THE CHOICE.

The following lines were written by M 'CHEYNE, on hearing a young lady say that she would stick by the world.

> And its paltry crowd; She has chosen the world. And an endless shrood; The has chosen the world, And its mismamed picasures ; She has chosen the world.

Before Heaven's own treasure On life's giddy sen And her all is affect, For Eternity But Bethlehem's star Is not in her view,

Brow the harbor true. When the storm descends From an angry sky, Ah! where from the winds Shall the vessel fly? And rodder goos, And Heaven is scaled

And her aim is far-

The whirlpool opes For the gallant prise, And with all her hopes To the deep she have But who may tell Of the place of woo, Where the winked dwell, Where the worldlings go ?

For the human lieart Can me'er conceive; What joys are the part Of them who believe; Nor can justly think Of that cap of death Of which all must drin Who despise the faith:

Away, then, -Oh fiv. From the jose of earth, Her smile is a lie— There's a sting in her mirth. Come, leave the dreams Of this transient night, And bask in the beam Of an endless hight,

THE BOUNDLESS LOVE OF GOD.

Could occurs, rivers, springs, and lakes, All that the name of water takes, Beneath th' expanded skies, Be turn'd to ink of bluckest hue, Add, too, the drope of morning dow, To make the wonder rise;

A book so large could no suspece. Which thinnest paper could compose, As the whole earthly ball: Were every shrub and every tree, And every blade of grass we see,

Were all who ever lived onearth, Since nature first received her birth, Most skilfal scribes to place In charest light that wondrous love.

Were each Methoselah in ago, And every moment wrote a page, They'd all be tired and die; The pens would every one wear out; book be falses within, without The ink be drain'd quite dry; And then, to show that love, Others Angels above as well as men. Archangel's e'en would fail: Yea, till eternity should end. Nor then have told the tale?
