"Take not Thy Holy Spirit from me."-

Psalm li. 11. There was a time when heavenly light And hallowed joys were my delight; When sacred peace was always mine; I knew nor change nor sad decline. Then was I blessed from heaven above With faith unfeigned and fervent love; And all was joy and all was fair, And I had neither grief nor care.

But sin, that bane of every joy, Sin that can wither, blight, destroy, Sin triumphed, and I left my God; The paths of worldliness I trod: And now in grief I bow my head, For joys are gone, and peace is fled; Nor doth a ray of hope appear My dark and dreary path to cheer.

Yet still I hear a voice proclaim, In kindly tones, the Saviour's name; A still small voice that seems to say, "My blood can wash your sins away, My love can heal your wand'ring heart. My power can yet new life impart; Uplift the eye of faith and see The Star of Mercy shine for thee."

BEARING THE CROSS.

The heavier cross, the nearer heaven; No cross without, no God within. Death, judgment from the heart are driven Amidst the world's false glare and din. Oh happy he, with all his loss, Whom God hath set beneath the cross!

The heavier cross, the stronger faith; The loaded palm strikes deeper root; The vine-juice sweetly issueth When men has pressed the clustered fruit. And courage grows where dangers come, Like pearls beneath the salt sea foam.

The heavier cross, the heartier prayer; The bruised herbs most fragrant are. If wind and sky were always fair, The sailor would not watch the star; And David's Psalms had ne'er been sung If grief his heart had never rung.

The heavier cross, the more aspiring; From vales we climb to mountain crest; The pilgrim of the desert tiring, Longs for the Canaan of his rest. The dove has here no rest in sight, And to the ark she wings her flight.

The heavier cross, the easier dying, Death is a friendlier face to see; To life's decay one bids defying,-From life's distress one then is free. The cross sublimely lifts her faith To him who triumphed over death.

Thou Crucified! the cross I carry-The longer may it dearer be; And, lest I faint, whilst here I tarry, Implant thou such a heart in me, That faith, hope, love may flourish there, Till for my cross the crown I wear!

THE UNHEEDED WARNING. An eminent divine has remarked, "If we would be watchful to observe providences, we look for answers to prayer, there would be more answers to prayer for which to be thankful."-There are prophecies in the Bible fulfilling every ger the incredulity of the most skeptical. The following incident, a recital of which fell from the ips of the venerable speaker years ago, has been recalled to my own mind many times, and may well be recorded for the warning of the young, passed away.

The narrator was the eminent clergyman an leader in the church, the Rev. Dr. John Living ston, one whose sound doctrine, rare theological acquirements, zeal for the truth, and discriminating judgment, constituted him the most distinguished in that church, of which he was at once the ornament and the guide, while his urbanity of manner and large warm-heartedness have embalmed his memory in the love of all whose privilege it was to associate with him.

It was during a brief visit to a family in th city of ____ that he was so pained with the disobedience and want of reverence on the part of the only son to his parents, that all the pleasure of the meeting was marred. Again and again the disrespectful and self-willed replies to the kind parents grated on his feelings, and made the courteous guest almost forget his character as visitor in his apparent duty as a Christian.

"Thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbor and not suffer sin upon him." Should he give pain to his kind host and hostess by reproving their favorite child-should he even seem to notice his conduct, and thus add to their evident distress? A gentle admonition was first given in private, but that seemed only to irritate. Th disease was beyond the reach of mortal skill. At length, on one occasion, the undutiful son replied to his parent in Dr. Livingston's presence in words of such insulting and defiant disobedience that their guest could no longer keep silence. In tones of solemn warning, he reproved the offender, spoke of the ingratitude of thus repaying the affection and kindness of his parents, of the sin against his God, who had, from Mount Sinai, issued a special command to children to honour their parents, and concluded by reminding the young man that God had not only given a promise to the dutiful, but a terrific threat to the disobedient, and repeated with a fearful emphasis these words: "The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it."

Dr Livingston returned to his home and his duties in the church, and heard shortly after that the subject of his reproof had at length thrown off all restraint by leaving home and its counsels, and chosen for himself the indulgence of a foreign residence on a Southern Island, and so he passed from his thoughts as a painful recollec-

Some time after this occurrence, he met in society a gentleman who had been spending the winter in the West Indies. Then countries were more distant than now, when steam seems to condense our globe into one-half its size, and an observing traveller could depict scenes and customs as interesting as strange. In the course of conversatioe--

Do you remember young J _____," said the stranger, naming the young man whom Dr. Livingstone had, on that occasion so severely reproved, "I think I met you at his father's?"

"Yes, most distinctly! He has left home, and was, the last I heard of him, in the West Indies. Did you hear anything of him ?"

"Ah, where did you see him? Is he doing

A HAPPY MAN. A zealous divine, who had prayed earnestly that God would teach him the perfect way of truth, was directed to go to a certain place, where he would find an instructor. When he came to the place, he found a man in ordinary attire, to whom he wished a good morning.

"I never had a bad morning," replied the

"That is very singular. I wish you may al ways be so fortunate." "I was never unfortunate," said he.

"I hope you will always be as happy," said the "I am never unhappy," said the other.

If I am miserable in outward and antiquities of the rarest kind. circumstances, and despised, I still praise God .-You wished that I might always be fortunate; but I cannot be unfortunate, because nothing befalls me, but according to the will of God; and I believe that His will is always good, in whatever He does or permits to be done. You wished me always happy; but I cannot be unhappy, because my will is always resigned to the will of God."

THE POWER OF PRAYER.

A godly man, the master of an American ship, during one voyage found his ship bemisted for days, and he became rather anxious respecting her safety. He went down to the cabin and prayed. The thought struck him, if he had with confidence committed his soul to God, he might certainly commit his ship to him; and so accordingly, he gave all into the hands of God, and felt at perfect peace; but still he prayed that if He would be pleased to give a cloudless sky at twelve o'clock, he should like to take an observation, to ascertain their real position, and whether they were on the right course.

He came on deck at eleven o'clock, with the quadrant under his coat. As it was thick and drizzling, the men looked at him with amaze nent. would have providences to observe; if we would He went down again to his cabin, prayed, and came up. There still seemed no hope. Again he went down and prayed, and again he appeared day before our eyes-enough, if noticed, to stag- on deck with his quadrant in his hand. It was now ten minutes to twelve o'clock, and still there was no appearance of a change; but he stood on deck waiting upon the Lord, when, in a few minutes, the mist seemed to be folded up and especially as the family referred to have long since rolled away by an omnipotent and invisible hand; the sun shone clearly from the blue vault of heaven, and there stood the man of prayer with the quadrant in his haud; but so awe-struck did he feel, and so 'dreadful' was that place, that he could scarcely take advantage of the answer to his prayer. He however succeeded, although with trembling hands, and found to his comfort that all was well. But no sooner had he finished taking the observation, than the mist rolled back over the heavens. and it began again to drizzle as

> This story of prayer was received from the lips of the good Captain Crossby, who was so useful in the Ardrossan awakening; and he himself was the man who prayed and waited upon his God with the quadrant in his hand.

> Let us be taught by this striking incident, tha we ought to expect God to hear us when we pray, and that we should put ourselves in readiness for taking immediate advantage of the answer to our prayers. Let us learn, in effect, to wait upon the Hearer of prayer, ' with the quadrant in ou

EXTINCTION OF FAMILIES OF MEN OF GENIUS. -It is remarkable, in many instances, how soon the line of descent of men of great genius has been cut off. We have no male descendants of William Shakspeare, Milton, Sir Walter Scott, or Lord Byron. Sir Isaac Newton left no heir The male branch of Sir Christopher Wren's family is extinct, and the female line nearly so. The races of Sir Joshua Reynolds, Dr. Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith, Telford, and Brindley, have ceased to exist; and a hundred other famous names might be mentioned to show to what a great extent this fact may be considered as a natural law. We had recently another illustration of this, when the grave closed upon the only son of George Stephenson, without leaving any direct PRAYER ANSWERED .- A large ship sprang a leak at sea, and when the captain saw that she must go down, he called the crew together, in all 32 persons, and apprised them of their danger and asked if they were prepared." Two of them stepped forward and said: "Captian, we believe we are prepared." "Then pray for me and your shipmates," said the captain, "I am not prepared." While thus engaged in prayer, the life boat from a distant ship came to their relief. They felt that it was an answer from God, they established a daily prayer-meeting and when they arrived at Fayal, every one of the 32 had become hopefully pious.

THE BREWER AND THE TEMPERANCE SOCIETIES.

Mr. Alderman Beaumont of Bradford received a note one day from Mr. Henry Leah, the great brewer, asking the favor of a call. On arriving at the brewer's residence the great friend of temperance was shown into the drawing-room, where the brewer and his wife were seated. Mr. Leah said, "I understand, Mr. Beaumont, that your Temperance Society is in trouble." "Yes, sir the mortgage for £500 on our hall is called in and I fear the building must be sold," was the reply. "The Temperance Society has done a vast amount of good, and ought to be supported,' said Mr. Leah," I do not know what my partners will say to me, but I shall present the Society with the £500." In a few moments this sum was handed to Mr. Besumont, who received it with feelings that may be better imagined than described. At this moment Mrs. Leah broke the silence she had hitherto maintained by saying, My husband has pleased me very much by what he has done." When about to depart, the liberal- | sers. Wholeslae and Retail. minded brewer called Mr. Beaumont back to inquire if there were any arrears of interest due. On learning that the amount of £22 10s. was due Mr. Leah drew v new cheque for £522 10s., which he handed Mr. Beaumont in exchange for the other! Within ten days of this interesting interview, Mr. Leah was stepping out of a railway carriage; his foot caught the step, and was so seriously injured that in two days he died ! PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given to the people of the Province of New Bruns wick, and Nova Scotia and the citizens of St. John N. B., in particular that Dr. Benjamin Leary, Botanic Physician and Freeman, of the said city of Saint John, is not connected with the alopathic profession under the recently passed medical act of the Assembly of New Brunswick. He would respectfully call the attention of the afflicted to the wonderful cures performed by his Auglo-Saxon medicine, and also in all cutanious diseases that he will continue his practice not as heterofore confined to one locality, but will travel through all towns in both provinces remaining each place a few days in order to establish his celebrated medicine.

During a residence of six years in the city of St. John his medicine has gained a rep tation for its healing qualities that none other has, he would therefore respectfully solicit not only a continuance but an increase of those favors heretofore bestowed. Let it be numbered that the Anglo-Saxon medicine is warranted not to injure the most feelile constitution.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

A compound remedy in which we have labored to produce the most effect all alternative that can be made. It is a con entrated extract of Para Sarsaparilla, so combined with other substances of still greate alterdative power as to afford an effective antidote for the dise uses Sarsaparilla is reputed to cure. It is beleived teat such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Strum ous complaints and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove an immeuce service to this large class of our afflicted fellow citizens. How completly this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cases to be found in the following complaints—Scriptian and Scrofflous complaints, Eruptions, and Eruptive Diseases, Ulcers, Pimples, Blotches, Tomors, Salt Rheum Scald Head, Syphilis and Syphilic Affections, Mercural Disease, Dropsey, Neuralgia or Tic Deulouroux, Debility, Dyspepsia, and Indigestiem, Erysipelas, Rose or St. Anthony's fire and indeed the whole class of complaints arising from impurity of the blood.

This compound will be found a great promoter of health when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which tester in the blood at that season of the year by the timely expulsion of many of them rankling d sorders are nipped in the bud. Multitudes can by the aid of this remedy spare thems lives frem the endurance of foul eruptions and ulcerous sores through which the system will strive to rid itself of corruptions, if but assisted to so through the natural channels of the body by an alternative medicine. Clense out the vitivated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores: clense it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the vains; clense it whenever it is foul and your feelings, will tell you when. Even where no particular disorder is feit people enjoy hetter heaith and lives longer for clesing the blood. Keep the blood healthy and ail is well; but with this palbum of life disordered, there can be no insting more because many preparations, pretending to be concentrated extracts of it contain but little of the virtue of Sarsaparilla, or any thing else.

During late years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretending to give a quart of extract of Sorsaparilla for one dollar. Most of those have been frauds upon the sick, for they uot only contain little if any Sarsaparilla but often no curative proportions whatever. Hense bitter and painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name of itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to sumply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obliquy while it rests upon it. And we think we have ground for heleiving it has virtues which are irresistables by the ordidary run of the diseasos it is intended to cure. In order to secure their complete eradication from the system, the remedy parilla, or any thing else.

Roxbury Mass. Dear Madam, The reputation of the Medical Discovery in curing all kinds of humors, is so well established by the unanimous voice of all who have ever used it, that I need not say anything on the subject, as the most skilful physicians and the most careful bruggists in the country are unanimous in its praise.

In presenting the Medical Discovery to your notice, I do it with a full knowledge of its careative powers, in releiving all and curing most of these diseases to which you are unfortugately so liable. That most excruciating disease
