The Battle of Bull's Run. For some weeks the troops of both armies have been concentrating at or near Manasses Junction, and on Friday last, the 19th, he advance columns met at Bull's Run, when a sharp battle took place, in which the Federalists were victors, with a loss of about sixty men. What the rebel few days. loss was, is not known. On Sunday the 21st, each body having been reinforced, the fight recommenced, and the following despatches will show that the Federal army has suffered a most disastrous defeat. Of course the number of the killed and wounded has not yet been accurately obtained, and all rumors must be taken as supposition, till official returns are made.

The campaign having now fairly opened, we may daily look for intelligence of the most exciting character.
