THE HEAVENLY LAND.

Beyond the bounds of time,
Across the sea of life,
Where passion's billows foam and toss
In angry strife—
There is a land so bright
That mortals cannot gaze,
But wondering stand upon the verge
In lost amaze.

The hills of glory tower
Majestic and sublime,
Above the snow-capped peaks of earth,
The Alps of Time.

Four square the City stands,
The Jasper walls that rise
Are garnished bright with precious stones
Of Paradise.

No storm cloud ever thence
Its shadows on that shore,
No lightning flash along the sky,
No thunders roar.

The air is pure and bright,
All is serene and calm,
Naught ever enters there that can
The holy harm.

But from the throne of God
There flows a crystal stream,
And hither's pure light upon its clear
Bright waters beam.

And where that river flows,
The tree of life appears,
Yielding its monthly fruits throughout
Eternal years.

Beneath the shadowy bowers,
Nobled in immortal gown,
Grow fairer flower than mortal eye
Hath ever seen.

Death finds no victims there
To pine and drop and die,
For God's own hand wipes every tear
From sorrow's eye.

There night shall never come,
Nor heaven's long day be o'er;
God and the Lamb shall be their light
Forever more.

Throughout that wide domain
Joy beams in every eye,
While angel voices join in praise
To God most high.

There white-robed spirits bow
Before the great I AM,
And worship him who pardoned them
Through Christ, the Lamb.

DO YOU LOVE CHRIST?

"Do you love Christ?—I ask not if you feel
The warm excitement of that party rail
Which follows on, while others lead the way
To make His cause the fashion of the day:
But do you love him, when his path is seen;
Not shrink to let your fellowship be won;
Do you love Jesus, blood and life, and aimed;
In prison, suffer him—no rest allowed;
To walk, though his injured name may be
A mark for some dark slanderer's obloquy;
Do you love Jesus, in the archangel's claim,
And bid the widow welcome in his name?
Say not, 'When saw we him?'—Each member
One.

Poor and afflicted, wear his image here;
And if unvalued or unknown by men,
Where can you union with the Body be?
And if thus true to the body dead,
Where is thy life in Christ the living Head?
And if discovered from the living Jesus,
How canst thou dream that thou hast life divine?

Sweet is the union true believers feel,
In one Spirit they are drawn—this seal
Of God is on their hearts—and thus they see
In each the features of our family;
If one is suffering—all the rest are sad;
If one is honored—all are glad.
The grace of Jesus, which all partake,
Flows out in mutual kindness for his sake;
Here he has left them for a while to wait,
And represent him in their suffering state:
While he, though glorified, is yet alone,
Beside the whole church before the Father's throne."

Richness of Russia.

Few persons in this country have any just or definite idea of the immense wealth and resources of Russia. Even the extent and value of her fisheries are not properly estimated. It is stated that 300,000 individuals are employed about them, in the lower Volga and Northern Caspian. The sea coast fisheries in the Black Sea, Sea of Azov, the Baltic, and White Sea, are great and productive. All her border rivers everywhere abound with fish, and, owing to the numerous fairs in the Greek Church, the consumption of fish in Russia is very great.—There are in the Russian empire 542,177,248 acres of land in forests. These are of immense value, and as communications are opened out throughout the country, they will become more valuable. There has been immense wastage in times past, but of late years the government has appointed special officers to look after them, to preserve them from unnecessary destruction. Russia is one of the best wooded countries in the world. The quantity of timber yearly consumed must be immense, when we recollect that nearly all the houses throughout the Russian empire are built of wood.

The number of horses in Russia exceeds by 7,000,000 the total number in France, Austria, Prussia, the United States and the United Kingdom together; about 14,000,000. The value of the whole must be great. Saddle horses sell from 300 to 1000 silver rubles each; and with the exception of the number that roam the Eastern provinces, say 4,000,000—a peculiar, and bulky, and valuable breed, the Russian horses are of an excellent quality.—Their cavalry horses are equal to the English, and superior to any other in Europe. The number in Russia present to our view a force equal to 120,000,000 effective men. Taking them at half the average value (£25 10s.) of horses in the O'N'd Kingdom, or £16 6s. each, the total O'N'd value is £354,750,000. The total actual number of cattle in the Russian empire exceeds by near 6,000,000 the total number in France, Austria and Prussia (24,823,384), and their value is also very great.—At half the average value of those in the United Kingdom, the amount of 27 each, will be £217,000,000.

Minerals of the most valuable and useful kinds abound in Russia. Salt is found in various places; but there is a district of country on her southern frontier, extending nearly in a line parallel with the northern coast of the Sea of Azov and the Caspian, and to the north of the line mentioned, between both, where salt is found of the finest quality, in such abundance that it is sufficient to supply the world for millions of years! Immense beds of sulphur have lately been discovered about Socumaro, on the banks of the Volga; and vast gold fields, richer than those in California and Australia, have lately been discovered around the sources of the Lena. Silver is most abundant in Nartinsk, on the Chinese boundary. There is good reason to believe that all Siberia abounds with the precious metals. Very large fields of gold have been found in different parts of Russia, especially in the iron districts. To the westward of the Ural mountains and the Don, in the government of Ekaterinoslav, a vast field of the finest anthracite coal has been found and is now working to a great extent.—The gold produced in the Ural mountain was, in 1851, £3,500,000. Sometimes it is much more, and nearly double. Besides gold and silver, Russia has a vast extent of iron mines, yielding that metal of the very finest quality. There are also large mines of platinum, copper, lead and zinc.

How to Put Off the Old Man.

A FACT.
By nature the Deacon loved Mammon; by grace he loved God. Between them there was continual war. Both fought—none like Michael, the other like the Devil. As there was long war between the house of David and the house of Saul, so there was long war in the earthly house of the Deacon. As with God, so with the Deacon; a troop overcome him, but he overcome at last, as appears by the following circumstance:

In the same church with Deacon M. was a poor brother. This poor man had the misfortune to lose his cow. She died. To get him another, the good Deacon headed a subscription with five dollars, and paid it. This act delighted Mammon. Mammon, with true Deaconical zeal, began to rant and rave:—

"Why this waste? charity begins at home; the more you give the more you may get; let people learn to take care of themselves."

The Deacon was a Baptist; but he found that the baptismal water did neither drown, wash away, or clean the old man. The tempter backed Mammon, and putting a glass to the Deacon's eye, showed him, not the kingdoms and glories of this world, but the poor-house, wretchedness, poverty, and rags, and said, "All these things will your master give you in your old age as a reward of your charity."

To still these clamors, Deacon M. went to the destitute man, and told him he must give back the five dollars. The poor man returned it. This last refusal the NEW MAN, and now nature and grace stood face to face.

To give, or not to give, that was the question. There stood the Deacon, posing and balancing, and balancing between two opinions. The Deacon spoke—"My brother, some men are troubled with their old women; I am troubled with my old man. I must put off my old man, as they Jews put off their new man—cruelly him cruelly kin." Then untrussing his pocket-book, he took out a ten dollar bill and gave the poor man—

"There," said the Deacon, "my poor old man; say another word, and I'll give him twenty dollars."—Christian Paper.

Mothers.

Nearly twenty times the sacred historian of the book of Kings hand down the names of mothers, with the record of the good or evil deeds of their sons. Thus—Jehoiada reigned thirty and one years in Jerusalem; and his mother's name was Jehoiada; and he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord. Or his (Ahab's) mother's name was Jezebel; and he walked in the sins of his father. See, also, 1 Kings 15: 2; 22: 42; 2 Kings 18: 2; 23: 1.

We are not usually told what was the character of these mothers, nor how far it was due to their influence that their sons did good or evil; but surely the introduction of their names in immediate connection with the good or evil is sufficiently significant.

His mother's name was Jehoiada; and he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord. One almost feels as if further information about her were superfluous. Blessed are those among women, who are thought at once suggested by the words.

On the other hand, what memorable notoriety is given to Jezebel! She may have been a good woman herself; yet, what villainies are in the hands of her name—only her name—down to posterity along with the models of her son! And it seems as if the father's bad example might have been more than counteracted, had she but daily exerted her maternal influence for "his mother's name was Jezebel; and he walked in all the sins of his father."

Christian mothers! watch well your every day life among your little ones.—Think of this being said of a little soul.—Yes, he did evil; his life; he lived as he was taught at home; and his mother's name was—

Hard Rowing.

A better story than the following we have not found in the drawer for many a month. About thirty miles above Wilmington, North Carolina, lived three fellows, named respectively, Barham, Stone, and Grey, on the banks of the North East River. They came down to Wilmington in a small row-boat, and much talk to the wharf. They had a time of it in the city, but for fear they would get dry before getting home, they procured a pair of whiskey, and after dark, of a black night, they embarked in a boat, expecting to reach home in the morning. They rowed away with all the energy that three half-tipsy fellows could muster, keeping up their spirits in the darkness by pouring the spirits down. At break of day they thought they must be near home, and coming through the dim gray of the morning a house on the river side, Stone said—

"Well, Barham, we've got to your place at last."

Barham dismounted, takes observations, and soon comes stumbling along back, and says—

"Well, I'll be whipped if we ain't at Wilmington here yet; and, what's more, the boat has been hatched to the wharf all night."

It was a fact, and the drunken dozed had been rowing away for dear life without knowing it.
