The Course of Life.

REFLECTIONS FOR THE CLOSE OF THE YEAR. Oh, let the soul is slumber break, Arouse its senses and awake,

To see h w soon Lafe with its glories glides away, And the stern footstep of decay Comes stealing on:

How pleasure like the passing wind, Blows by, and leaves us naught behind, But grief at last; How still our present happiness Seems, to the wayward faucy, less Than what is pest.

Our lives like hasting streams must be, That into one engulfing sea Are donned to fill-The sea of Death, whose waves roll on, O'er king and kingdom, crown and throne, And swallow ail.

Alake the river's lordly tide, Alile he humble streamlets glide To that sad wave ; Death levels poverty and pride, And rich and poor sleep side by side Within the grave.

Our birh is but the starting-place, Life is the ru ning of the race, And death the goal: There all our steps at last are brought, That path slone, of all unsought, Is found of all.

To thee, O God my thoughts arise; Thou great, eternal, good, and wise, To thee I cry: Gird me the race f life to run; And give me then the victor's crown,

With thee on high. Poor Tom.

A PICTURE OF THE BUM TRAFFIC.

How mournfully the tone rang through the air lahen its musical cadence died away till all was still. No ! all was not still; for a bird was singing without, and the light breath of summer come floating into the room where I lay, and bo e is tremu ous song to my est. I aresand looked through the casement into the lat ticed porch. The geranium, the rose-bish. the vine, and the honey-suckle, spreading out their ten ler leaves, obstructed the view, but, neverbeless, left room for a glimpse into a pleasant garden, where the flowers were smi ling. How peacefu!

After all, is this not a happy world? Toll! .... Toll!

Again that sound; but this time its fainting morenurs were caught up and prolonged by another more dep-ton d than the first. The inacticulate harmony tells more forcibly than words, that "man g eth to his long hom . and the mounters to about the ste ts. There is a sadn as ands yet sweetne as in the kaelt-a mourning, an i yet a joy.

Just such a grant requiem as the saintshou'd have; sorrow for our loss, joy for t eir triumph. But, O! it may not be the b dy of a depar ed believer that now takes its last journey! O! to think that when the last trumpet shall sound-a as ! alas !

Come with me, -enter a sick chamber. A b'on ed form lies b fore you; the eyes glare wildly around as he wakes tro na stupid slumber, and a sepulchrat voice breaks the silence, -. Where is my bottle?"

" Tom," replies a middle-aged man sitting by the bed side-it was kindly but firm v spoken-" Tom, you have drunk all that was in the bottle; and you should'nt have had that, if I had not been afraid , ou would sink before your medicine could act."

"I want my boule, I tell you. I will have it. I'll get up out of this b d, and go into town, and get some for myself." He rosa up in his bed, but his strength was too far gone. He tel' back in a fainting fit.

A few hours later. Day d's in the west; the crims n, the gold, and tlue, that overhang earth, our great tabern c'e is the wilderness, where even yet the Shekmah sometimes appears, are tading into a sombre pall, as though this abiding pl ce of ours were, as it is maced one vast charnel-house, Knock! knock! " Poor Tom! he was a good, clever fellow when he wasn't drunk. My Sam was out at the house this morning, and went in and took a look at the corrse. He says an old woman was sunding at the head of the lou ge, when he litted up the coverlid from Tom's face. She looked fearfuly solemn, and when Sam laid back the coverlid, she took hod of his hand and said 'Poor Tom is gone;' and then the tears came tricking down her face, and and she cried as though she would break her heart Boys! you know Tom was mighty good to his servants when he was suber, but

Prince William, 1857. DRESS-MAKING. THE most perfect system for CUTTING and FIT-TING Ladi.s' and Children's Dresses, is the Provincial Ladies' Dress Scale, Which ent're y does away with the necessity of FIT-TING OR TRYING ON! The old methed of "Pinning on Lining," and refitting once or twice, always was and is harrassing to the Ladies; and oftentimes the most costly materia's are utterly spoilt. And aga n, ladies, if their Dress-Makers are very busy, have to call again, or remain until the hurry is over, before they can be fitted, as it takes time to fit by pinning on, and cannot be hurried or slighted without making misfits. This is entirely obviated by the "Provincial La-dies" Press Scale." With this a Lady's measure can be taken in less than two minutes. She has no far-ther trouble: her dress can be made and sent to her, fitting perfectly. And why not? A gentleman can go to a Tailor and leave his m-asure for a coat; why can-not a lady leave her measure for a dress wish a Dress-Maker? The gentlemar does not fit on his Coat after it is basted to see where it should be altered; why should a Ludy fit on her dress for that purpose? No tea-on whatever; if the "Provincial Ladies" Dress Scale" is used. By it a l mis fit- and vexation is impossible (providing the directions are followed strictly as it is a simple, scientific rule, easily learned in about
