WATCH AND PRAY.

When the sunshine and light,
Of God's graces display
Their sweet beams, warm and bright,
Then, watch! watch and pray.

When calmness surrounding,
Driveth fear far away,
When peace is abounding,
Then, watch! watch and pray.

When bright hope, faith and love,
Chase all sorrow away,
When thy soul soars above,
Then, watch! watch and pray.

When fierce tempests arise,
Which thy soul would dismay,
Then, look up to the skies,
And watch! watch and pray.

When storm and temptation,
All their terrors display;
This gives consolation,
To watch! watch and pray.

If the loud roaring lion,
Thou meetest on the way;
Go onward, to Zion,
Go, watch! watch and pray.

When the brethren are few,
And thy friends turn away;
Then thy efforts renew,
To watch! watch and pray.

When there seemeth not left,
A support or a stay;
Thou canst hide in this cleft,
To watch! watch and pray.

Rest assured that the Lord,
Will not cast thee away,
If obeying his word,
Thou dost watch and pray. LUKE.

Life or Death.

A True Story of the Natural Bridge in Va.

BY ELIHU BURRITT.

The scene opens with a view of the great Natural Bridge in Virginia. There are three or four lads standing in the channel below, looking up with awe to the vast arch of unhewn rocks, with the almighty bridge over these everlasting abutments, when the morn-stars sang together. The little piece of sky spanning those measureless piers, is full of stars, although it is mid-day. It is almost five hundred feet from where they stand, up those perpendicular bulwark of limestone, to the key-rock of the vast arch, which appears to them only the size of a man's hand. The silence of death is rendered more impressive by the little stream that falls from rock to rock down the channel. The sun is darkened, and the boys have unconsciously uncovered their heads, as if standing in the presence-chamber of the Majesty of the whole earth. At last this feeling begins to wear away: they begin to look around them. They see the names of hundreds cut in the limestone abutments. A new feeling comes over their hearts, and their knives are in hand in an instant. "What man has done man can do," is the watchword, while they draw themselves up and carve their names a foot above those of a hundred full grown men who had been there before them.

They are satisfied with this feat of physical exertion, except one, whose example illustrates perfectly the forgotten truth, that there is no royal road to intellectual eminence. This ambitious youth sees a name just above his reach, a name that shall be green in the memory of the world, whom those of Alexander, Cæsar and Bonaparte shall not into oblivion. It was the name of Washington. Before he marched with Braddock to the fatal field, he had been there and left his name a foot above all his predecessors. It was a glorious thought of a boy to write his name side by side with that of the great Father of his country. He clasps his knife with a firm hand—and clinging to a jutting crag, he cuts into the limestone, about a foot above where he stands; but, as he puts his feet and hands into those gains, and draws himself carefully to his full length, he finds himself a foot above every name chronicled in that mighty wall. While his companions are regarding him with concern and admiration, he cuts his name in huge capitals, large and deep, into that flinty album. His knife is still in his hand, and strength in his sinews, and a new created aspiration in his heart.

Again he cuts another niche, and again he carves his name in large capitals. This is not enough. Heedless of the entreaties of his companions, he cuts, and climbs again. The graduations of his ascending scale grow wider apart. The voices of his friends grow weaker and weaker, till they are finally lost in his ear. He now, for the first time, casts a look beneath him. Had that glance lasted a moment, that moment would have been his last. He clings with convulsive shudder to his little niche in the rock. An awful abyss awaits his almost certain fall. He is faint with severe exertion, and trembling from the sudden view of the dreadful destruction to which he is exposed. His knife is worn half way to the haft. He can hear the voices but not the words of his terror-stricken companions below. What a moment! What a meagre chance to escape destruction! There is no retracing his steps. It is impossible to put his hands into the same niche with his feet and retain his hold a moment. His companions instantly perceive this new and fearful dilemma, and await his fall with emotions that "freeze their young blood." He is too high, too faint, to ask for his father and mother his brothers and sisters, to come and witness, or avert his destruction. But one of his companions anticipates his desire. Swift as the wind he bounds down the channel, and the fatal situation is told upon his father's hearth-stone.

Minutes of almost eternal length rolled on, and there were hundreds standing in that rocky channel, and hundreds on the ridge above, all holding their breath and awaiting that fearful catastrophe. The poor boy hears the hum of new and numerous voices, both above and below. He can just distinguish the tones of his father's voice, who is shouting with all the energy of despair; "William! William! don't look down! Your mother, and Henry, and Harriet are all praying for you. Don't look down. Keep you eyes towards the top."

The boy didn't look down—his eyes were fixed like a flint toward heaven, and his young heart on Him who reigns there. He grasps again his knife! He cuts another niche and another foot is added to the hundreds that remove him from human help below. How carefully he uses his wasting blade! How anxiously he selects the softest place in that pier! How he avoids every flinty grain! How he economizes his physical powers—resting a moment at each, again he cuts. How every motion is watched from below. There stands his father, mother, brother and sister, on the very spot where, if he falls, he will not fall alone.

The sun is half-way down the West. The lad had made fifty additional niches in the mighty wall, and now finds himself directly under the middle of the vast arch of rocks, earth and trees. He must cut his way in a new direction to get under this overhanging mountain. The inspiration of hope is dying in his bosom; its vital heat is fed by the increased shouts of hundreds perched upon cliffs and trees, and others stand with ropes in their hands upon the bridge above, or with ladders below. Fifty grains more must be cut before the longest rope can reach him. His wasting blade again strikes into the limestone.

The boy is emerging painfully, foot by foot from under the lofty arch. Spliced ropes are ready in the hands of those who are leaning over the outer edge of the bridges. Two minutes more all will be over. The blade is worn to the last half-inch. The boy's head reels; his eyes are starting from their sockets. His last hope is dying in his heart—his life must hang upon the last grain he cuts. That niche is his last. At the last faint gash he makes, his knife falls from his hand, and ringing along the precipice, falls at his mother's feet.

An involuntary groan of despair runs like a deathknell through the channel below, and is as still as the grave. At the height of nearly three hundred feet, the devoted boy lifts his hopeless heart, and closing his eyes, commends his soul to God. 'Tis but a moment—there! one foot swings off!—he is reeling, trembling, topling over into eternity! Hark! a shout falls on his ear from above! The man who is lying with half his length over the bridge has caught a glimpse of the boy's head and shoulders. Quick as thought the noosed rope is within reach of the sinking youth. No one breathes. With a faint, convulsive effort the swooning boy drops his arms in the noose. Darkness comes over him with the words, "God! Mother!" whispered on his lips, just loud enough to be heard in heaven, the tightening rope lifts him out of his last shallow niche. Not a lip moves when a sturdy Virginian reaches down and draws up the lad, and holds him up in his arms before the fearful, breathless multitude, such leaping, and weeping for joy never greeted the ear of human being so recovered from the yawning gulf of eternity.

Intemperance in Maine.

One of the editors of the Morning Star gives the following picture of intemperance in Maine, resulting from a repeal of the Prohibitory Law in that state, during the last session of the Legislature:—

"The flood-gates of intemperance are now again rolling their waves of death and moral desolation over the length and breadth of Maine—that noble State recently so proud of being, as she was justly styled, the banner State in the triumphant Temperance reform of this and other lands. The laurel is plucked away from her temples in the ruthless repeal of the anti-liquor prohibition law by the last legislature, and we to-day see and feel the terrible effects of such a repeal, in all parts of the entire State.

Rum, in all its former protean shapes, casks, demijohns, bottles, tin-pails, and jugs, is now quite freely guzzled down; shops, families, hotels, shanties, with license and without license, deal out the miserable stuff to all rummies who can pay, much as was done quarter or half a century ago; and now as then, some old men are reeling in the streets, and young men get so over the bay as to be led home by others less drunken than themselves. We are repeatedly told by visitors, that for the few months since the repeal of our Maine law, Portland presents a new and changed appearance to the most casual observer; that rum is seen and heard and smelt all over the city, and openly sold and drank at stores and taverns as in the worst days of by-gone rumism; and many a peaceful and quiet village in the prosperous towns of our State up back from the sea-board, inland and along our noble rivers, beautiful villages made white and light and peaceful by temperance, for these few past years, are now plagued and disturbed by the spirit of Rum, and their young men tempted by shameless rummies to indulge in the use of the cup, when we fondly hoped that all such temptations were banished forever.

Don't let any one get the impression from our pen that the work of intemperance in our States of maine, is finished and perfected yet, but only that it is in the direct way of going on unto perfection. Alcohol is now "licensed" to go forth unto the people. The dikes and dams which our Maine prohibition law so effectually set up to stay the overflowings of intemperance, being all stricken away by one fell sweep last winter, these death waters now flow on silent and still as any natural river of dark and turbid waters, with scarcely a pebble to ruffle their surface; the friends of temperance scarcely knowing what is best to do, whether to keep pretty still and let the "license" plan work its own death the sooner, and the people from the contrast see the justice and necessity of a prohibitory law; or to awake, and while left as good as lawless, go back to our efforts of moral suasion, and in the interim till another good law, save our young men from the appetite, and our drinkers, as much as possible, from the graves of drunkenness."

A True Story.

A little Irish girl, thirteen years of age, without father or mother ignorant of even her alphabet, lately came to live with us. Knowing she had been receiving very good wages, we asked her, rather reproachfully, we fear, why her wardrobe was so miserably poor and scanty—cleanly, and in good order as it was—she having the bare necessaries of clothing. 'Ma'am,' said she, and her bright, honest eyes filled with tears, 'my mother did not always do right. She owed a woman who had ever been kind to us, eight dollars for board. My wages have been saved to pay that debt, for it was an honest one. Until I had paid it, I felt I had no right to buy a single article I could do without.'

'Is it all paid, Mary?'

'Yes, and now I can spend the wages you pay me on myself.' Generous and brave girl—she has her patent of nobility from God; and it was ever from among the poor and lowly, Christ choose those who should bear his cross here, and reign with him hereafter. —Christain Intelligencer.

Steam Sash and Door Factory, HARDING STREET.

JOHN H. STUART & CO. would respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that they have recently taken the Steam Sash Factory in Harding street lately occupied by CLARKE & McALPINE, and formerly by JOHN E. TURNBULL, where they have on hand a large stock, and are continually manufacturing all kinds of DOORS, SASHES, and WINDOW Frames, which upon inspection, will be found of a superior quality, and as such they will be warranted, as it is the determination of the Subscribers to furnish their Patrons with such work as will reflect credit upon themselves and the establishment, and do away with the prejudice that exists against Machine Work. Parties contemplating building will find that they can obtain Doors and Sashes of a superior quality at our establishment far cheaper than they can get them made by hand. Joiners doing business in the country can have Sashes glazed or unglazed, packed to order in such a manner as will ensure their safety.

Remember the stand, Harding street, opposite the South-west corner, Queen's square, and give us a call.

Turning of all kinds executed with despatch. Jig Sawing done. Jig Saws to let by the hour.

St. John, May 6. 1856.

☞ PROCLAMATION TO THE PEOPLE OF NORTH AMERICA.—HEALTH AND PEACE BE MULTIPLIED.—There is no doubt as to the certainty of the cures performed by Dr. LEARY'S ANGLO-SAXON MEDICINE and advice, in the following complaints:—Consumption cured if in any reasonable time, before the Lungs become disorganized; Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Bilious and Liver complaints; cure is warranted, provided the advice given is strictly complied with. The following testimonials ought to convince the most prejudiced of the value and efficacy of the ANGLO-SAXON MEDICINE. I shall here insert a few names of the many certificates in my posession: Mrs. David Jones, Mrs. Joan Crawford, Mr. George Dunham, residence Indian Town. These persons were afflicted with Dyspepsia—Mrs. Jones, for several years, her case being despaired of, the Anglo-Saxon Medicine and advice completed a cure in each case. Mrs. Jane Sime, and Mr. John Walsh, of Straight Shore, afflicted with Dyspepsia and Liver complaint, have been restored to good health by the use of a few bottles of the Anglo-Saxon Medicine and advice. The following persons from Carleton—Mr. James Dunham, consumption, Mrs. David Thomas, seven years with Dyspepsia, which terminated in consumption; Mrs. John Baker; dyspepsia and inflammation of the lungs; Mr. Edward Watters, confined to his bed for eight weeks with inward ulcers. These persons, by the use of the Anglo-Saxon Medicine, and advice, have been restored to good health. Mrs. Henry Evans, of this City, dyspepsia and inflammation of the lungs; Mr. William Sim, of Edinburgh, Scotland—complaint, dyspepsia—had the best medical aid in that city, but to no effect; emigrated to Canada, in hopes of being benefited from the climate; consulted with physicians in Montreal, but no lasting benefit from their skill; removed to this City; tried all the remedies recommended for that distressing complaint, but, alas, his case was desperate, until he happened to alight on my advertisement in the Morning Courier. He gave the Anglo-Saxon Medicine a trial, and it has restored him to good health. Now fellow-citizens, and subjects of North America, I am willing you should exercise your now judgment; try all the good medicines in the market; if they should fail, please give my medicine a trial as a last resource.

Hundreds in this City and its environs can testify with heartfelt thankfulness the benefits from the ANGLO-SAXON MEDICINE. This day, March 15th, a gentleman from Greenwich, King's County, Mr. William Lawson informed me of a wonderful cure performed on a young woman, Miss Ann Elson, who had for a year a scrofula complaint in her ancle.—Astonishing to relate, half a vial of the Albion Liniment effected a cure. The Liniment and Anti-Cholera Medicine did not fail in one instance during the Cholera of 1854.

These Medicines I am prepared to warrant to cure the following complaints: Erysipelas, Canker Sores, Acute and Chronic Rheumatism, Painful Nervous Headache, Bites of Animals, Frost Bites or Chilblains, Sprains and Strains, Chapped Hands, Scalds, Burns, Contraction of the Muscles, Flesh Wounds, no matter how severe, will heal in forty eight hours; Inflamations of all kinds, whether of the Bowels or from wounds; Sore Throat, Colds, Pains in all parts of the body, Worm Fits in Children, rubbed in on the chest and bowels; White Swelling, King's Evil, Scurvy, Itch, all kinds of Sores and Ulcers. The mystery that attends this Liniment is daily coming to light from all parts of the country where it has been introduced.

Office, removed to No. 77 Princess street.

CHOLERA.

A certain cure for this disease may be found in the use of Perry Davis' Vegetable PAIN KILLER.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.

Dear Sir:—I felt it a duty I owe to the public, to make known the value of Davis' Pain Killer, and my experience in using it for some of the complaints for which it is highly recommended. In April last, on your recommendation, I purchased a one dollar bottle of you for pains with which I have long been afflicted, and made use of it on my trip down to New Orleans, with the most gratifying and beneficial effects. On my return trip to this city, the Cholera made its appearance among some of my passengers. I made use of the Pain Killer, having no other remedy on board, and to my surprise and gratfication found it gave immediate relief. On my arrival in St. Louis, I called on you and got four large bottles, and stated to you my confidence in it as an infallible Cholera remedy, and remarking to you that I wanted no other Cholera remedy on my boat. I made use of the four bottles on my trip to New Orleans and back, for Cholera and some other complaints for which it is recommended, and met with the most astonishing success—when I ordered from you six more one dollar bottles. Since then I have made two more trips to New Orleans and back, and on my previous trip up, I had more than Seventy cases of Cholera on board, when the PAIN KILLER was immediately used with the most astonishing results. In all cases where it was used in time it gave relief in a very short time; and I can with confidence say to the public, that in all of the first stages of Cholera, when taken in time, it is in my opinion an infallible remedy: and after a fair trial with it for several weeks, and for four trips to New Orleans and back, and using it for Cholera and for other complaints for which it is recommended, no consideration whatever would induce me to leave port without a good supply—believing it to be a medicine that no officer of a boat or any family would be without a single day after using one bottle.

J. M. BROADWELL, Capt. Stm'r Atlantic.

I most cordially unite with Capt. Broadwell in recommending Perry Davis' Pain Killer to the public, having myself been severely attacked with the Cholera, and found relief in a few hours by using the Pain Killer, and have administered it to more than fifty persons attacked with the Cholera, and when used in time, a cure was effected in a few hours, and take pleasure in recommending it to the public as an invaluable medicine, that no individual should be without a single hour.

JOHN N. BOFFINGER, Clerk Stm'r Atlantic.

DAVIS' PAIN KILLER.—The certificates appended from the captain and clerk of the Steamer Atlantic, we know to be genuine, and founded on facts, as they verbally stated in our office the substance of what they publish.—[St. Louis Union.

ROUSE'S POINT, Clinton Co. N. Y.

Perry Davis—Sir:—The benefits I have received from the use of your invaluable remedy, the Pain Killer, induces me to pen a word of praise for it. Experience has convinced me that for Headache, Indigestion, Pain in the Stomach, or any other part of the system, Severe Chills, Weakness, Common Colds, Hoarseness, CHOLERA, CHOLERA MORBUS, Diarrhœa, Dysentary, Tooth Ache, &c. &c. there is nothing to after than the Pain Killer. I have this hour received from a severe attack of the Sick Headache, using two teaspoonfuls, taken at thirty minutes interval in a wine glass full of warm water. I am confident that through the blessing of God, it saved me from the cholera during the summer of 185[illegible] Travelling amid heat, dust, dirt, change of diet and constant exposure to an infected atmosphere, my system was daily predisposed to dysentary, attended with pain for which the Pain Killer was a sovereign remedy: one teaspoonful curing the worst case in an hour, or at most, half a day!—My brothers in the main stay have used it with much success in various diseases. I have heard many cases the country over, of Dysentary being cured by its use. Put in the teeth, it would stop the tooth-ache.

Gratitude, and a desire for its general use, has drawn from me this unsolicited testimonial in its favor.
