European and Foreign News.

From our file of English papers received by steamer at Halifax, we call the following summary of all the important news from both England and India:

PARLIAMENT.—Parliament opened on the 1st inst. by the following speech from the throne by Her Majesty in person:—

MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN

Circumstances have recently arisen, connected with the mercantile interests of the country, which have induced me to call Parliament together before the usual time.

I have observed, with great regret, that the disturbed state of commercial transactions in general has occasioned a diminution of employment in the manufacturing districts which I fear cannot fail to be attended with much local distress; I trust, however, that this evil may not be of long duration; and the abundant harvest with which it has graciously pleased Divine Providence to bless this land, will, I hope, in some degree mitigate the sufferings which this state of things must unavoidably produce.

While I deeply deplore the severe suffering to which many of my subjects in India have been exposed, and while I grieve for the extensive bereavements and sorrow which it has caused, I have derived the greatest satisfaction from the distinguished successes which have attended the heroic exertions of the comparatively small forces which have been opposed to greater superior numbers, without the aid of the powerful reinforcements dispatched from this country to their assistance. The arrival of those reinforcements will, I trust, speedily complete the suppression of this widely spread revolt.

The gallantry of the troops employed against the mutineers; their courage in action; their endurance under privation, fatigue and the effects of climate; the high spirit and self devotion of the officers; the ability, skill and persevering energy of the commanders, have excited my warmest admiration; and I have observed with equal gratification that many civilians placed in extreme difficulty and danger have displayed the highest qualities, including in some instances, those that would do honour to veteran soldiers.

It is satisfactory to know that the mass of the population of India have taken no part in the rebellion, while the most considerable of the native Princes have acted in the most friendly manner, and have rendered important services.

I have given directions that papers relating to these matters shall be laid before you.

The affairs of my East Indian dominions will require your serious consideration, and I recommend them to your earnest attention.

The nations of Europe are in the enjoyment of the blessings of peace, which nothing seems likely to disturb.

GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

I have given directions that the estimates for the next year shall be prepared for the purpose of being laid before you. They will be framed with a careful regard to the exigencies of the public service.

MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN,

Your attention will be called to the laws which regulate the representation of the people in Parliament, with a view to consider what amendments may be safely and beneficially made therein.

I confidently commit to your wisdom the great interests of my empire; and I fervently pray that the blessing of Almighty God may attend your counsels, and may guide your deliberations to those ends which are dearest to my heart—the happiness and prosperity of my loyal and faithful people.

The Christian Times says:—The Royal Speech, is big with promises;—but we doubt the ability of Parliament to fulfil them all. It will be seen that, contrary to the predictions of those who pretended to be in the secret, Ministers adhere to their intention of proposing a Reform Bill; but the only measure to be brought forward before the Christmas recess will be the Indemnity Bill.

MONEY MARKET.—Our Money Market is slowly, but surely, recovering from the effects of the late panic. Money is less in demand, and is returning to the Bank, and the bullion is once again brought into that relation with the Bank issues which is required by the law. Still the rate of discount does not fall. Failures, too, are still taking place, though these are neither so numerous nor so serious as they were in the first days of the panic. The evil which the crisis has produced will, we fear, be most lastingly felt among the working classes in the manufacturing districts. Everywhere in the North we hear of mills stopping or working short time, and as a consequence, pressure, privation, and distress among the workmen. The prospects of the winter are very gloomy, for the home distress is greatly aggravated by the all but total failure of the usual orders from America.

INDIA.—The Christian Times says:—The information conveyed by the last Indian mail is, as usual, a mere expansion of the outline previously conveyed by telegraph. We are now furnished with all details as to the storming of Delhi, the capture of the Royal Family, and the fate of the Princes. It is satisfactory to find that while no promise was made to spare the lives of any of them, still Lieut. Hudson would have brought the two sons and the grandson, who were first captured, into the city, and there subjected them to regular trial, had there not been an attempt at rescue on the journey. His prompt and stern decision alone prevented their escape, and probably saved the lives of his own party. Englishmen will turn, however, with an interest more mournful than the richly deserved fate of these miscreant Princes can inspire; to trace the fortunes of our gallant countrymen to whom we owe that great victory. It is sad to learn that of the two Engineer officers who headed the party that blew in the Cashmere gate, Lieutenant Salkeld has since died of his wounds, and Lieutenant Home, who escaped unhurt from that perilous adventure, has since lost his life at the blowing up of a fort which had been abandoned by the rebels. Brief has been their enjoyment of the honour their Commander conferred on them of the Victoria Cross. With regard to the next and now the central point of interest:—the relief of Lucknow—the accounts from that town are of the same painfully tantalizing character which has marked the last two or three mails. It appears that when Havelock made his last and successful march upon the Oude capital he left his sick and wounded in a fortified country house, about three miles from the town, and separated from it by a canal, which at the time was traversed by a substantial bridge. As it was desirable that the little army should proceed in the lightest marching order to the relief of the beleaguered garrison, the troops took no luggage with them, and provisions only about two days. Sixteen days had just elapsed since their morching, at the date of the last accounts, and for the greater portion of that time no news had been heard of them.

That they had accomplished their object in the relief of the garrison was known, and further, that they had captured a large portion of the city; but it appears that the landowners have risen against them, armed their retainers, and hemmed them in on every side. They are thus cut off, not only from Cawnpore, but from the garrison left on the outskirts of the town, for the bridge over the canal has been broken down, so that the portions of the army are completely isolated from each other. It is satisfactory to find, however, that the little garrison containing the sick and wounded is well supplied with provisions; and if the main body is at all strengthened, they have both arms in their hands and spirit to wield them. That nothing has been heard from them of late is rather in their favour; the enemy guard the canal too vigilantly to allow of direct communication, but they would soon diffuse abroad the news of any disaster that had befallen them. It is satisfactory, too, to find that help is approaching them, both from the east and the west—two regiments being on their road from Calcutta, and Colonel Greathed's column pressing downward from Agra. It was supposed these two welcome reinforcements would have joined at Lucknow before the end of October, but our anxiety for the garrison must be left on the stretch for another mail.

FUTURE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.—The papers which profess to be favoured with access to Cabinet secrets presented a strange dissonance at the close of last week. The Times announced, as from authority, that the government of India by the East India Directors was to be swept away; and a new machinery, emanating directly from the Home Government, was to be substituted in their place. The Observer, a weekly organ of the Ministers, dealt in a summary fashion with the rumour; ridiculed the pretensions to superior knowledge, and straightway proceeded to put in its own claim by intimating that it was true the subject had been under the deliberation of the Cabinet, but that no decision was come to. From all which we may probably infer that Ministers themselves are not very united on the mode of dealing with the question. We may remind our readers that the present system was agreed to, after long and anxious deliberation, only four years ago. But, supposing public opinion were unanimous on that point, there are still a host of questions to be disposed of in considering the nature of the Government that is to be put in its place. We are no surprised, therefore, to find that even the "Times" has since seen cause to modify its first strong statement, and to admit that the changes will not be of the sweeping nature at first led the public to expect.

DELHI AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.—The precise number of men slain and wounded at Delhi stands as follows:—"During the assault, 1170 men, 66 officers; during the siege and assault, 4000 men, 220 officers. The original force was only 3000 men and 160 officers and the number of officers never reached 400."

The following are extracts from the letters of an officer at Delhi, written from the 21st to the 26th September:—

"Delhi is in our possession. On the 21st I rode down to see the Palace; the wall and entrance are the finest part. The interior is dirty, filthy, and great disorder, Pandies having revelled in its cool archways. The hall of justice and the king's throne are entirely built of white marble; the latter is inlaid with stones and mosaics. I went all over the state apartments and the harem. The latter is a curious place, and had a remarkable appearance; its floor covered with gutters, bangles, &c., and redolent of sandal-wood. The fair daughters of Cashmere had their going in the centre of the room. They had left in a hurry; dresses, silks, slippers, were lying on all sides. On leaving the Palace I met a doolie, surrounded by some cavalry and a few natives on foot. Its inmate was a thin-faced, anxious-looking old man. This was the new King of Hindostan, decreeing his Palace in the hands of his enemies. He was captured some distance from the city. Being 85 years of age, his life was spared. He will be kept a prisoner for life.

We are left behind in a camp strewn with dead animals in all directions, and with the filth of three months encampment. We have about 4000 sick and wounded at present. Our camp is swarming at present. Our camp is swarming at present with old men, women and children, without food or money. They have lost everything, and are obliged to be fed by our commissariat. A famine will be raging this season all through this part of India. No fields have been cultivated, no money circulated, so starvation must stare them in the face. If it fell upon the Goojurs chiefly, no one would regret it, as they have committed more mischief than any other sect but the innocent will also suffer."

"For a description of the riches of Delhi my pen is inadequate. Cashmere shawls, inlaid with gold, bodices covered with gold lace, skirts of dresses, watches, bars of gold, beds of silk and down, such as no nobleman's house in England could produce—you would see Sikhs carrying out of Delhi the first day as if they were almost nothing. A shawl which in England would fetch £100, they were selling for four rupees, and you may depend our fellows were not behind them.

* * * It is supposed the Rifles will go to England with upwards of £1000 each, though General Wilson has issued an order that the prizes shall be all put together and divided. Most of our men are worth upwards of 100 rupees."

SPAIN.—The birth of a male heir to the Spanish monarchy is regarded by persons conversant with the affairs of Spain as affording one more chance of stability to the wretched family which now rules that country. It is not easy to understand how the birth of a prince, where so many scandals have previously gathered round the mother, can add either to the permanency of the throne. It may be that the birth of an heir may at last impress upon the Spanish Queen the desirableness of endeavoring to preserve that throne for the sake of her posterity, which she has so recklessly endangered for herself. It is already intimated that the husband of Queen Isabella has resolved in the most public manner to repudiate the paternity of the child, and so to disgrace his wife in the eyes of the nation over which she is called to rule, as well as on the more public theatre of Europe.

CERTIFICATE.

KING'S COUNTY, N. B., Nov. 23, 1857.

MR. TEMPLEMAN, SIR.—I have been, for several years under a decline, and have taken one bottle of your medicine, and have found great relief from it, both in the help of my appetite, and rest at night, though I did not give it as fair a trial as I ought. Yours, &c.,

JARED BOSTWICK.

LONG REACH, Nov. 17, 1857.

MR. T. A. TEMPLEMAN, Dear Sir.—I take pleasure in acknowledging the benefit your Pills have been to me. I was afflicted with what the physicians call Consumption, for three years; I tried all the medicines which are recommended for that disease, and employed several of our eminent physicians, sometimes having three to attend me at once, but neither the medicine nor the skill of the physicians had any effect on my disease, and I was pronounced past recovery, and indeed at times my friends supposed I was dying; my life was entirely despaired of, but as a last remedy I was persuaded to try your Indian Pills. I commenced using them according to directions, and after taking a few doses was much relieved; and finding my strength increasing, continued using them until I had taken about two boxes, when I was perfectly cured, since which time I have had good health. I shall always remember your Indian Pills as having been the means of sparing my life.

Respectfully yours. E. SERENO COLDWELL.

The above medicines can be obtained of W. F. Browne, Indiantown; A. N. Peters 110 Union street next to Flagler's Hotel, or of the Subscriber.

A SUPERIOR AND GENUINE

VEGETABLE COUGH CANDY

IS H. Y. MACER'S Vegetable COUGH CANDY, for curing Coughs, Colds, Croup, Irritation of the Throat, Asthma, and is particularly calculated to relieve the Whooping Cough, and all complaints tending to Consumption.

It is particularly recommended to the attention of Public speakers, singers, and all persons who use the voice frequently, as efficacy for Clearing the Voice is truly astonishing!

There has been so much practised under the pretence of furnishing the public with superior medicines that the inventor of a GENUINE ARTICLE only begs that each one would try for himself, for society demands that should be made public. Even those which do possess some virtue are held at such exorbitant prices that they do not come within reach of the poor; while they, above all, are the most liable to suffer from the consequence of neglect and exposure.

Do not the poor suffer daily? It is true they do, for the weak Tea medicine which they are unable to purchase.—The proprietor of the Vegetable Cough Candy has developed this difficulty by inventing a Medicine compounded of twenty-nine different ingredients, extracted from the Vegetable Kingdom, and sold at a price which will place it within the reach of all. It is well known that many ingredients when used singly are inefficacious, but when combined with others are highly salutary.

Macer's Vegetable Cough Candy

contains the most essential ingredients of which other Cough Candies are composed, with several additional kind, the combined power of which is sufficient to heal, in part, every malady
