The author passes in review the different classes of the population in the pontiff's dominions. The common people are plunged in the grossest ignorance. Their guides and confessors are Capuchius. Beggars, thieves, players on the guitar cicerones, and ruffians of every sort, with their wives and children, swarm in Rome. They hardly deserve the name of human beings. Vice and cruelty are their daily bread. The middle classes have some influence in Bologna Celebrated Artificial Leg. middle classes have some influence in Bologna and in Legations. But not in Rome. Some distingushed artists, skilful lawers and good physicians are there,—that is all. And these are looked upon suspiciously by the clergy.

Of the nobles, male and female, Mr. About gives no flattering picture. The Romish aris'ocracy reckon thirty—one princes or dukes, and a complete transfer at the circulars and advertisements of charletans and pretenders, who have recently entered the field, and are endeavoring to deceive by copying the invention and the indirect use of the Palmer reputation.
