

Poetry.

Holiness unto the Lord.

Write on your garnered treasures,
Write on your choicest pleasures,
Upon things new and old,
The precious stone and gold;
On outward riches, write—
On bosomed riches, write—
Wife, husband, children, friends,
On all that goodness lends:
On athen where you kneel;
Where Mercy doth reveal
Herself—on your good name,
Upon every cherished fame:
On every pleasant thing;
On stores that heaven doth bring
Into your basket—write!
Upon the smile of God,
Upon the scolding rod,
Write on your inmost heart—
Write upon every part Of thy mysterious frame;
To him from whom it came—
To him who claims the whole,
Time, talents, body, soul—
To whom small birds belong,
And words that wheel in song—
Ocean and little rills,
The everlasting hills;
Where shadows wings, as well
For heaven as the lowly bell:
Who moves the planets dance,
Who marks the blade's advance;
Whose coming stirs the dead;
Write! for it shall be read,
When finally expire
Suns on their funeral pyre:
Upon his footstool write!
Upon his throne go write,
HOLINESS TO THE LORD!

Jesus Died for Me.

I love to sing of that great power,
That made the earth and sea;
But better still I love the song
Of "Jesus died for me."

I love to sing of throb and flower,
Of field and plant and tree;
My sweetest note for ever is,
That "Jesus died for me."

I love to hear the little birds
Amid their notes with glee;
But gentlest mirth can ne'er suggest
That "Jesus died for me."

I love to think of angels' songs,
From sin and sorrow free;
But angel cannot strike their notes
To "Jesus died for me."

I love to know the time shall come
When men shall happy be;
But I am happy now, because
My "Jesus died for me."

I love to speak of God, of heaven,
And all its purity—
God is my Father—heaven my home—
For "Jesus died for me."

And when I reach that happy place,
From all temptation free,
I'll tune my ever rapturous notes
With "Jesus died for me."

Miscellany.

A Visit to the Tombs.

The Tombs is a great prison in the lower part of New-York city. Its walls are of massive granite. They are very thick and strong, and so high that it would be impossible to climb over them without the aid of ladders. The style of architecture is Egyptian, such as we see in the ruins of the old tombs found in Egypt, and I suppose this is the reason why the prison has received its name. It is not far from Broadway, and can be seen from that thoroughfare and busy street. I sometimes go there to see the prisoners. The Tombs is very full now. As I looked up to the different corridors I could see great numbers of men standing, or moving about to take what exercise they could in those narrow walks. A keepers always with them, except when they are in their cells. Men guilty of every variety of crime are there confined. It is enough to make one's blood run cold to stand in one of those corridors, and think that those men are there. Almost the first person my eye rested upon was a man who had been sentenced for murder, and there were many others near me guilty of same crime. "What a place to learn evil," I remarked to one of the keepers, as I saw these men talking with each other, and imagined what must be the subject of their conversation. "They have learned evil before they came here," he replied, "and come here and talk it over." He was right. Those men were once little children as you are now, and they began by doing wrong in small things. Perhaps some of them were never taught better, but it could not be so with all. The boys who many years ago allowed themselves to get angry and to strike and kick their companions, little thought that was the first step in the way which would lead them to take the life of another. But, as the Bible tells us, "an angry man is stirred up to strife, and a furious man aboundeth in transgression." Most of the prisoners, I don't not, can trace back their present condition to one of two causes—either to the unchecked indulgence of anger, or to the habit of using intoxicating drinks. Had it not been for this want of self-control, these men might now have been respectable members of society. I hope none of you, dear children, will come to so sad a fate as these, but if you would not, you must be careful not to take the first step which would lead to it. I always tremble for my young friends when I see them allowing themselves to be vexed and angry, and I think of wicked Cain who slew his own brother.

In some of the lower cells, I saw boys not more than eleven years old. Most of these were put in for theft. There was a German boy, named George, with a dark hazel eye and a fair, intelligent face, who had been locked up there for "stealing out." He did not look like a bad boy. His lip curved as I talked with him, and if he had been alone I am sure he would have wept. There were three other boys in the cell with him, but they were older than he, and far less agreeable in their appearance. Lined up the street about his house and his parents. He told me the street and number where his father, who is a mechanic here. His mother whipped him, and he ran away from home, and was taken up for sleeping in the street. Perhaps his mother was angry when she punished him, and perhaps he was innocent of the offence for which she corrected him, but it would have been far better for the boy to have yielded quietly and been obedient, than to expose himself to be taken up as a vagrant. I pined George, and would most gladly have relieved him, but I could do nothing for him. There was a strong, grated iron door between us, and there was so much noise in the prison that I could not even hear all he said to me in his soft and gentle voice. If he could be taken to a kind country home, I should be little doubt his growing up a good and virtuous man. I shall never forget him, though I shall probably never see or hear of him again. I tell you about him that you may learn to avoid the sin which brought him to the Tombs—disobedience to his parents. "Honor thy father and thy mother," as you all know, was one of the commandments given to Moses, and no child can prosper who does not keep it. If you are ever tempted to indulge in a disobedient spirit, think of this poor German boy, and pray to your Heavenly Father to incline your heart to keep his holy law.

There are many persons put in the Tombs for drunkenness. As I have seen them brought in so stupid and idiotic, it has seemed almost impossible that a soul can dwell in such an unworthy body. There they lie on the stone floor, or wherever they may be placed utterly helpless and unconscious, giving no more evidence of intellectual life than the earth-worm that crawls in our path. Nearly all the women committed to the prison are confined for this vice. While I was there last week, two were brought in screaming and screaming. "I don't want to come to this place. I don't want to come to this place." It is shocking and fearful to see a man thus degrade himself below the level of a beast, but to see a woman thus outrage her nature is terrible beyond expression. If any one doubts the necessity of a Maine Law, I should advise him to visit our prison. It is not unusual for individuals dismissed in the morning to be back again in the cells before night. They have no strength of purpose and no power to resist the offered temptation. If they could not obtain intoxicating drinks they would never become inmates of the prison, but might live in comfort and comparative respectability.

Learn, children, to control your appetites and passions in early childhood, else, some of the loved ones who now read this, may sadden their pleasant homes with the dark shadow of crime.

ANNA H.
—A. Y. Independent.

Asa and Ira.

Asa and Ira were two brothers, whose farms lay side by side in a fertile interval.

When the corn, the oats and the barley were springing up, the weeds took advantage of the rich soil and came up with them.

"Do you see," said Asa, "what a hold the weeds are taking? There is danger of their choking out the crops entirely."

"Well, well we must be resigned," replied Ira. "Weeds as well as grain were a part of the Creator's plan, and there is no use in murmuring about them."

And he laid down for his usual afternoon doze.

"I can only be resigned to what I can't help," said Asa. So he went to work and plowed and hoed until his fields were clear of weeds.

"The army worms are in the neighborhood," said Asa to Ira one day.

"They have eaten through the adjoining meadows, and are moving towards us."

"Ah," exclaimed Ira, "they will surely destroy what the weeds have not choked out. I will immediately retire to pray that their course may be stopped or turned aside."

But Asa replied, "I pray sometimes every morning, for strength to do the work of the day."

And he hastened to dig a trench round his land which the army-worms could not pass—while Ira returned only in season to save a small portion of his crops from their ravages.

"Do you see, Ira?" said Asa, another morning, "the river is rising very fast. There is but a slender chance of preventing ours from being overflowed."

"Alas! it is a judgment upon us for our sins, and what can we do?" cried Ira, throwing himself in despair upon the ground.

"There are no judgments so severe as those which our sloth brings upon us," replied Asa.

And he went quickly and hired workmen, with whose help he raised an embankment that withstood the flood, while Ira witnessed with blank looks and folded hands the destruction of his harvest.

"There is one consolation," said he, "my children, at least, are left me."

But while Asa's sons grew up strong and virtuous men, among Ira's there was a drunkard, a gambler and a suicide.

"The ways of the Lord are not equal," complained Ira to his brother. "Why are you always prospered, while I am afflicted, and my old age disgraced?"

"I only know this," replied Asa, "that Heaven has always helped me to treat the faults of my children as I did the weeds, the caterpillars and the flood; and that I have never presumed to send a petition upward without making toil, my right-hand servant, the messenger of my prayer."

LARRY LARSON.

Little Tommy.

Does not this simple story remind the reader of some other little Tommy who has sanctified a trifle by the magic of his touch and left it to be cherished as a priceless thing? It is from the Charleston News.

Whilst passing rapidly up King street, we saw a little boy sitting on a curb-stone. He was apparently about five or six years old, and his well-combed hair, clean hands, and face, bright though well-patched upon, and whole appearance indicated that he was the child of a loving, though indigent mother. As we looked at him closely, we were struck with the heart broken expression of his countenance, and the mark of recent tears on his cheek.

So, yielding to an impulse which always leads us to sympathize with joys or sorrows of the little ones, we stopped, and putting a hand upon his head, asked what was the matter? He replied by holding up his open hand, in which we beheld the fragments of a broken tin toy—a figure of a cow.

"Oh! is that all—well, never mind it. Step into the nearest toy-shop and buy another—and we dropped a fourpenny in his hand—that will buy one if it not?"

"Oh, yes," replied he, bursting into a paroxysm of grief, "but this was little Tommy's and he's dead!"

We gave him the last piece of silver we possessed, but had it been gold, we doubt if he would have noticed it more than he did the silver. The wealth of the world could not have supplied the vacancy that the breaking of that toy had left in his little unsophisticated heart.

PROFANITY, A SOCIAL VICE.—What is the public tendency of profanity? Ask the children who surround your fireside or swarm through your streets; ask your servants and dependants, who dare not do before you what you do before heaven's God; ask each other, from the highest to the lowest class of community—ask, I say, who invented the vocabulary of oaths and curses, and I will venture to predict that not a single one can be found who will claim the merit of originality. Each individual received the contagion from others; and certainly a more impressive commentary on the force of public example cannot be conceived.—S. Larned.

[From George Washbourne Morgan.]
M. A. STEVENS, Agent.
New York, June 17, 1854.

Messrs. MASON & HAMLIN,
Gentlemen—I have the pleasure of trying one of your Melodeons this morning. I am strongly recommended to parties wishing to study the Organ, and can assure you for my own use, I should select one of your make.
Most faithfully yours,
GEO. WASHBOURNE MORGAN.
Late Organist of St. Clare's, Southwark, the Parish Church of South Hackney, and in the Harmonic Union, Easter Hall, London.
St. John, N. B., March 27, 1855.
M. STEVENS.—Dear Sir—It is with pleasure I make known to you the opinion of myself and many others, of the MELODEON purchased from you a few months ago. This instrument manufactured by MASON & HAMLIN, has given me satisfaction, both in Tone, Touch, and Power, and I do freely confess, that it is the best I have ever seen. Since the introduction of this instrument in our Church Practice we find a great improvement, thereby sustaining the Voice, and procuring a perfect Tone to every Note.
I am dear Sir, yours truly,
R. D. MATHUR,
Conductor of St. Andrew's Church Choir.

F. W. CLEAR'S Marble Works Establishment

AYER'S PILLS.

OPERATE by their powerful influence on the internal vicera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action. They remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, by restoring their irregular action to health, correct, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first causes of disease. An extensive trial of their virtues, by Professors, Physicians, and Patients, has shown cures of dangerous diseases almost beyond belief, were they not substantiated by persons of sound exalted position and character as to forbid the suspicion of fraud. Their certificates are published in my American Almanac, which the Agents below named are pleased to furnish free to all inquiring.

For a full description of their use in the complaints which they have been found to cure.

FOR CONSTIPATION.—Take one or two Pills, or frequently as gently move the bowels. Constipation is frequently the aggravating cause of PILES, and the cure of one complaint is the cure of both. No person can feel well while under a constipated habit of body. Hence it should be, as it can be, promptly relieved.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, which is sometimes the cause of Constipation, and always uncomfortable, take mild doses—from one to four—to stimulate the stomach and liver into healthy action. They will do it, and the heartburn, dyspepsia, and suffering of dyspepsia will rapidly disappear. When it has gone, don't forget what cured you.

FOR A FOUL STOMACH, or Morbid Inaction of the Bowels which produces general depression of the Spirits and has been known to cause death from four to eight Pills at first, and smaller doses afterwards, until activity and strength is restored to the system.

FOR NERVOUSNESS, SICK HEADACHE, NAUSEA, PAIN in the Stomach, Back, or Side, take from four to eight pills on going to bed. If they do not operate sufficiently, take more the next day until they do. These complaints will be swept out from the system. Don't wear those kindred disorders because your stomach is foul.

FOR SCROFULA, GONORRHOEA, and all Diseases of the Skin, take the Pills freely, and frequently, to keep the bowels open.
The eruptions will generally begin to diminish and disappear. Many dreadful ulcers and sores have been healed up by the purging effect of these Pills, and some disgusting diseases which seemed to saturate the whole system have completely yielded to their influence, leaving the sufferer in perfect health. Patients' duty to society forbids that you should parade yourself around the world covered with pimples, blotches, ulcers, sores, and all or any of the unclean diseases of the skin, because your system wants cleansing.

To FURTHER THE BLOOD, they are the best medicine ever discovered. They should be taken freely and frequently, and the impurities which seed the seeds of incurable diseases will be swept out of the system like chaff before the wind. By this property they do as much good in preventing sickness as by the remarkable cures which they are making every where.

LIVER COMPLAINT, JAUNDICE, and all Bilious Affections arise from some derangement—either torpidity, congestion, or obstruction of the liver. Torpidity and congestion vitiate the bile and render it unfit for digestion. This is disastrous to the health, and the constitutions frequently undermined by no other cause. Indigestion is the symptom Obstruction of the duct which empties the bile into the stomach causes the bile to stagnate in the liver, and the whites of the eyes become a greenish yellow; the skin and the whites of the eyes become a greenish yellow; the stomach aches; the bowels sore to the touch; the whole system irritable, with a tendency to fever, which may turn to bilious fever, bilious colic, bilious diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. A medium dose of three or four Pills taken at night, followed by two or three in the morning, and repeated a few days, will remove the cause of all these troubles. It is wicked to suffer such pains when you can cure them for 25 cents.

FOR RHEUMATISM, GOUT, and all Inflammatory Fevers are resolved by the purifying effects of these Pills. They sweep the blood and the stimulus which they afford to the vital principle of life. For these and all kindred complaints they will be taken in full doses, to move the bowels gently, but freely.

As a DETERGENT, this is both agreeable and useful. No Pill can be made more pleasant to take, and certainly none has been made more effectual to the purpose for which a dis-pense is employed.

MONUMENTS &c.
The business heretofore carried on by McKIM & CLEAR, will hereafter be conducted at the old stand, Germain street, the name and account of the Subscriber, who has now on hand a most superior and complete stock in his line. MONUMENTS, TOMB TABLES, MAN-TLE PIECES, &c. &c., combining beauty of design, correctness of finish, and durability of material.
The Subscriber is determined that his work shall be trouble, or expense, to maintain the fame his work has secured throughout the Provinces. Determined to satisfy all who may kindly favor him with patronage, he will receive no pay until the articles ordered are finished, and not then, unless they give complete satisfaction. He is prepared to continue to rival all those firms of Yankee workmen endeavoring to build up their inferior fame upon the ruins of his Establishment, and who seem to think wretched workmanship may be palmed off with impunity upon this community, while the members of such firms give neither personal attention nor superintendence to the execution of their work. Having studied his business in England and Scotland, he has since his commencement of business in St.
John, carefully contrasted all competitors whose importations from the United States have been numerous. He desires to defend no man, but as a hard-working BRITISH MECHANIC he thinks himself more deserving patronage than all these and foreigners, particularly when the latter give their patrons more Monuments of Mistake and blotches, while he has given, does now and will hereafter give MARBLE chaste and lasting, fitting Monuments for the graves of departed friends, twenty per cent. better, more beautiful and more substantial than can elsewhere be obtained.
