The Old Family Bible.

How painfully pleasing the fond recollection Of youthful emotion and innocent joy...

I still view the chair of my sire and my mother, The seats of their offspring as ranged on each hand...

And that richest Book which excels every other, That family Bible which lay on the stand...

That Bible, the Volume of God's inspiration, At morn and at even could yield us delight...

Our hymne of thanksgiving with harmony swelling, All warm from the heart of a family band...

Described in the Bible that lay on the stand; The old fashioned Bible, the dear, blessed Bible...

"Ye scenes of tranquility, long have we parted, My hopes almost gone, and my parents no more..."

In sorrow and sadness I live broken hearted, And wander unknown on a far distant shore...

Old and think of the Bible that lay on the stand; The old fashioned Bible, the dear, blessed Bible...

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT.

BY ALIQUIS.

A SUGGESTIVE REMARK.

One may overhear a conversation without being an eaves-dropper. Words fall upon our ears...

I was detained at a Railway Station longer than I expected to be, on one occasion, and could not avoid hearing some of the conversation...

A word, or two, by way of introduction upon the slang phrases used to express the degraded condition of one who has been drinking...

The Washington correspondent of the N. Y. World draws a sad picture of the reasonable conduct of many women at the Capitol...

So it appears everybody does have trials, and the only right way of getting along is not to wish ourselves somebody else, and fret ourselves because we are not...

A SAD SCENE.—A sad scene occurred in the 5th Ward Station House on Wednesday evening. Three little girls detained for immoral conduct...

It is also my belief, founded on increasing acquaintance with that numerous class of men who occupy the clerkships of the departments...

Among such circles as these, so widely extended in Washington, the arrest of Faulkner has produced profound astonishment and alarm.

Ask a sober man to do you a favor, ask him courteously and confidently, and you may expect a kindly response; and in nine cases out of ten the expectation will be realized.

Ask a man when intoxicated, to repeat the favor, ask him with greater courtesy than before, and there are nine chances to one that you will be refused, and vituperated in the bargain...

The Little Ragged Boy.

It was some time ago stated by a gentleman at a public meeting, that a friend of his, being in Utrecht, formed an intimacy with a magistrate of that city...

"No," said my friend, "I never did." "Then," said he, "I will inform you to what I owe all my present comfort. I was once a ragged barefooted boy, running about on errands in the streets of this city, of which I am now magistrate...

A Fretful Toad.

A toad used to live under a stone beside the brook. He was a pretty fat toad, and got along in the world as toads generally do. One day he went out to find something to eat...

"Let me tell you," said the toad. "In the first place, we have to work for our living, and often when we think we are going to get a beetle, we get a bumble bee. Then, again in winter time, we get frozen up; and when we come out, the boys come along and stone us, and the crows pick us up; isn't that trouble? While you platinists have just to sit by the river, and don't have to work. I should like to change places with you."

"Stop! let me tell you my side," cried the platinist. "We can't hop about as you can, but have to stand where we are put. If we want a drink of water, we can't go to the creek and get it. We can't move an inch to go and see the world, and visit our next neighbor. Then the sun shines hot all day, and we have to bear it, and can't hop under a cool leaf as you do. Then, by and by, comes along a cow, and nips off our head, or a little worm, and eats into our heart, and we have not power to shake him off. I should like to change places with you."

"Let me tell you," said the toad. "In the first place, we have to work for our living, and often when we think we are going to get a beetle, we get a bumble bee. Then, again in winter time, we get frozen up; and when we come out, the boys come along and stone us, and the crows pick us up; isn't that trouble? By the use of Joints in the Hoops of a Skirt, a better quality of Steel can be used, giving to it, and retaining in the Skirt, a more graceful and elegant form; while the flexibility of the joints prevent the bending and breaking of the Hoops under pressure, and bring them back to their original form when the pressure is removed, also permit the Skirt to assume an easy position when the wearer is seated.

The quality of Braid and the peculiar construction of the Skirt, adding so greatly to its durability, particularly commend it to the favor of those who desire to unite in their purchase Elegance, Convenience, and Economy.

A splendid lot of Indian Porcupine and BEAD Work Boxes, Mosses, Caps, Quizzes, Watch Cases, Matts, Bracelets, &c.
