

On having declined in Religion. "TAKE NOT THY HOLY SPIRIT FROM ME.". Psalm li. 11.

There was a time when heavenly light And hallowed joys were my delight; When sacred peace was only mine ; I knew no change nor sad decline. Then was I blessed from heaven above With faith unfeigned and fervent love ; And all was joy and all was fair, And I had neither grief nor care.

But sin, that bane of every joy, Sin that can wither, blight, destroy, Sin triumphed, and I left my God ; The paths of worldliness I trod : And now in grief I bow my head, For joys are gone and peace is fled; Nor doth a ray of hope appear My dark and dreary path to cheer.

Yet still I hear a voice proclaim, In kindly tones, the Saviour's name ; A still small voice that seems to say, " My blood can wash your sins away, My love can heal your wandering heart, My power can yet new life impart; Uplift the eye of faith, and see The star of Mercy shine for thee."

Sunday School Stories.

In a Sunday school lately, the superintendent gave the following address, which had at least the effect of chaining the attention of every child to the speaker, and would probably leave more powerful and enduring impressions than the more methodical style of discourse usually adopted.

MAKE USE OF YOUR EYES. Some timo ago I went to a shop to purchase a small article, when the master of the establishthe lad came down, saying, "I can't find it, sir." did the tear fill his full blue eye, as his teacher some deception, and of course the next morning The master then went himself, and almost directly returned, bearing in his hand the desired thing; at the same time, turning to the lad, he said, rather sharply, "Why don't you make use of your eyes?" Now, my young friends, these words set me thinking. I thought how many people go through life with their eyes shut; that is they do not observe, they do not think: the natural eye is open wide enough, but their mental eye is closed.

trated extracts of it contail, but little of the virtue of Sarsa-parilla, or any thing else. During late years the public have been misled by large bottles, preten ling to give a quart of extract of S rsaparilla for one dollar. Most of those have been frauds upon the sick, for they uot only contain little if any Sarsaparilla but often no curative proportions whatever. Hense bitter and painful disarpointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, nutil the name of itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obliquy while it rests upon it. And we think we have ground for beleiving it has virtues which are rresistables by the ordidary run of th diseases it is intended to cure. THE POOR IDIOT.

As I went on my way I saw a poor idiot, quite a young man grown, and he was playing with little child about six years old; and how delighted the poor fellow was with his little playmate! Well, while I stood looking on, how thankful I felt to the great and good God, who had preserved my reason, and had not put out this beautiful light. How distressed I felt to see several big boys teasing this poor fellow, striking his cap off, palling his coat and annoying him in every way. I went up to them, and cried, "Shame! shame on you, boys! You ought to know better." So they ran away, and well they might.

I remember a beautiful instance of God's love and mercy to a prountry church was preaching from that beautiful text of Scripture found in Isaiah xxxv. 8th verse, "The wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein." There haphis quiet behaviour in church. No sooner did the minister give out the text than poor Sam stood up, clapping his hands ; and looking up to the minister, with the big tears streaming down his checks, exclaimed, "Glory be to God-glory be saved !" God has often chosen the foolish things of this world to confound the wise. Dear children, never tease a poor idiot.

THE CHILD'S FUNERAL.

I had not proceeded very far before I met a fu neral, and from the length of the coffin I knew it was that of a child. The coffin and pall were both white. The first couple, no doubt, were the parents; and oh, how they wept! The poor mother sobbed aloud, and seemed broken-hearted. Her sweet little bud of promise had withered and died. Well, I thought, the fairest flowers of earth bloom but to wither. I wondered whether she went to Sunday school-for it was a little girl-and whether she loved the Saviour. I hope she did, for than she would be a happy angel in heaven.

HOPE, AND NO HOPE. I knew a dear little Sunday school boy, who was smitten with the scarlet fever, and the kind doctor, a pious man, one morning told the weeping parents " there was no hope." The dear little sufferer heard him say so, and rising his little Joe Marsden.

hand, he beekoned them to come to his bed-side; he then feebly said, "Doctor, did you say no hope? Oh, yes, I have a sweet hope in Jesus ; I shall soon be with them, which is better than being here; and I shall wear a beautiful crown and a white robe; my teacher, from the Bible, told me so." All were much affected. The good doctor remarked," Hath not God said, 'Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings he will perfect praise ?" On the following morning his life was fast ebbing. His father had takenhis son's hand in his ; the young saint looked at him earnestly, and said, "Dear father, I am going to Jesus Christ. What shall I tell him is the reason you won't love him ?" The father burst into tears. and turned his head away for an instant, but before he could give a reply, the spirit of his dear child had winged its way to the realms of life and immortality.
