LINES WRITTEN ON THE FLY LEAF OF MY BIBLE.

BY JOWEN CRUKER, A KIDNEY.
I sought for Fame; by day and night
I struggled that my name might be
Emblazoned forth in types of light.
And waited o'er the pathless sea;
But sunken cheeks and vision dim,
Were all I got for seeking him.

I sought for Wealth; the lust of gold
Scorched my best feelings, sacred my heart,
Destroyed my aspirations bold,
Deformed my nature's "better part."
And, at the last, though seeming vain,
The prize I clutched was empty air.

I sought for Power; the loftiest steep,
The topmost heights I strove to scale;
No dark abysses, yawning deep,
Around me, could my courage quell;
But boldness, with a swifter pace,
Outstripped me in the eager race.

I sought for Love; his heavenly flame
Lit for a time my cheerful way;
But when it fled, my path became
More gloomy for the transient day.
Death spread above his eagle pale,
And turned my fondest hopes to gall.

I sought for Health; the changeless goal,
The more I followed, further fled;
Then, where the streamlets hither curl,
And wild flowers bloom, he hid her head,
I preyed her to return again—
My prayers were breath—but all in vain.

What's left to seek? Ah! I have sought
Eluded, shunned my nervous grasp;
What shall I seek? O mortal thought,
While still this volume I can creep!

The Teacher and his Work.

The Sunday-School is one of Christ's vineyards. There we have to do with the soul of the child. Its vast capabilities are placed at our feet. The child now so susceptible, is to receive, perhaps, its first and strongest impressions from teachings. The Bible is our book. Its great, and gracious, and glorious revelation are to be so placed before the mind of the child, as to render it the most attractive of all books. And we desire that this attraction should last all through life. The eyes of the dawning understanding, we desire to direct to Jesus. The ardent and expanding affections we would have sanctified for his service.

And the teacher should be in sincere sympathy with the truth. Himself depending upon the doctrines of the truth; his conduct determined by the precepts of the truth; his efforts animated by the promise of the truth. And then one thing more? Yes, here is the altar, and the wood, and the sacrifice. But where is the fire? That must come from above. While we work we must pray. As we labor we must look up. The law of the spiritual kingdom is, "Ask, and ye shall receive; seek, and ye shall find." Then obeying this law, "Be that good forth, and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

Here, then, is the seed—it is the "truth as it is in Jesus." Here is the soil—it is the heart of the young. Here is the sower—it is the teacher. Here is the vineyard—it is the school on the Sabbath. And as to the vintage that is promised, all that we now need, is the influence of heaven. And in answer to the teacher's prayers these shall descend. The faithful laborers shall rejoice. The vineyard shall yield her fruit. The school shall strengthen in the church. The church shall bless the world. The world shall be given to Christ. Angels and men shall be given to Christ. Earth and heaven shall unite in their anthems of love and joy, and "the kingdoms of this world shall" be given to "our Lord and His Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever."

Who is to do it?

Some twenty years ago, there was a shop-boy in Dublin, known at first as Johnny Morgan, but afterwards called "Perpetual Motion." He had learned the worth of his own soul, and so had learned the worth of other souls. Every Sabbath morning therefore, he was to be seen running from door to door in Mountjoy square, that he might collect the members of an adult Bible class. He never stopped till, like a shepherd's dog, he had found all his stray sheep, and brought them once more under the shepherd's watch and care.

What became of that boy? Did he cease at length to labor for the salvation of men? Having begun to run, did he faint in the race? No. That same "Perpetual Motion" was afterwards transferred to a missionary field. His activity was first seen in the humble efforts of a catechist. And when the catechist had purchased "a good degree," it was exhibited in the labors of a successful missionary.

What was the secret of his usefulness? Just this, and nothing more. Whenever the question arose, in respect to any service which he could perform, "Who will do it?" he said "I will do it." Reader! would you learn how you can do much for a lost world? Be always ready to say, when any service in your power is offered, "I will do it."

I Don't Dance.

A plain unlettered man came from the back country in the State of Alabama, to Tuscaloosa, and on the Sabbath went early to church. He had been accustomed to attend meetings in school-houses and private dwellings, where each one appropriated to themselves the first seat which they found unoccupied. He selected a convenient seat, and awaiting patiently the assembling of the congregation. Presently the music of a full-toned organ burst upon his astonished ear; he had never heard one before. At the same time the gentleman who owed the slip, came up to the aisle, with his lady leaning upon his arm. As he approached the door of the slip, he motioned for the countryman to come out, in order to give place to the lady. This movement the countryman did not comprehend, and from the situation of the lady and gentleman, associated as it was in his mind with the music, he immediately concluded that a collision or a French contrivance was intended. Rising partly from his seat he said to the gentleman who was still beckoning to him, "Excuse me, sir—excuse me if you please—I don't dance."

"I Never Drink Enough to Hurt."

You never do? Then why that peculiar tinge to your cheek? Why that increase of irritability? Why that growing recklessness of character? Don't deceive yourself dear friend. You are in danger, and it is a kindness to tell you so. Thirty thousand persons die every year in our community, simply because they do drink enough to hurt them. Half a million are ever pressing hard after them, upon the crumbling verge of a drunkard's grave. Several millions more are bending their steps, more or less rapidly in the same direction. You are one of this last great crowd. You are a candidate for a place among the half million of actual drunkards.

Think you that any one of the throng of moderate drinkers with whom you trim will admit that he drinks enough to hurt him? And yet from all this class, Death, and the Devil take their pick. They are after you. Depend upon it, they are after you. And you are welcoming their approach. Beware! young men, beware!

The Bible in the Heart.

I have often heard children repeat the beautiful hymn that begins,
"Holy Bible, book divine,
Precious treasure thou art mine."

I wonder how many of them really felt what they said. A treasure is something that is worth a great deal; something that we take great care of, because we value it very much. It is in this way we should look upon the Bible. It is the greatest treasure any one can have, for it tells us how to escape from hell; how to find pardon for our sins; and teaches us to love God, and delight in doing his will.

In some countries the people are not allowed to have any Bibles. The priests will not let them read the Word of God, and if they find a Bible they burn it. There was a little boy, living in one of these countries, who had somehow got a Bible. He was very fond of it, and kept it by him wherever he went, and when he had a moment of spare time, he would open it, and read again and again the story of the blessed Saviour's love for sinners.

He read it so often that he knew a great part of it by heart. At last the priest found that Larry had a Bible. He sent for him and made him give it up. "I am going to burn it," said the priest. "So he threw it into the fire, and watched until every leaf was blackened and withered by the flames. Then he turned to Larry and said that he was smiling."

"Because," said the boy, "I was thinking that you might burn my Bible, but you cannot burn the part of it that is laid up in my heart."

Do you love the Bible as Larry did? Do you lay it up in your heart? or when you have been reading it, do you go away and forget it all? The Bible is not like any other book: it is God's own Word. If we had not the Bible, we should not know anything about God, or the dear Saviour. It is written to teach us what God wishes us to do and we should be very careful not to do anything which the Bible tells us is wrong.

I will tell you a story about a Chinese boy who had been taught to read the Bible in a school kept by the missionaries. He had gone home to spend the holidays, and when he returned the missionary said to him, "Did you go to the temple with your father?" For his father was a heathen, and prayed to idols. "No, I did not go," said the boy. "But you went last year," said the missionary; "who told you not to go this time?" The little Chinese took out his Bible, and pressing it to his breast, said, "I did not understand that when I went to the temple last year."

You see, as soon as this boy found that the Bible forbade him to worship idols, he obeyed it, and went no more to the idol temple. This is the way you should read the Bible, thinking about and trying to understand what you read, and praying to God to teach you to obey and love his holy word.

A Little Child's Soliloquy.

Wish my mamma would please keep me warm; my little bare legs are very cold with these blue ruffles; they are not half so nice as black Jim's woolen stockings. Wish I had a little pair of warm rubbers. Wish I had a long-sleeved apron, for my bare arms and neck. Wish I might push my curls out of my eyes, or have them cut off. Wish my dress would stay upon my shoulders, and that it was not too nice for me to go on the floor and play nine-pins. Wish my mamma would go to walk with me instead of Betty. Wish she would not promise me something "very nice," and then forget all about it. Wish she would answer my questions, and not say, "Don't bore me Freddy." Wish when we go to the country she wouldn't make me wear my gloves, lest I should "tan my hands." Wish she would tell me that all the pretty flowers "will poison me." Wish I could tumble on the hay, and go into the barn, and see how Dobbin can his supper. Wish there was not a bit of lace, or satin, or silk in the world. Wish I knew what makes mother look so smiling at Aunt Emma's children (who come here in their papa's carriage) and so very cross at my poor little cousin, whose mother works so hard and cries so much. Wish I knew what made the clouds stay up in the sky, and where the stars go in the day time. Wish I could get over the high hill where the sun is going down, and just touch it with my finger. Wish I did not keep thinking of things that puzzle me, when nobody will stop to tell me the reason for any thing. If I ask Betty, she says "Don't be a fool, Master Freddy." I wonder why mamma doesn't love her own little boy.—I wonder when I am grown a man, if I shall have to look so nice all the time and be so tired of doing nothing.—N. Y. Obs.

ALWAYS SOMETHING NEW.

Read this—Old and Young.

PROFESSOR WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE is, no doubt, the most wonderful discovery of this age of progress, for it will restore, permanently, grey hair to its original color, cover the bald of the head with a most luxuriant growth, remove all dandruff and itching, cure all scurf, and other cutaneous eruptions, such as scald head, etc. It will cure, in a few days, a trial of periodical headache; make the hair soft, glossy, and wavy, and preserve the color perfectly, and the hair from falling, to extreme old age. The following is from a distinguished member of the medical profession, a large and general sale throughout the territory. The people here know its effects, and have confidence in it. The supply you sent us, as wholesale agents for the territory, is nearly exhausted, and daily inquiries are made for it. You deserve credit for your discovery; and I, for one, return you my thanks for the long and happy life you have given me. I have recommended your preparation to my friends, and already have a large and general sale throughout the territory. The people here know its effects, and have confidence in it.
