NEW-BRUNSWICK.

In two Books.

BY DAVID PALMER, CANNON, & C. BOOK II.

Argument—The Patriarch Cal—The Debt of the Being Placed—Its Location—The History and the Cause—The Plan of what has transpired during a History—The Discovery of America—The Invasion—The History—Progress of the Art—Advent to Earth, &c.

I trace my line to the patriarch oak, That traced the footsteps of a thousand years; But prostrate fell at last, and strew'd the ground; In vain I search tradition's dimmest ray, To find an epoch here to date my song.

Then hark ye, ye prying antiquarians, say, What then New-Brunswick's state? Who told her soil? And her spotless fields enjoyed? Silent is history, and tradition dumb.

Within the county tamed from female rule, A wife expanded water rolls its waves; This vast expanse basin scooped by Him

When Sol is Scorpio shines with dinner ray, And Luna turns her destined axis to us, And black October's blindest nights succeed;

Were clothed with "oil-wives" fables? Intelligent, That noble gift of heaven, was tempted on; By kindly prodigies; ignorant as the brute;

All civil power, Empires at his gate Did prostrate. Kings led his steed, while he rode slaying on; in gorgeous robes arrayed.

And O ye Albion bards, while I relate, Harry the second was compelled to walk

And I was taught to fight. Poor fellow, how much better for himself, his poor mother and the community, had he been taught to fight, and to forgive.

Prepared the armed knight to meet his foe In single combat. Life was then the game They played. Landless of state, with armed men, In battle still engaged, in name alone, Put time rolled on; and some faint gleam of light Shot through the gloom, indicative of day.

But where was Zion hidden, thro' the gloom Of those dark ages? Where the kingdom new, Prefigured by the stone cut from the rock;

But the pure stream of Gospel truth ran on, By Wickliffe opened, from the Book divine;

No had time civilised our knowledge least, More than seven hundred years; when, beheld, Upon the theatre a man is seen,

And her spotless fields enjoyed? Silent is history, and tradition dumb. Conjecture only, leads her delicious aid,

And where for pleasure may a trip be made. 'Twas on the sandy shore of this blue lake, My monarch of the forest reared his head,

And spread its shade: white eyes roll'd away, The tuffed halcyon, on its topmost perch,

And where for pleasure may a trip be made. 'Twas on the sandy shore of this blue lake, My monarch of the forest reared his head,

And spread its shade: white eyes roll'd away, The tuffed halcyon, on its topmost perch,

And where for pleasure may a trip be made. 'Twas on the sandy shore of this blue lake, My monarch of the forest reared his head,

And spread its shade: white eyes roll'd away, The tuffed halcyon, on its topmost perch,

And where for pleasure may a trip be made. 'Twas on the sandy shore of this blue lake, My monarch of the forest reared his head,

And spread its shade: white eyes roll'd away, The tuffed halcyon, on its topmost perch, have wrongs to avenge to deliver the culprit over to a Sovereign God who has declared, 'Vengeance is mine, I will repay.'—Religious Telescope.
