The Gospel as preached to a dying Boy. The following simple but precious lines, were written to to all our young friends who are "seeking Jesus.

Dear George, last Monday, when I saw you lie So sick and ill, I fear'd you soon might die; For deep disease has seized your little frame, isease for which no remedy they name. You soon must change, and changing learn to know An immortality of joy or woo! You look sround for help; you look and see That every earthly means has failed with thee.

Look at thy mother-Can thy mother save. Or snatch thy body from an early grave? he loves thee more than any here below, And grieves to see ther laid by sickness low; Yet is her love as nothing when compared With Jesus' love, who all thy sorrows shared ; Nay, more than shared; who in His body bore The guilt of all who trust Him, evermore.

Can you not trust him? Listen to His word, lasten, remembering that He is the Lord, Whose word shall stand, when mountains cannot stay-Shall stand when heaven and earth shall pass away, "Look unto Me, and be ye saved," He said "TRUST in thy God," and He shall lift thy head;
"Come unto Mr," when burden'd and dismay'd;
"Believe on Jesus," and thou shalt be saved; "HEAR and your soul shall live," He says again, "Warr on the Lord," and you shall strength obtain.

Tis not thy "loot" that saves; 'tis not thy "trust;" Tis not thy "coming," and yet come you must. Tis not "believing" which can save the soul; It is not "believing" which can make thee whole. It is the Object open which you rest, That brings contentment to your longing breast. "Come unto JESUS"-Hear His gracious word.

Do you not feel, when laid upon your bed, None like Mamma can soothe your aching head? Do you not know, when fits of sickness rise, Mamma is look'd for, with most anxious eyes? You never think, while looking in distress For her, your looking makes your sickness less. Her kindness cheers you; her affection soothes: Tis she, not looking, that the pain removes. Remember too, when sick in Buffalo, How much you wished to her at once to go.

But well I know the thought ne'er cross'd your mind, v going to Mamma will make her kind. You know she loved you, and would wipe your tears: Mamma, not going, then assuaged your fears. Though hating medicine, yet if she sees best, You take e'en poison, ere you go to rest. When doctors come, and talk about your case, You listen to her words, you watch her face; irk the expression of her well-known eye, And are content to bear, if she will try. Tis not your trust that soothes your anxious broast, Mamma you trust in, and in her find rest.

Transfer this trust to Jesus Christ dear boy; Come to thy Saviour, and thou shalt find joy. A mother may forget her darling babe; A parent wan, but lack the ponce, to save; But Jesus never can forget His own; Eternal power dwells with Him alone. O, fly to Jesus! He'shall give you rest. Rest from your anxious care, while here below; Rest, when through death's dark vale you slowly go; Rest, in the grave, till that dread morn shall come, When Christ shall take thee, soul and body home. Then rest shall cease: Describe Praise.

One loud continued song of joyful praise.

M. R. Junes. Then rest shall cease: before His throne you'll raise
