that they are under the thraldom of the devil." "The chief of the advisers who prompt him with the cry of ' No surrender !' is now undoubtedly Cardinal Antonelli. This crafty Secretary of State sees, or fancies he sees, the fixed idea of the Emperor Napoleon to bring the Papacy into subjection, or to lead the Church into captivity, and has entirely joined that uncompromising party who hope Ultramontanism in France may overthrow imperialism.

"A party of more rational and accommodating being is, however, to be found in the Sacred College, and, from the prelate who is at the head of them, Cardinal Mirini, they go by the name of 'Marinians,' as their opponents rejoice in the appellation of 'Antonellians.' When the famous encyclical letter, which has now made the tour of the globe, was read before the so-called Secret Congregation, consisting of five members, Cardinal Marini boldly blamed the violence of its language, 'unmeet,' as he said, 'for the times we | live in; but, being opposed by the others, and especially by Antonelli, he left the meeting in a huff, and, as the servants were bustling about him with lighted torches to show him the way, he cried out tartly, and with a sneer on his lips, Get away, get away, I see my way clearly various causes; but the Executive members are enough; go back to those most eminent gentlemen there; they do want light, God only knows, the poor benighted souls!' This story, which would be so pleasant as a fiction, comes to my knowledge as an undoubted fact.

"The Papal army, which Antonelli is bent upon raising to 26,000 men (of these only 5000 natives), hardly as yet numbers 14,000. Desertions and mutinies are frequent. The cost of the Papal armament must be enormous. They are paid with unbounded liberality.

GOOD NEWS FROM AFRICA .-- A Baptist Missionary, Mr. Bowen, recently returned to America, from Africa, says :-

No missionary has ever abode for a few days in any town of the interior without preaching to swarms of deeply interested people of both sexes and all ages. No missionary has ever preached in a town for two or three months without gaining some converts. At least I have heard of none It fell to my lot, under the providence of God, to be the first who ever preached in the interior, and conferred on Canada, we should endeavour to the first to consecrate the streams of Sudon by Baptism. I had not been in Yorusa four weeks before several professed to believe, and I saw there some of the clearest cases of conviction and conversion. I have known two or three cases of to our beloved Queen. Grand balls, or bacchapeople who believed under the first sermon. have met with people from the more remote interior, who believed in Christ and had renounced idolatry from hearing missionaries only a few times, nearer the coast. There are converts in

From another source we learn that in the Sherbro and Mendi countries, the American Missionary Association has a mission consisting of four stations, besides nine places in the native villages, where the Gospel is preached to the people.-There are three churches connected with these stations, and three schools. In some of the native villages there are small schools taught by those connected with the mission, where the native language only, is used. The number of Mission aries is being increased, and when all now under appointment join it, it will consist of twenty members, including five native assistants.

PROGRESS OF THE GOSPEL IN ITALY. The following are extracts from an interesting letter addressed to the Bristo Place congregation Edinburgh, by Signor Ferretti :-

Dearest brethren, permit me now to give you, in few words, some details of the progress made by the work of the Lord in Italy. You know that Lombardy, which before the war was under the Jesuitical Government of Austria, now forms a part of the Sardinian kingdom. It is an encouraging fact that the Gaz tta di Lombardia, an official journal, a few days since contained an elaborate article in favour of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

Many priests of that country have signed a petition to King Victor Emanuel asking for various reforms in the Church. The Lombard clergy are liberal and well informed, and include not a few Jansenists, whose views would resemble those of the evangelical party in the Church of England who hold the doctrine of justification by faith. They say, with the apostle Paul, "If it is of works, then it is not of grace. When Pius IX. fabricated the new dogma of the immaculate conception four Lombardian priests, of eminent piety and learning, loudly protested against such horrible blasphemy, and were excommunicated. The people, however, sympathised with them, and not with the excommunicator. Upon the frontiers of Lombardy, at the distance of but a few miles from Milan, amidst the lofty mountains of the Grisons, exists a people almost unknown both in England and on the Continent. Although united to Switzerland, they are topographically considered, Italian -they speak Italian, and have the Italian tastes and character. The Grisons differ very widely from the Waldensians, who are Italian only by geographical position, ssess the Swiss character, and speak French. The inhabitans of the Grisons embraced the Reformation in the sixteenth century. They are at present spread throughout nine large parishes .-Their ministers are evangelical; their worship is conducted in Italian with great simplicity. While their neighbours were under the Austrian yoke, woe to them if they dared to give a bible or a tract to a Lombard, or spoke the simplest word bearing upon evangelisation! Now, however, that Lombardy belongs to the house of Savoy, the Protestants of the Grisions may freely labour for the Lord in these fertile plains. Divine Providence has had its own designs in preserving these two shining candlesticks—the Waldenses on the heights of the Cottian Alps. and the Grisons amid the Rhætian Alps. From letters recently received, I find that in several towns of Lombardy attempts have already been made to preach the gospel, and that sanguine hopes are entertained for the triumph of the cause of Christ.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

FREDERICTON, March 28th, 1860. The Legislation of the past week has not been remarkable for many interesting discussions, though very considerable has been done, about which your intelligent readers, no doubt, feel a proper degree of interest. Those hon. members, who feel that their forte rests in making fine speeches evidently imagine that they have already " placed themselves right" for the Session, and are quietly withdrawing, with the hard-earned laurels-and thereby affording a chance for the working ones of the political hive to do the necessary business in a more quiet but not the less

Thursday, the 6th proximo, is generally spoken of as the probable time of prorogation, though it may be necessary to prolong the Session a few days later. Much dissatisfaction would appear, to a bye-stander, to exist among the members, on both sides of politics, arising probably from composing themselves with the consoling thought that their crisis for this Session is fairly over. and for another year, at least, their salaries and their power are firmly secured. Nay more, perhaps when their faithful commons next meet, greater pagentry than usual will be observable, consequent upon the new dignities expected to be conferred on some of those privileged gentlemen, who will more immediately surround the Prince of Wales.

As the people's representatives have now formally invited him, and as the Government hold the purse strings, we indulge the hope that if the invitation be formally accepted no pecuniary consideration will in any way prevent an expenditure which will provide a reception worthy the occasion. As the question is likely to assume a local or provincial aspect, and we claim all the honors rival that Province in our reception of such an obituary department of your paper, of one of our illustrious guest-particularly as the people here oldest and most respectable inhabitants who has are not subordinate to any other in attachment been suddenly and unexpected removed from our penditure of the people's money.

The following poem is from the pen of a Vote of annexation of Sardinia took place in publication will do good. How can any one the Italian States on the 12th, with immense deal in the traffic and repeat this prayer?

> THE LORDS' PRAYER, CONVICTING THE LIQUOR DEALERS. "Our Father which art in heaven," Am I, O Lord by faith thy child, And are my sins through Christ Forgiven? Or am I still by sin beguiled?

O, teach me Lord this truth to know, If I the world should all forego. "Hallowed be thy name," I say, But do my ways therewith agree?

Or am I false when thus I pray? And is God's name blasphemed by me? Ah, yes! my Liquors sold for gain, Make fools who then God's name profane.

"Thy kingdom come." it is Gods will That I Christs kingdom should extend; But do my works His laws instill. Or aid to Satan's kingdom lend? The pure in Christ to heaven go, But drunkards all to endless woe.

"Thy will be done on earth," O Lord, "As it is in Heaven," above: But I can ne'er promote thy word, And still far less show forth Christ's love, While in this traffic I remain To sink poor souls in endless pain.

"Give us this day our daily bread," But not by liquor sales I pray, For that would dramshops widely spread, And drunkards make by night and day, And misery bring on young and old, And many hearts in death lay cold.

"And forgive us our debts as we Forgive our debtors," is God's will O may he give me light to see. And Grace his precepts to fulfill, That I no more in liquors deal, Lest God my doom in woe might seal.

"And lead us not,.' O blessed God, "Into temptation," now I pray, "But deliver us" through thy Word "From evil" and from sin each day, That I no more may guilty be

Of leading souls to misery. "For thine is the kingdom," O Lord, "The power and the glory" thine. And now, O Lord, Thy grace afford, And Christ through faith and love make mine, That I on him may still rely, And in his favor live and die

"Forever" let thy glory be Throughout the earth and heavens prais'd, And let Thy spirit dwell in me, 'Till I from death in Christ be rais'd, And to that heavenly choir belong Where God's great love will be the song. Amen.
