

THE RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCER.

The Council intimating their unwillingness to make the order until after the 4th instant information was furnished, Mr. Connell expressed his disapproval of their decision; but he did not use the language quoted by him.

We cannot suppose for a moment that when that meeting of Council closed, Mr. Connell had the most remote idea of resigning his office; and we cannot be mistaken as to the real cause which eventually led to that result.

In our former Memorandum, we stated to your Excellency that Mr. Connell had the assent of his colleagues to procure certain postage stamps; and we again assert that the Council were kept in total ignorance of the design upon the five-cent stamps until after they were struck off and put in circulation.

The Council do not admit that the only knowledge they have of the detailed expenditure by the Board of Works is obtained at the Audit Office, or that the other Members of the Board exercise no supervision over the expenditure made by the Chief Commissioner; and Mr. Connell is aware that one member of that Board devotes considerable time in aiding the Head of the Department in carrying on and superintending the Public Works.

We regret that Mr. Connell has not read our memorandum to your Excellency with more care. He says that we have not denied that our Minute of Council in relation to the University Bill, was a departure from the principle acquired in its passage; and we would not deny that it was so, inasmuch as we did not intend that the Bill should be introduced into the University Act, and the Act itself, so far from diminishing the power of control vested in the Provincial Government, actually enlarged it.

We do not quite understand what Mr. Connell means by his statements in reference to the survey of the lands reserved for the St. Andrews and Quebec Railway Company. We cannot suppose that he intended to assert that all the reserved lands ought to have been granted to the Company in the Spring of 1850, as we believe that such was not his wish. The present position of the Company proves that had the Council then advised your Excellency to grant the whole of the reserve, they would have acted not only unwisely, but also in opposition to the spirit and letter of the law. And had the Council then surveyed the whole tract in the year 1850, the 35,000 acres and running the sidelines of the remainder of the reserve—could have prevented the financial embarrassments of the Company, or caused the suspension of the works.

Mr. Connell passes by our statement in relation to the European and North American Railway, by repeating his former assertion, and adding—'That it appears that it is still the intention of the Government to proceed with the execution of the railway from the terminus to deep water wharves.' He made no such statement. We said, 'I do not know, we are of opinion that it will not cost more than one tenth of the sum mentioned by Mr. Connell.'

Your Excellency will doubtless recollect that we asserted that what Mr. Connell in his first Memorandum to your Excellency called, an illegal expenditure of the Railway Funds for the construction of Bye Roads and Bridges, and which constituted one of the alleged grounds of his resignation, had actually received his support in Committee of Council. It is satisfactory to find that Mr. Connell admits the correctness of our statement in this respect; but he now seeks to justify that course by stating that in doing so he expected to secure the execution of the Bridge over the Saint John near Woodstock. We assure your Excellency that the proposition for the construction of the two approaches to the Railway Stations was not coupled with any such condition. Various estimates of the cost of the proposed Bridge at Woodstock having been made—varying from $7,500 to $28,000—plans with estimates were prepared by the Government, but in doing this the Council did not suppose that the cost would be considered as a guarantee for its immediate construction; and the opinion of his colleagues upon this point was fully understood by Mr. Connell.

The policy of the Government in relation to the settlement of the Wilderness Lands of the Province, is just what it was before Mr. Connell joined it, and what it continued to be while he was a member of it. And we must express to your Excellency our surprise that Mr. Connell should have penned such a paragraph as he has in relation to the Tract of Land surveyed in Carleton County, implying, as it does, that pledges given by the Government to the Reverend Mr. Glass, in relation to the opening up of the Roads, will not be fulfilled. Such a charge is utterly unfounded. Since Mr. Glass left New Brunswick he has made his own arrangements for the survey of the tract of 10,000 acres of Land near 'Glassville,' with a view to be laid out through the same. This request was promptly and cheerfully complied with, and the Government will carry out in good faith all engagements made for the opening up of that Settlement. While Mr. Connell was a Member of the Government, we had not the slightest objection to his proposing that any disaffection existed upon this subject. We had no such information from the Reverend Mr. Glass either before or since Mr. Connell's resignation; and we need not assure your Excellency that Mr. Connell's liberty will not be taxed to make good any of the engagements of the Government.

Mr. Connell having published his second Letter to your Excellency, we respectfully request your Excellency will authorize the publication of this our reply.

CHARLES FISHER, JAMES BROWN, S. H. TILLEY, W. H. STEVES, A. J. SMITH, D. WARK, CHAS. WATTERS, PETER MITCHELL. Council Chamber, 5th June, 1850.

MURDER WILL OUT! Some few months since a man named Hicks was apprehended in or near New York for the murder of the Captain and crew of an Oyster Sloop, (3 persons in all) to which he also belonged as one of the hands. He murdered them for the money the Captain had on board. He has recently been tried and sentenced to death. It now comes out by his confession that he was one of the murderers on board the Saladin, several of whom were executed in Halifax a few years ago. Hicks and another unnamed names, were cleared. The circumstances may be fresh in the memory of some of our readers. The following facts of the case have been communicated to the New York Tribune by Mr. W. J. Williams, formerly of Yarmouth, N. S.

On a pleasant morning, some time during the Spring or Summer of 1844, a large ship departed from the wharf of Nova Scotia, forty or fifty miles east of Halifax. The fact of her coming away in the broad sunlight, the suspicious conduct of the crew, the absence of captain and officers, and the failure of the crew to give any satisfactory account of themselves or of those in command, at once aroused suspicion that she was not right, and they were accordingly arrested. Word was sent to Halifax and a revenue schooner went down and took possession of the ship, and the crew were taken to Halifax, and committed for trial.

The ship proved to be the Saladin, from Valparaiso for London, with a valuable cargo of silver and copper bars. One of the crew, after being in prison a short time, made a confession implicating all hands in a terrible conspiracy which was soon followed by a confession from the others, the gist of which, as near as I can recollect, was as follows: A few days after the Saladin left Valparaiso, a difficulty occurred between her Captain and a Capt. Fielding, who with his son, a lad of about fifteen, had taken passage for London. Fielding was an unprincipled drunken villain, and, knowing the immense value of the cargo, concerted a scheme for taking possession of the ship. His son found opportunities for tampering with the crew, a majority of whom joined his enterprise, and in a few days his plans were matured and carried out—the captain mates &c., were murdered and thrown overboard, after a severe struggle, and Fielding was installed captain. The decks were cleared and all traces of the blood were removed. Fielding had been in command scarcely a week before jealousies arose between him and his crew. Violent altercations took place between them, and at last became so frequent and dangerous that he did not dare to leave his cabin without being heavily armed. The second put was soon matured and Fielding was thrown overboard. The ship was then left without a navigator. Up to this time the young men who gave their names on the trial as Carr and Galloway, had taken no part whatever in the mutiny. It was at first resolved to send them on a visit to Fielding, but as his son still remained to be disposed of, they were ordered to murder the lad, which they did, in order to save their own lives. The vessel was then left to navigate herself. The boats were all destroyed by sinking them with silver and copper bars. The crew were tried by the Court of Vice-Admiralty, convicted, and ten of them were hanged. The prosecution resolved to use only their own confessions against them; and as these confessions exonerated Carr and Galloway from all participation in the mutiny, except through fear of their lives, they were pardoned, being the only two that revealed out of a company of twenty-five or thirty. A great deal of sympathy was manifested for them on account of their youth. A subscription was taken up for them, and they shortly left Halifax. And thus, supposed, ended one of the most brutal and bloody tragedies on record.

On this morning, on reading the lines of Hicks in the Times in relation to the Saladin and Fielding, I was surprised to find across my mail box, a letter from a young man, named Carr, who had arrived in Halifax, and the gallows, and Hick must be one of those who gave their names respectively as Carr and Galloway.
