The Right Must Win. O, it is hard to work for God, To rise and take his part Upon this battle-field of earth, And not sometimes lose heart!

He hides himself so wondrously, As though there were no God; He least is seen when all the powers Of ill is most abroad:

Or he deserts us at the hour The fight is almost lost; And seem to leave us to ourselves Just when we need him most.

O, there is less to try our faith In our mysterious creed, Than in the godless look of earth In these our hours of need.

Ill masters good; good seems to change To ill with greatest ease; And, worst of all, the good with good Is at cross purposes.

It is not so, but so it looks, And we lose courage then'; And doubts will come if God has kept His promises to men.

Ah, God is other than we think His ways are far above, Far beyond reason's height, and reached Only by child-like love. * * * * * * Work man of God! O, lose not heart,

But learn what God is like : And in the darkest battle-field Thou shalt know where to strike. O blest is he to whom is given

The instinct that can tell That God is on the field, when He Is most invisible. And blest is he who can divine

Where real right doth lie, And dares to take the side that seems Wrong to man's blindfold eye. * God's glory is a wondrous thing,

Most strange in all its ways, And, of all things on earth least like What men agree to praise. As He can endless glory make

From Time's misjudging shame,

In His own world He is content

To play a losing game.

Muse on his justice, downcast soul! Muse, and take better heart: Back with thine angel to the field; Good luck shall crown thy part!

For right is right, since God is God; And right the day must win; To doubt would be disloyalty; To falter would be sin!

The Lord and the Little Ones.

"HE shall gather the lambs with his arms and carry them in his bosom."-These gentle words of prophecy relate to the Lord Jesus; and in him they were fulfilled. His ways of gentleness and love engaged the hearts of "little ones;" and many such believed on him, while reasoning and self-righteous men despised his grace, and scorned his lowly ways.

At Capernaum the disciples asked the Lord. "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven? "And Jesus celled a little chi'd unto him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enterinto the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. And whose shall receive one such little child in my name, receiveth me. But whoso shall offend-that is, cause to stumble or ensnare-one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and

The original word here rendered "little child," includes the idea of a docile, subject one -a little child who believes without reasoning; lives in the family without servile work, and without any anxious care; and is cheerfully submissive and obedient to parental control. And this is the Lord's own description of a person saved by his grace, and who shall therefore enter into the kingdom of heaven. An instructive instance and illustration of this is seen in the case of a little child, called by the grace of God into the knowledge and love of Christ; and into conscious salvation, and rest and peace in Him.

"When my child was about three years old, I was talking with him of the Divine Saviour. and said to him, 'Johnny, the Lord Jesus came into the world to save sinners,-little sinners like you, as well as big sinners." the midst of a group of rescued sinners, this little one stood and confessed his faith in JESUS -the DIVINE and ONLY Saviour of his soul. There stood the harlot, and the infidel, and the gray-headed sinner, and in the midst of them this little one of seven years old; confessing the grace by which they were, alike and equally, saved from sin and death, and the precious blood 10 which their various sins were all and forever, was joy and thanksgiving on earth; and more, coat; he picked it off, and, looking at it, saw there was 'joy in heaven'-'joy in the presence only the word "God."
