Written for the Religious Intelligencer. LINES.

BY BENJAMIN F. RATTRAY. Where is the mind which at a single glance, Can comprehend creation's vast expanse; Or soar beyond the skies and there behold The brighter glories of the upper world.

The blazing meteor will arrest the eye, As on it speeds athwart the trackless sky; And with it, hurl the mind with vain pretense Down to the things of Earth and Time, and Sense.

And should it rise again, the Comet's light, Will blind the vision and eclipse the sight: And roll across the mind a midnight wreath, And bind the dreamer to the scenes beneath. And should he then into the ocean bed, Make his abode where sleeps the watery dead;

The finny tribes and monsters of the deep Will lull his senses to a dreamless sleep. Then one by one Creation's works we'll scan Until arriving at the noblest, "Man," Who in himself will lose himself in thought,

And thought itself with mystery is fraught. But when released from this incumbering clod And mount to heaven where dwells the Incarnat God, Our minds with Heavenly Wisdom will expand, And comprehend the workings of His hand!

A LITTLE ROY'S RESOLUTIONS.

St John N. B., March 31st, 1858.

I will not swear, I do not dare God's holy name to take ; I will not lie, But I will try The Truth my guide to make.

I will not steal, For 1 should feel Degraded and ashamed; will be kind, My parents mind, Nor as a fighter named.

In youth to sin, Can I thus find, No pleasure good and pure.

But if I love Great God above, My friends and parents kind; My teacher true, And schoolmates too, ·Much happiness I'll find.

The False Balance and the Just Weight.

The shutters of the store were put on and well secured with bars of iron, that thieves might not break through and steal. The key was lodged safely in the owner's pocket, where it invariably went at night; as-besides not being quite willing to trust it with a 'is His delight.' And even if we appear hireling clerk—the merchant chose to remain where his treasure was, after all the customers were gone, to sum up the profits of the day. Mr. W. was considered a model merchant, and prosperity had followed him like a shining phantom, until grey hairs began to show themselves on his temples. Want he had never known; for his father had been rich before him. Business-difficulties were like sad fairy tales to him; as a good capital, well managed, had secured him from all embarrassment. He had no enemies; his bland heart, will that not be giving unto him with manners always winning the goodwill of the prosperous, while onething in his mien repelled those who needed favours; as they never asked, they were never offended by a refusal. The cup of affliction had been a his easy chair. stranger to his lips; for death had passed by and left this lovely band unbroken. He was to all outward appearance, a very happy its pleasures, and at the same time, a hope of heaven. Many a youth with an uneasy conscience looked at him in the sanctuary, and then in the place of vain amusement and said. "Oh that I were such a Christian! I want to be saved, but to give up the world is too great a sacrifice. Let me have such a religion as this, leaving me to enjoy prosperity here as well as hereafter." This narrow way. Can it be done?

thanks for his mercies-every night that he got home early enough, and always on Sunday morning. But on the week mornings he never had time to ask guidance for the day; to say, " Lead us not into temptation, but delivet us from evil." He was not afraid to rush into the world prayerless; and felt quite complacent if, on his return, he found his family had not scattered before he could "thank God, and commend them to his holy keeping for the night."

In a low sweet voice Mary began to read from the sacred book, "A false balance is abomination to the Lord, but a just weight is

"Well, father," asked the lovely girl, "do member those precious lines; you not think they extend beyond the measure of corn and oil; that we should carry the lesson taught in those words further than mere traffic, and apply them to the motives and judgments of our hearts? May we not give to others all which they can legally require of us, and yet wrong them by withholding from them what God requires us to vield ?"

"Well, really, my dear, if we give to others their dues, I don't see what more they can ask," replied Mr. W.

"I meant to ask, father, if we are not to give in full measure of all things God has commanded, as well as of the bare neces sities of life. A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the cicinity of Boston. I know the effect of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another after a trial it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that appears to me surprising; first, that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in isic second, that it should cure all kinds of humor. In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and grea opularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1854, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day: in April, 1854 i sold over one thousand bottles per day of it.

Some of the wholesale Druggists who have been in business twenty and thirty years, say that nothing in the annals of patient medicines was ever like it. There is a universa phase of it from all quarters.

In my own practice I always kept it strictly for humbors but since its introduction as a general family medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been found in it that I never sus pected.

Several cases of epileptic fits—a disease which was always considered incurable, have been cured by a few bottles. O what a mercy if it will plove effectual in all cases of that awful malady—there are but few who have seen more of h than I have.

I know of several cases of Dropsy, all of them aged people cured by it. For the various diseases of the Liver, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Asthma, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side, Diseases of the Spine, and particularly in diseases of the Kidneys, &c., the discovery has done more good than any medicine ever known.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can, and enough of it.

MR. TERPLEMAN, BIR,—I have been, for several years under a decline, and have taken one bottle of your medicine, and have found great relief from it, both in the help of my appetite, and rest at night, though I did not give it as tair a trial as I ought.

Yours, &c.,

JARRO BOSTWICK

Mr. T. A. Templeman, Dear sir.—I take pleasure in acknowledging the benefit your l'ills have been to me. I was afflicted with what the physicians call billiousness, for three years; I tried all the medicines which are recommended for that disease and applead reverse of the commended for years; I tried all the medicines which are recommended for thpt disease, and employed several of our eminent physicians, sometimes having three to attend me at once, but neither the medicine nor the skill of the physicians had any effect on my disease, and I was pronounced past recovery, and indeed at times my friends supposed I was dying; my life was enirely despaired of; but as a last remedy I was persuaded to try your Indian Pills. I commenced using them according to directions, and after taking a few doses, was much relieved; and finding my strength increasing, continued using them until I had taken about two boxes, when I was perfectly cured, since which time I have had good health. I shall always remember your Indian Pills as having been the means of sparing my life.

Respectfully yours, E. SERENO COLDWELL.
