JACOB'S LADDER. When Jacob, the pilgrim. was wearied by day, At night, on a stone, for a pillow, he lay, And saw, in a vision, a ladder so high, Its foot was on earth, and its top in the sky.

CHORUS. Hallelujah to Jesus, who died on the tree. To raise up this ladder of mercy for me ! Press up ward! press upward! the prize is in view, A prize of bright glory is waiting for you.

This heavenly ladder is strong, and well made, Has lasted for ages and is not decayed ; The feeblest may venture, with faith, to go up, And angels will help them from bottom to top.

CHORUS. Lol upward and downward they constantly go, Extending a hand to the toilers below ; And when a new climber sets out for the skies, Their shouts to the top of the ladder arise.

"Another ! another !" they sing, in their love, " Is seeking his home and his treasure above !" And angels in glory, responding, cry, " Come !' And welcome each penitent sinner up home.

This ladder is Jesus, the glorious God-man. Whose blood, freely streaming, from Calvery ran; By his great atonement to heaven we rise. And sing in the mansions prepared in the skies.

Come, sin burthened brother, ascend with your load !-

No ; leave it behind you, and rise up to God ; Set foot on the ladder, and soon you will find The troublesome burden of sin left behind,

CHORUS.

Now, mount up the ladder-be bold--never fear; It bears all who trust it, and ever will bear; Lo! millions have tried it and reached Zion's hill,

And theusands on thousands are climbing it still.

Upon it our fathers have gone home to God-Have finished their journey, and gained their grace.

The Broken Saw.

A boy went to live with a man who was accounted a hard master. He never kept his boys; they ran away, or gave notice they meant to quit; so he was half his time without, or in search of a boy .--The work was not very hard-opening and sweeping out the shop, chopping wood, going errands and helping round. At last Sam Fisher went to live wish him.

"Sam is a good boy," said Lis mother. "I should like to see a boy now a days that had a spark of goodness in him," growled the new master.

It is always bad to begin with a man who has no confidence in you; because, do your best, you are likely to have little credit for 11.

However, Sam thought he would try the wages were good, and his mother wanted him to go. Sam had been there but three days before, and in sawing a cross-grained stick of wood, he broke the saw. He was a little frightened. He knew he was careful, and he knew he was a pretty good sawyer too, for a boy of his age; nevertheless, the saw broke in his hands.

"And Mr. Jones will thrash you for it," said another boy who was in the wood house with him.

"Why, of course, I didn't mean to, and accidents will happen to the best of tolks,' said Sam, looking with a sorry air on the broken saw.

"Mr. Jones never makes allowances," aid the other boy; "I never saw anything like him. That Bill might have stayed, only he jumped into a hen's nest and broke her eggs. He daren't tell of it; but Mr. Jones kert suspecting, and laid everything out of the way to Bill, whether Bill was to blame or not, till Bill couldn't stand it, and so he wouldn't. "

"Did he tell Mr. Jones about the eggs ?" asked Sam.

"No," said the boy ; "he was 'fraid to, Mr. Jones has got such a temper. "

"I think he'd better own square up," said Sam. WAR 2

"I reckon you'll find it better to preach than to practice," said the boy. "I'd run away before I'd tell him;" and soon he turned on his heel and left poor Sam with his broken saw.

It was after supper, and he was not likely to see Mr. Jones that night. The shop was shut, and his master had gone to some townmeeting. The next morning he would get up early, go into the wood-house, and see what was done; for Sam would never hide the broken saw.

The poor boy did not feel very comfortable
