The Secret of Happiness.

One of my neighbors in town and church, is an old lady, whose dress is of a style belonging to no period of fashion. I wonder, sometimes, if for forty years the cost of it has exceeded as many dollars. Her step is light as a girl's, her manner bright and cherry, and over her otherwise homely face spreads the glow of a heart at peace with God. Her youth was spent in a struggle for daily bread, and scarcely was this pressure removed before she was called upon to mourn the loss of first one and then another loved member of her family, until she has outlived every relative. Her home is plain, almost bare of the luxuries considered as indispensable to comfort, yet there is not one from whom I so much enjoy a visit as this solitary woman, ever so warm in greeting, so cheerfully companionable.

"There is so much heart-ease about you," I once said to her, "that it refreshes me to meet you. Why, you are the youngest and happiest person I have seen to-day!"

"Oh, yes," she replied, smiling, "I have stopped growing old, for each day brings me nearer the possession of endless youth, in my better home. And how can I be sad in this beautiful world where my heavenly Father has placed me?"

"Still you have had your full share of trials and sorrows."

"Yes, I have surely passed through a valley of Baca, but by the grace of God I have been able to make it a well. But, my friend," she continued, "I have been happy only since I ceased to strain after what was beyond my reach, and resolved no longer to hug to my bosom my griefs and disappointments, but to take them all to God, and leave them with Him, content to be what he wishes, and only that."—Christian Weekly.

The Baptist Weekly says that a "revival of religion is said to be in progress in the native city of the Apostle Paul. Let us indulge the hope that Tarsus will soon enjoy the distinction of having a flourishing church that will do honour to the name of the great Apostle to the Gentiles."

"From what I saw of your new Emulsion, 'Budd's,' while residing in the P. and C. Hospital, I have no hesitation in recommending it as a most agreeable and trustworthy preparation of cod LIVER OIL.
