more than ordinarily fruitful of remark and speculation. The rain has been in every one's mouth and on every one's head which did not keep snugly in doors. Such rains! Our good American friends who have never been here before, will carry away with them an unforgetful impression of the rainy season. Fears were entertained about the harvest, and that no bad effects have been, or will be, produced, it would be false to assert. The bay harvest has suffered much, and some corn has been lost; but where the wheat has not been beaten down, an average yield, or more, is now expected. About a week of fair weather has been granted, and an extension of the same blessing will be of inestimable importance. Still there is but little sun visible, and unless a change occurs all the notions of harvesting with troops of toiling, sweltering repears will, as regards the present year, be quite apocryphat. Blos Las , yll sienen a selegenti ve Salianda

Would that the same could be sail of great a red and black plethora. The Road child-murder is yet wrapped in a mystery as dark as the tragedy; the Stepney murder (committed on an old lady who collected her own rents) is not elucidated; Youngman the undoubted murderer of four persons, went on Tuesday to the gallows, protesting his innocence and charging his mother with the crime; and now we hear of a sullen youth shooting a female fellow-servant with whom he had quarreled. Infantic de, too is fearfully prevalent. Great fires have also abounded. One on the banks of the Thames, near London Bridge, has been followed by another which left only the bare walls of St. Martins Hall, leased by Hullah, the eminent music teacher, and the third place of public-meeting for size in London. Two others even more destructive of property have succeeded. The rail has again added an item, and one of the largest ever added, to the musterroll of accidents. Three excursion trains were returning from Manchester on Tuesday, and one passed in safety, but as the second and third were ascending a gradient of one in forty-two, the train broke, and so allowed them to rush down upon the third train. Ten immediate deaths, besides others expected, and hundreds of wounds and bruises resulted from the frightful concussion. A colliers accident, fatal to life, has also put in its claim to be reported.

In the religious world there is not much to chronicle. Dr. Cheever attended a Negro Emancipation Celebration Meeting on the 1st of August, and preached on the next Sunday for Binney, since which he has been on the continent. The various Methodist bodies have held their Conferences and Assemblies, and seem prosperous. The Wesleyan Methodists had a large increase in the year. Dr. Campbell in his "Standard" has been attacking the sermon preached at the London Missonary Society's Anniversary, by Rev. H. Allon, of Islington, for its alleged doctrinal laxity, but none of the other Dissenting papers take sides with the brawny editor, who has come to be regarded in the light of a literary bruiser! His chief backer in the press is Air. Grant, of the ." Morning Advecate" which advocates orthodoxy, and is the organ of the dealers in "Old Tom." St. G orge in the East is now in the happy condition of not being written a meeting with his friends in the unfinished chapel, when he related his continential experiences and impressions. £5000 will be required in order to have the chapet opened free of debi, which Mr. S. declares must be done or he shall feel "a sneaking, miserable sinner." It is now roofed in and has a noble appearance, being don. It is made to seat 3,500 persons, (500 more than Exeter Hall,) and will provide standing room for other 1500. In Ireland the Revival still. One of the Bishops of the Irish E-tablishment having forbidden the Vicar of Belfast to allow a fanatical Orange minister to preach in his church, the prohibition was disregarded, and the Vicar is now put under the same yoke, which he feels anything but pleasant. Though solicited to remove it by the late Solicitor General, Sir H. Cairns, the Bishop, who is a friend of the Evangelical Alliance, has stoutly declined. You have heard of course of the Newspaper Company, and its project of starting a daily newspaper to compete with the " l'imes." After a long delay it was thought advisable to set up a weekly, as a kind of pilot-paper, and at a recent meeting of shareholders, the Directors were empowered to effect an amalgamation with an existing penny daily, the " Moraing Star."
