, of which Messrs. Annand and Locke were members, obtained authority to deal with the subject of a Union of the Colonies, they invited the action of the other Colonies at Government by an official communication signed by Mr. Howe, the then Provincial Secretary, of which the following is an extract:—

"You will perceive that the Colonial Governments are left free to invite all the leading men of all the Provinces concerned, to a discussion of the question of Union, either of all the Provinces, or the Maritime Provinces only: and Her Majesty's Government, it would appear, are disposed to give due weight and consideration to any resolutions in which the Colonial Legislatures may concur."

"It must be obvious that there can be no great progress made towards an adjustment of this question unless the resolutions to be submitted to the Colonial Legislatures are in substance the same, and in order that uniformity in spirit, and, if possible, in language may be secured."

It does not seem then to have been considered necessary to refer the question to the people at the polls.

The same Government also put on record on various other occasions their opinions as to the legitimate powers of the Representatives of the people, as may be seen by the following extracts from Minutes of Council, Nov. 1st, 1860:—

"A vast majority of the people of England are not represented in Parliament at all, yet the Executive Council need not inform your Excellency that a public man would be laughed at who claimed to seize the government because he had their support. Forty counties in England, with a population in 1841 of 9,109,281, had but 143 members, while 187 cities and boroughs, including but 5,879,327, had 323. Now what would be thought of any statesman, with the county members at his back, if he claimed to rule England, or compel the Sovereign to dissolve, with the representatives of the cities and boroughs against him. What representative of the smallest constituency in Great Britain would yield to the member returned by the largest any more influence than he had himself; or admit before a ministry was turned out that it was necessary not only to count the members in the lobbies, but their constituents also?"

* * At this moment a majority of the people, of the constituencies and of their representatives support the Administration, and we have a larger proportionate majority to sustain us than Lord Palmerston has in the Mother Country. Under these circumstances, we are not very much afraid of the interference of the Imperial Parliament."

January 29, 1861.—Minute:—"Mr. Hatfield and Mr. Campbell are the best judges of the soundness of their own views and the propriety of their conduct. They are not delegates but members of Parliament, and from the moment of their election they were bound to represent, not only Digby or Argyle, but the whole Province, whose great interests were committed to their care. This doctrine laid down by Mr. Burke at Bristol in 1774, has never been questioned in the Imperial Parliament: and Mr. Horsman, member for Stroud, though recently called on by his constituents to resign, has asserted his rights, and illustrating this sound British doctrine, positively refused. It members were to resign whenever for a moment they displeased their constituents, the calls would be frequent—personal independence would be rare, and questions would be discussed by requisitions rather than by fair deliberation and manly debates. If Parliament were to be dissolved whenever a gentleman changed sides, or a discontented constituency petitioned, free institutions would become an endless distraction, and no man would ever dare to deliberate or run the risk of being convinced."

March 30th, 1861. Lord Melbourne, by the advice of the Government, of which Mr. Howe was the leader, and Messrs. Annand and Locke were members, said in a despatch to the Colonial Secretary:—

"It is the undoubted principle of the British Constitution that a member once returned by a constituency has to consider what he believes to be the interests of the whole country, and not the simple wishes of his own constituency. He is elected a Representative and not a delegate, and the constituency have given to him for the limited period fixed by law for the duration of Parliament, the power which they possess. They have a right to represent to him their views and to refuse to re-elect him at the end of the Parliament, if they are dissatisfied with his conduct, but they have no right, pending the duration of the Parliament, to coerce his actions, still less have they the right to expect that the Royal Prerogative should be used because they are dissatisfied with the choice they have made."

In conclusion the Council may state that more than a year since they submitted the proceedings of the Quebec Conference to the Legislature—that this question of the Union of the British North American Colonies has been a subject of constant discussion in this Province from that time, yet the opponents of Union were only able to obtain the signatures of 8,085 people out of a population of not less than 350,000 for presentation to the House during the present session, praying that it might be referred to the people at the polls. The foregoing resolution, after full deliberation and discussion, was carried in the Legislative Council by a vote of 13 to 5, and in the House of Assembly by 31 to 19. All the members of the present Government and four members of the late Government, of which Mr. Howe was the leader, united in sustaining the resolution, while but two voted against it.

Under these circumstances the Council believe they are fully warranted in the opinion that the public sentiment of this Province has been most emphatically expressed on this great question in the manner recognized by the Constitution of this Province and the practice of Great Britain.
