TAKE CARE OF YOUR CELLARS.

When you leave a house, leave it empty, swept and clean, fit for any decent person to occupy. Wherever soapuds or white-wash can be properly applied, let them be abundantly used. But it is very likely you will have to move into a house that looks like a pig-pen; the cellar, especially, will be filled with all sorts of unclean things,—decaying vegetables, bones, skins, old shoes, greasy tubs, and the like; the cobwebs will show you that the walls have not been swept within the memory of man; the closets and pantries with their shelving will show grease and soiled spots and strains of every color and description; these will tell you exactly what your predecessors were. Let your first and greatest care be given to the cellar; move nothing into it; move every movable thing out of it; let every grating and door and window be kept wide open, from daylight until bed-time; let the walls and floor be swept as clean as a stiff broom can do it. Let the sweeping and airing be repeated every day for a week; then whitewash the ceiling and the walls two or three coats with lime that has never been slacked; then scatter several pounds of copperas around the walls and in the corners. All this care should be taken, because if the air of the cellar is bad, it is constantly ascending into the building, your parlors, your chambers, and your halls, so that you are breathing it day and night; the utmost pains should be taken to keep the cellars of our dwellings sweet and clean. There ought to be no cellar under any human habitation.—Hall's Journal.

DIG AROUND THE TREES.

This advice needs to be repeated daily. Every farmer knows that a hill of corn or potatoes will not amount to much unless cultivated, and yet there are many who will neglect to give the same care to a tree which is worth a hundred hills of either of the former. In rich soils, trees may grow rapidly without cultivation, and no amount of grass or weeds will retard them; but there are other things besides growth to be looked after. If the weeds and grass are allowed to grow up around the stems of apple, peach, or quince trees, the bark will become soft near their base by being shaded, and thereby be in a suitable condition for the reception of the eggs which will eventually become peach or apple borers. Take any dozen young apple-trees in sections where the apple-tree borer is abundant, and allow a portion to be choked with weeds, and the remainder well cultivated, and then watch the result. From our own experience we believe that the chances are nine to one in favor of those cultivated being exempt from this pest. The same is true in regard to many other trees which are liable to the attacks of various species of insects. Young evergreens should never have their lower branches shaded with weeds and grass, and the soil as far as the lower branches extend should be stirred at least once in two or three weeks during the entire summer, or else apply some kind of mulching that will effectually keep down the weeds. When the trees become large and strong, these precautions will not be necessary. Every blade of grass or small weed that is allowed to grow about the stem of young trees will rob the soil of moisture, and this fact alone ought to be sufficient to make every one practice thorough and careful culture.

ABOUT MILKING.

Five per cent., and perhaps ten, can be added to the amount of milk obtained from the cows of this country, if the following rules are inexorably followed:

- 1st. Never hurry cows in driving to and from the pasture.
- 2nd. Milk as near at equal intervals as possible. Half-past five in the morning and six at night are good hours.
- 3rd. Be especially tender of the cow at milking time.
- 4th. When seated, draw the milk as rapidly as possible, being certain to always get it all.
- 5th. Never talk or think of anything beside what you are doing while milking.
- 6th. Offer some caress, and always a soothing word, when you approach a cow and when you leave her. The better she loves you, the more free and complete will be her abandon as you sit at her side.

The following are not uncommon bad practices:

- 1st. Boys turn the cows away, and he who is fond of throwing stones switches the hind ones every chance he gets.

2nd. Milk early in the morning and late at night, dividing the day into two portions, one of fifteen hours and the other nine.

3rd. Whack the cow on the back with the stool, or speak sharply to her if she does not obey instantly.

4th. Milk slowly and carelessly, and stop at the first slackening of the fluid.

5th. Talk and laugh, and perhaps squirt milk at companion milkers, when seated at the cow.

6th. Keep the animal in a tremble all the time you are milking, and when done give her a vigorous kick.

AYER'S Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative

Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative.

Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effective remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following various diseases, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them.

A adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their soothing action preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable in their origin, and free from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the result of their origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaints and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhoea, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.
