IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

CONDITION OF TURKEY.

from earthly trials, said that he often prayed for them. This seemed unaccountably strange to us at the time being young and wholly unacquainted with religious experience, but since, we too have had abundant reason to bless God for our having been brought to experience their salutary effect on the mind, in causing us to turn from earth to heaven, from time to eternity, from the creature to God. We ought indeed to be very thankful to Almighty God for sending us anything that has a tendency to sever these almost irrepressible ties which bind us down so to earth's vanities, that the soul may become disenthralled from the cruel tyranny of sin, mount up to dwell in the climes more congenial to its undying nature, and feel its very want supplied by God.

But afflictions not only sever the stronghold of our thoughts on the world, and transfer the soul's affections to heaven, they also have a peculiar tendency to fit the Christian for usefulness. When the deep fountains of sympathy in the soul become thoroughly broken up, we immediately begin to feel for others' woes. We then discover many ways and means by which we may alleviate others' sufferings, and it gives us pleasure to try to do it. The scriptures too, afford us new consolation where we were not wont to find it before; we see new meaning and force in many a familiar truth to which we had hitherto been morally and spiritually blind. But for the strong arm of adversity to arouse us to action, some of the best sympathies, and some of the best energies both of the mind and the body would forever remain unemployed.

To this many a great and good and useful man is indebted for his usefulness.

The sainted Baxter tells us that he had not the least expectation of ever serving God in any more public capacity than preaching until having been prostrated on a bed of sickness, and "sentenced to death by his physicians." While there in this solitary chamber seriously contemplating the soul's everlasting rest, upon which he soon expected to enter, he recorded his thoughts.

These thoughts ultimately grew into that incomparable volume, the "Saints Everlasting Rest."

For Bedford Jail too, we had had no "Pilgrim's Progress." The amount of good already performed by these two invaluable books, eternally alone will reveal. They have blessed the people of God for generations past, and will till the end of the world. Their influence is world wide and as durable as time.

SUNDAY SERVICES IN THEATRES.

LONDON is eminently blessed with men whose sole object of life seems to be the accomplishment of good. Whether in the church or the world, the same principle of action is manifest—that of doing good to their fellow creatures. Sensible of the inward blessings of religion themselves, they are anxious to spread its benefits as widely as possible to others; hence, while they are prepared, with Divine aid, to encounter the difficulties that would seem almost necessary to success, they are nevertheless resolved to let no obstacles conquerable by patience and prayerful perseverance impede the progress of their evangelizing work. With hearts warmed in the service of their adorable Lord and Master they press forward, resolving to let no opportunity be lost by which a single soul can be saved. Noble resolution—worthy of our imitation. Talents, money and unwearied labour, laid at the disposal of the church, are undeniable proofs of a man's being intent on saving souls. Theirs is not merely Sunday piety, but a subject of every-day concern, to see how far the Church of Christ can be benefited by their activity. Such men as these are sure to find work to do, as also all others who seek it in the Christian Church with equal earnestness. But for them the Church would indeed be stagnate, yielding little or no supply to the perishing millions without. How can we bring the Gospel within the hearing of those who habitually absent themselves from our ordinary places of worship? was a question sometime ago asked—a query not easily solved. However, when the ingenuity of our thinking Christians, along with earnest prayer, was made to bear upon it, by the grace of God, a way was soon opened by which, in a great measure, this desirable object was gained, and the difficulty overcome. It was proposed to open the London theatres for Sabbath preaching. No sooner was this suggested than Christians of all denominations hailed it as a grand opening for getting at a class of people who might enter a theatre from various motives when they would not think of attending our ordinary means of grace. It was seen to be a movement likely to be productive of much good, and so it afterwards proved to be. Yet, not unlike other good projects, it met with opposition on the part of some, as in their minds, places used for secular amusement during the week were not suitable for sacred purposes. The committee appointed for arranging these services had too clear a view of duty in this matter to allow minor objections of this kind to prevent the carrying out of so grand a scheme. The object was to save souls. It was decided; and when God sees His people determined to advance the interests of His kingdom, He is sure to grant His converting power in accordance with His promise. He has signified His approval of theatre preaching by saving many souls through its instrumentality. At the beginning of this work funds were at the disposal of the committee which have been most judiciously expended, and the arrangements throughout marked with great care and economy. It has prospered very favourably, and given them the greatest encouragement to persevere. It is now no longer a mere experiment; rather has it merged from its infancy of action into that of a gigantic institution, developing itself in a large and glorious conversion of souls, and principally those too, who, had they not heard the Gospel within the walls of a theatre, would, in all likelihood, never have heard it at all. Some, indeed, have entered the doors from bare curiosity, who were standing opposed to religion in obstinate rebellion, and found peace in believing. Thus it is arresting the attention of those for whom these services were originally intended, and who shall attempt to count the results?—Christian Cabinet.

Arrival of the "America."

HALIFAX, April 3rd, 1861.

The "America" from Queenstown 23rd, arrived here this morning.

BRITAIN.—In the House of Commons, Lord John Russell promised to produce the correspondence with the American Government, relative to the Fugitive Slaves Anderson.

FRANCE.—In the Corps Legislatif Jules Favre moved his Amendment of Address regarding the withdrawal of the French troops from Rome, and strongly urged the necessity for such proceedings; he asserted the maintenance of the statu quo would be impossible.

Bilal said the French Government would neither sacrifice the Pope to the Unity of Italy, nor the Unity of Italy to the Pope. The aim of France was to reconcile the two interests, the combination proposed at Villa Franca was the true solution but it was not accepted. He alluded at length to the difficulties of the question. The amendment was rejected, 246 to 5. An Amendment in favor of the temporal power of the Pope was offered, but was withdrawn. Count Morny was urging the Legislature to leave the solution to the Emperor.

So far from calling French troops from Rome it was generally reported in Paris that ten thousand men were to be sent out nominally to reinforce the garrison, but really to make counter demonstration to that of Austria on the Po.

UNITED STATES.—Fort Sumter was evacuated by the Federal Troops on the 27th ult. Four hundred men have been ordered to land at Fort Pickens, from Steamer Brooklyn, to prevent it being surprised by the rebels.

Hon. A. H. Stevens, Vice President of the Southern Confederacy, delivered a Speech in Savannah, on 21st ult., in which he declared that the Constitution of late Union was founded on the African and European races, which is not a fact. The Constitution of the Confederate States is formed on the great truth that slavery-subordination, is the natural and moral condition for the negro.

Prince Alfred has arrived at Barbadoes.

DR. ROBB of Fredericton died at his residence on Tuesday afternoon, after an illness of about two weeks. This gentleman was a Professor of King's College for many years, and by his knowledge of Agricultural Chemistry rendered good service to the Agricultural interest of the Province. He was a gentleman of high attainments in his profession, and his death is a public loss.

The Christian Watchman has passed from the hands of Mr. Day, its former proprietor, to a Committee composed of several prominent members of the Calvinist Baptist body.

SAD ACCIDENT.—We regret sincerely to relate that Mr. John Coleman, of Indian Town, a highly respected member of that community, was thrown from his sleigh on the road from the Suspension Bridge, Carleton side, on Monday afternoon and had one of his legs broken. We are gratified to learn, however, that Mr. C. is doing as well as can be expected under the distressing circumstances.—[News.]

CORPORATION REVENUE.—The revenues accruing from the ships and wharves &c. belonging to the City Corporation were sold at Auction the other day. The amount realized was $5481, a decrease since last year of $1521.

NEW STEAMBOAT.—A new Steamer called the "Antelope" was launched on Wednesday last from the yard of the foot of King St. Carleton. She is owned by Messrs. Hatheway & Small, and will ply on the River St. John.

"At the port of Boston alone, during the year 1860, the number of emigrants from the British Provinces numbered 5570; while with all the efforts the Province of New Brunswick is making to secure emigration, but 540 were gained during the same year."

The total value of the annual products of American industry was estimated by the census of 1840 at about $1,000,000,000; by the census of 1850 at about $2,000,000,000; and the estimate by the census of 1860 will probably be about $4,000,000,000.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

COUGHS, COLDS, AND HOARSENESS.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co. do not hesitate to say the best remedy I have ever used for Coughs, Hoarseness, and the concomitant symptoms of a Cold, is Cherry Pectoral. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years has shown it to possess superior virtues for the treatment of these complaints.

Another Ayer, I will cheerfully certify of the Pectoral is the best remedy we possess for the cure of Whooping Cough, Croup, the chest disease of children, and the croup of the throat. We have used it for the last forty years, and it has never failed us.

We have used it for the last forty years, and it has never failed us.

Consumption, do not despair. I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, it is made up of the best medicinal chemicals, and it is the only one that will cure the high mucus of its victims.—[Philadelphia Ledger.]
