For the Intelligencer. THE VALUE OF LIFE. Lord what is man from earth to earth, Or from his death unto his birth : Our fleeting life how soon 'tis gone, Gone never, never to return.

Nor think of death as very near ; Borne on by folly or by pride Struggling in life's uncertain tide.

Striving through life our ends to gain, Deceived, yet try, and try in vain; Or should we grasp the fancied prize E'en while we hold, its beauty dies.

Life is at best a fading flower, May last a moment or a year; A Year, how small a point with thee, Not reckoned in Eternity.

Yet on life's brittle thread depend Our future being in the end; Each moment passed as time will shew, Augment our future weal or woe,

Since life is but a fleeting breath, A narrow bound 'twixt us and death, How should we labour to secure That which forever will endure. 'Twas for this end that life was given,

To fit our souis for joys in heaven Joys that no earthly tongue can tell, And love that is unsearchable. Why will we then while here below Rob God of what he values so;

Our all, how little in return, For what he for our sake hath borne Though much is lost now may we be Resolved to give up all for thee, And walk in wisdom's narrow road, Leading us upward unto Goo. That goal I'll always keep in sight, That bounds the prospect with delight; There all who love the Lord in heart, Will once more meet, never to part.

Oh what a joyful meeting then, When parted friends unite again; Unite with Christ their heavenly King, And ever more his praises sing-sheriff to bring in his prisoner, and the eyes of the impatient multitude all centered on the door; when suddenly a stranger entered whose appearance rivited universal attention.

Here is is portrait—a figure tall, lean sinewy and straight as an arrow; a face sallow, bilious and twitching incessantly with nervous irritability; a brow broad, soaring, and massive, seamed with wrinkles, but not from age-for he was scarcely forty; eyes reddish-yellow, like the watchful eagle, as bright and piercing; and finally, a mouth with lips of cast iron, thin, curled, cold and sneering, the intense expression of which looked the living embodiment of an unbreathed curse. He was habited in a suit of new buck-skin, ornamented after the fashion of

Elbowing his way slowly through the crowd, and apparently unconscious that he was as a phenomenon needing explanation, this singular being advanced, and with the haughty air as of a king ascending the throne, seated himself within the bar, thronged as it was with the disciples of Coke and Blackstone, several of whom it was known, esteemed

We take pleasure in referring to the virtue of Davis's Pain Killer. We have used the article, and found it valuable The sale of this article in the United States is beyond all precedent, as the books of the office will show.—Cincinati Davis's Vegetable Pain Killer. We first heard of this medicine during a visit to the New England States, and being struck with the novelity of the title, were induced to make some inquiry about it; and we were surprised to learn that it was kept constantly in the houses of most of the inhabitants of the cities and villages where we stopped, to be used in cases of sudden attacks of pain, burna, scolds, &c, and we heard it spoken of in terms of high commendation, both by druggists and physicians.—Philadelphia Eagle.

Perry Davis's Pain Killer.—It is a real pleasure to us to speak favorably of this article, known almost universally to be a good and safe remedy for burns and other pains of the body. It is valuable not only for colds in the winter, but for various summer complaints, and should be in every family. The casuality which demands it may come unawares.—Chris. Advocate.

I know the effect of it in every case, sure as water will extinguish fire so sure will tais cure homor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another; and a trial it always speaks for itself. There are two this about this herb that appears to me surprising; first, the grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and; its value has never been known until it discovered it in is—second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and gap popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, is sold over one thousand bottles per day of it.
