Halifax papers contain an account of a mass meeting held by the people of Musquodoboit in consequence of a rum shop having been opened in that place. It was very numerously attended and passed several strong resolutions condemning of such a nuisance.

NEARLY DROWNED.—A man named Spencer or Spencer belonging to the Schri. Irish, walked off the end of Rankin's Wharf, in Carlton, on Wednesday evening and narrowly escaped death from drowning. The man was under the influence of liquor, and he thought his intention was to go on board the schooner, but mistaking the way got into the water where he remained some time. He clung to a post with his hands and knees, and when rescued by the man who runs the night ferry boats between St. John and Carlton, these men were as stiff as a pine plank. He was taken into the toll house on the Western side and in the course of an hour had entirely recovered. He departed in charge of the Captain of the Irish, literally rejoicing—singing at the top of his voice some inebriated melody. Evidently his narrow escape from death had no effect on him.—Venez.

Mr. Robert Williams, the wealthiest planter in Yribabash county, Miss., was murdered by one of his slaves, on the 10th ult., whilst visiting his plantation, near Granada. He attempted to chastise the negro, who thereupon killed him with an axe.

We are pleased to learn that the lecture delivered by Rev. Mr. Manning, of Boston, at the Mechanics' Institute, on Tuesday evening last before the Young Men's Christian Association, is to be published in the Intelligencer on Saturday morning. The subject, "Manhood the true success," is a highly original one, and we have heard it, and we shall be glad to know that Mr. Day's enterprise in giving it to the public is rewarded by an extensive circulation.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Both houses of Congress convened for the second session of the thirty-six Congress, on Monday, the 3d. Fifty senators and two hundred representatives were present. No business of importance was done on the first day. On Tuesday the President's Message was transmitted.

The President takes ground strongly against the right of necessity of dissolution in the present condition of affairs. He says the election of a President to the Presidency, in a constitutional manner, is no cause for dividing the country. The apprehensions of some contingencies are not founded on fact, except, perhaps, the public act in violation of the constitution, and such an act is not likely to occur. The President is so restrained and checked by the Constitution, that he is necessarily conservative and has little power either for good or evil.

There is nothing to fear from the present or the next Congress. This body has never yet in all our history passed an act, except, perhaps, the Missouri Compromise, impairing in the slightest degree the rights of the South to their property in slaves. He speaks of the enactment of State legislatures in opposition to the Fugitive Slave law as the only instance of violation of constitutional duty, and for these neither the President or Congress are responsible. Being unconstitutional they are null and void. He regards it as at war with very principle of justice and of Christian charity to suppose that the President elect will so violate his oath as to refuse to enforce a law, which every court, both State and national, before which it has come, has decided to be constitutional. He also deprecates the agitation of the slavery question at the North.

He ridicules the idea that he can succeed without revolution, saying that if the Federal Government were a voluntary association of States to be dissolved at pleasure, the Confederacy is as a rope of sand. He refers to the "exclusive arguments" of Gen. Jackson on the subject, and declares that the Federal Government was intended to be perpetual. This he argues as a long length, coming to the conclusion that the Federal Government is as fully organized as any complete and sovereign nation, and over the people of all the States, as any individual State has over its subjects. States, if oppressed, have the right of resistance, but such resistance is revolution. Yet, that neither Congress nor any other department of the Federal Government has by the Constitution any power to exercise or make war upon a State withdrawing or withdrawn. The Union rests upon public opinion, and can never be cemented by blood. He therefore recommends conciliation and deliberation. He advises an explanatory amendment of the Constitution on three special points:—

1. A recognition of the right of property in slaves in the States where it now exists or may hereafter exist.

2. The duty of protecting this right in all the common territories, until they shall be admitted into the Union with or without slavery, as their constitution may prescribe.

3. A like recognition of the right of the master to have his slave, who has escaped from one State to another, restored, and "delivered up" to him, and of the validity of the fugitive slave law enacted for this purpose, together with a declaration that all State laws impairing or defeating this right are violations of the Constitution, and are consequently null and void.

Our forefathers were generally amiable. The President recommends the acquisition of Cuba by purchase.—(N. Y. Chronicle.)

FOREIGN NEWS.

THE NEWS BY THE CANADIAN.

GREAT BRITAIN.
The Prince of Wales was received at Oxford with much rejoicing.
There was considerable excitement in London on the 21st. It was caused by a report that the Emperor Napoleon had quietly arrived in England, and would reach London that afternoon. The railroad stations were besieged, but it turned out to be a hoax.

Financial affairs underwent an important change on the 21st, in consequence of an arrangement having been consummated by which the Bank of England lends two millions sterling in gold to Bank of France, on security of a deposit of silver to an equal amount. The arrangement caused great buoyancy in the funds, and an advance in Consols of 1-4 a 3-8 per cent. The Times' article hopes the arrangement will terminate the prevailing uncertainty in the money market, and lead to an early reduction by the Bank of England of its rate of discount.

The result of the Presidential contest was commented on with great satisfaction by the English press.
It was announced that the English Ministers to Vienna and Berlin are to change places.
The British steamer Bull Dog had returned to Portsmouth, after a survey of the deep sea route for the North Atlantic cable. The result was not known.

FRANCE.
It was rumored that Count de Morny was going to Rome on a special mission, with an autograph letter from the Emperor.
It was also stated that Count Persigny contemplated settling from the London Embassy. He will be succeeded by Count Walewski.
The Bourse was quiet; rents closed on the 21st at 70 1/2.

ITALY.
The position of affairs was unchanged. No movement reported.
The clergy of the Neapolitan provinces were paying homage to Victor Emmanuel.
The Cardinal Archbishop of Naples was about to return to his See.
The rumors of a new Sardinian loan were contradicted.
The Dowager Queen of Naples, with the young Princess, had arrived at Rome.
The French troops were about to occupy Terracina.

The Queen of Spain was about to present a very valuable sword to Gen. Goyon.
It was reported that Gen. Goyon had declared that he would not deliver the material taken from the Bourbon troops who took refuge in the Roman States either to Francis II or to Victor Emmanuel. Negotiations were, however, progressing on the subject.

The siege of Gaeta continued. The batteries of Capuocini and San Agosti had been placed in position to definitely reduce the place. The Piedmontese bombarded the suburbs on the 12th. The Neapolitan troops continued to fight resolutely, but the defection among the staff officers was increasing.

Col. Placido and his battalion of Chasseurs had withdrawn to the Promontory. The further resistance of the Bourbon troops was paralyzed by the insubordination of the troops and the confusion which prevailed. It was believed that the complete evacuation of Gaeta had been resolved upon.

The castle of Rittersheim, near Munich, was prepared for the reception of Francis II.
Explanations are said to have been asked of Placido by Francis II. to whether it was with his sanction that Garibaldi signified his intention to attack Vienna in the spring.

The plan of Garibaldi is to land his troops on the Dalmatian coast, and from thence pass into Montenegro and raise the population, in order to compel the Austrians to keep a considerable force on that side, while the Piedmontese are busy before Vienna.

The statement was current that the British government had intimated to France its intention of recognizing the new Kingdom of Italy, and that Napoleon had signified his willingness, provided it was postponed until the King of Naples had evacuated Gaeta.

AUSTRIA.
Letters speak of a guaranty from the German Confederation given by Russia, for the securing of Venice to Austria, as necessary to the safety of Germany.

INDIA.
The Bombay mail of October 18 had reached England.
The volunteer movement was making satisfactory progress in Bombay.
There was a rumor of a probable reduction of 25 per cent, in the duties on cotton goods and yarn.

The Bombay markets were very quiet and generally unchanged. Freight was tending downward.
RUSSIA.
Advices from St. Petersburg report the river Ewa full of ice, and navigation at Cronstadt was stopped.

LONDON, NOV. 23.—Dispatches from Naples Tuesday say that Francis II. burst in view in Wednesday, and that a steamer had arrived from Gaeta for medical assistance. The Queen mother and children had left for Civita Vecchia.
A Ministerial change was expected in England.

The Board of Trade had commenced an inquiry as to the cause of the blowing of the steamer Connaught.
The Emperor Eugenie was expected to return to France by the 15th of December.

GARIBALDI.

The Africa brings us news of one of the most remarkable events in history. It can be told in a very few words. A man who, a few years ago, was making candles on Staten Island—who, a few months ago, was retired soldier, much beloved and admired, but with no position or command—by his daring, his address, and his military skill has rescued a kingdom and a dependent island from a tyrannical dynasty—has been made absolute dictator in the realm which he enfranchised, and then summing a sovereign who has not furnished him a gun, a man, or a scudo, liberated country, transfused to him the supreme power, and, finally, not lingering round the monarch in whose hands he has placed the scepter of half Italy, goes home to rest as quietly as if he were turning his back upon a day's labor.

There is a simple grandeur about the manner in which this man Garibaldi has absolved himself of the high and perilous office which, all unbidden, he assumed, that lifts him far above those who are enthroned in the world's memory. That absolute self-assertion he was dictating the fortunes of his country, such absolute self-assertion when those fortunes were achieved by the force of will, and the strength of his arm, and can think of only with wonder and admiration.

But yesterday he was absolute, at peril of his life, his fortune, and his fame; to-day he gives his power, not back again to those who, in sheer necessity, bestowed it on him—that he was comparatively easy—but into the hands of another man, with the sole purpose of serving their common country.

It is neither exaggeration nor error to say that Garibaldi has done all this; for, in spite of the condition of affairs in Italy, without him it would not, could not have been done. It would not, could not have been done, if it were not for the fact that he has left behind him a man, where he has left order before chaos, that the air which he has left ringing with the cheers of grateful freemen, was, before he breathed it, resounding with the groans and curses of the exasperated victims of oppression.

The world's eye brims brightly with the flood of feeling, as it follows him, silently seeking his island home of Caprea.—(N. Y. World.)

A funeral sermon was preached by the Rev. George W. Orser, from the 11th chapter of John and the last clause of the 28th verse, by the death of the mother of the deceased.

They die in Jesus and are blest.
From suffering and from sin released,
And freed from every care.
Far from this world of noise and strife,
They're present with the Lord;
The labours of this mortal life,
End in a large and glorious strife.
