"I THOUGHT IT WAS MY MOTHER'S VOICE."

A FRIEND told me, not long ago, a beautiful man out into the street. He was very young and very pale, but his haggard face and wild eyes told that he was very far gone in the road to ruin, as tening to be revenged upon the man who had so intently into the fire. Suddenly there appeared this day?" Be useful in some way, and the field ill-used him. This poor young man was so excited the form of a human face. The face was wrinkled for usefulness is the world.—Morning Star. and blinded with passion that he did not see the by age, and the form bent by the pressure of sixtylady, who stood very near to him, until she laid her | eight years. Just before it seemed a coffin and a hand upon his arm, and spoke in her gentle, loving voice, asking him what was the matter.

At the first kind word the young man started as though a heavy blow had struck him, and turned quickly round, paler than before, and trembling from head to foot. He surveyed the lady for a moment, and then, with a sigh of relief, said: "I thought it was my mother's voice, it sounded so strangely like it! But her voice has been hushed in death for many years." "You had a mother, then," said the lady, " and she loved you?" With that sudden revulsion of feeling which often comes to people of fine nervous temperament, the young man burst into tears, sobbing out, "Oh yes, I had an angel mother, and she loved her boy! But since she died all the world has been against me, and I am lost! lost to good society, lost to honor, lost to decency, and lost forever!"

"No, not lost forever; for God is merciful, and his pitying love can reach the chief of sinners," said the lady, in her low, sweet voice; and the timely words swept the hidden chords of feeling which had been long untouched in the young man's heart, thrilling it with magic power, and wakening a host of tender emotions, which had been buried very deep beneath the rubbish of sin

More gentle words the lady spoke, and when she passed on her way the young man followed her. He marked the house which she entered, and wrote the name which was on the silver doorplate in his little memorandum book. Then he walked slowly away, with a deep, earnest look on his white face, and deeper, more earnest feelings in his aching heart. Years glided by, and the gentle lady had quite forgotten the incident we have related, when one day a stranger sent up his card, and desired to speak with her. Wondering much who it could be, she went down to the parlor, where she found a noblelooking, well-dressed man, who rose deferentially to meet her. Holding out his hand, he said:

"Pardon me, madam, for this intrusion; but I have come many miles to thank you for the great service you rendered me a few years ago," said he, in a trembling voice.

The lady was puzzled, and asked for an explanation, as she did not remember ever having seen the gentleman before.

"I have cleanged so much," said the man, "that you have quite forgotten me; but though I only saw your face once, I am sure I should have recognized it anywhere. And your voice, too, it is so like my mother's !"

Those last words made the lady remember the poor young man she had kindly spoken to in front of the drinking-saloon so long before, and she mingled her tears with those which were falling slowly over the man's cheeks. After the first gush of emotion had subsided, the gentleman sat down, and told the lady how those few gentle words had been instrumental in saving him and making him what he then was.

"The earnest expression of 'No, not lost for ever,' followed me wherever I went," said he, " and it always seemed that it was the voice of my mother speaking to me from the tomb. . I repented of my many transgressions, and resolved to live as Jesus and my mother would be pleased to have me; and by the mercy and grace of God I have been enabled to resist temptation and keep my good resolutions."

"I never dreamed there was such power in a few kind words before," exclaimed the lady, "and surely ever after this I shall take more pains to speak them to all the sad and suffering ones I meet in the walks of life."-From "Sunny Faces."

DO YOU ALWAYS PRAY FOR YOUR FATHER?

Ir was a cold November night. School had closed, and a mile's brisk walk had brought ma home. Father had not returned from work, and mother was employed in preparing supper. I seated myself upon the hearth, and musing, gazed intently at the fire. Strange forms of houses, churches, trees, and flowers appeared in the glowing embers. These gave place to others still more strange, for I imagined I could see Shadrach and his friends in the burning fiery furnace; Daniel in the lion's den; the sons of Jacob casting their brother Joseph into the pit; and the poor negra boy whom Captain Cooley tied to the mast of his ship till his hands and feet were so frozen that they had to be cut off. But these soon gave place to human faces, and I saw one with frowning brow, compressed lips, and angry court mance, It was my father's. As it faded away, I sently called-

"Mother, mother, is father a drunkard?" In an instant all was still. Not a dish wa heard upon the table nor a footfall on the floor. Again I called—

" Mother, mother! is father a drunkard?" She pressed me to her throbbing heart, an wept in the bitterness of her soul, and then said-"My son, always love and pray for your father

But what made you ask me such a question?" I told her that "I had been reading that day in the spelling-book the History of the Drunkard -how poor he would become, and how he would abuse his wife and children. And then I saw face in the fire just like my father's. Then yo know how cross he is to you sometimes; then how foolish. And I have no hat, my shoes are poor and my clothes are ragged. And then he alway keeps his bottle in the chest, and I think he is drunkard."

Again she wept over me, and repeated-"You must love your father, and always pray

"But," I enquired, "must I always live with She replied, " No, my son, I shall soon die, and and always love and pray for your father."

When six years old, I had another home. long-lived popularity lay. Soon my mother went to her rest; but my father but little sunshine in the world; but dark, sad selfishness-not inactivity-but usefulness, is comstory about kind words. A good lady, living in hours were often cheered by the seeming presence one of our large cities, was passing a drinking of my mother's face; and it always seemed to say, words, if not in heart. grave; and the voice that charmed my childhood To arrive, 50 brls Paraffine OIL, of a superior quality said to my soul, " Always love and pray for your father." In that lone chamber I knelt before my father's God, and wrestled alone with the "angel of the covenant," till I laid the burden of my soul on the arm of Jesus, with the assurance that my prayer was heard. When next I heard from my for yourselves, For sale by J. F. SECORD, King Square. father, his faltering feet had been directed to the cross. A new heart had been given him, and the Non-Explosive BURNING FLUID, which I also expect to power of sinful habit was broken forever. He died | sell von. in hope at the age of eighty-five.

When I see the husband and father indulging in the daily use of intoxicating drinks, I ask, " Is it quite certain that the heart of the wife of his bosom and the mother of his children is not convulsed by the artless inquiry, 'Is not father a drunkard ? "

When I see the hapless child suffering cruelty, disgrace, and misery, from the intemperance of a father, I ask, "Has he heard his mother say, 'My child, always love and pray for your father?"-Christian Press.

LICENSE LAWS.

(From an old cop. of the Boston Mercantile Journal, republished by request.)

For so much gold we license thee-So say our laws - "a draught to sell That bows the strong, enslaves the free, And opens wide the gates of hell; For public good requires that some (Since many die) should live by RUM."

Ye civic Fathers! while the foes Of this Destroyer seize their swords, And Heaven's own hail is in the blows They're dealing,-will YE cut the cords That round the folling flend they draw, And o'er him hold your shield of Law?

And will you give to man a bill Divorcing him from Heaven's high sway! And while God says: "Thou shalt not kill," Say ye: "But yet for gold, ye may!" Compare the body with the soul !-Compare the bullet with the bowl!!

In which is felt the fiercer blast Of the destroying angel's breath; Which binds the victim the more fast,-Which kills him with the deadlier death? Will ye the felon fox restrain, And yet take off the tiger's chain!

The living to the rotten dead The God-contemning Tuscan* tied! Till, by the way, or on his bed, The poor corpse carrier dropped and died! Lashed hand to hand, and face to face, In fatal and in loathed embrace!

Less cutting, think ye, is the thong That to a breathing corpse for life Lashes in torture, loathed and long, The drunkard's child, the drunkard's wife? To clasp that clay-to breathe that breath, And no escape !- O, that is death.

Are ye not Fathers? When your sons Look to you for their daily bread, Dare ye in mockery load with stones The table that for them ye spread? How can ye hope your sons will live, If ye for fish a serpent give?

THE GOLDEN CHAIN.—A mother's love is golden chain, which nature binds round the hearts of her children, although the enemies of God, and wanderings. Who, that has felt it, does not also feel that the greatest blessing here, short of sealing grace, is the presence and recollection of a mother's counsels and a mother's prayers? Would that every mother of our land were holy, and that every child of such a mother could realize the blessing and improve it!

REV. ROBERT HALL.—It is said that Rev. Robert Hall, in the earlier part of his ministry, was easily irritated; but if he lost his temper he was deeply humbled, and would often acknowledge himself to blame. On one of these occasions, when a discussion had become warm, he suddenly closed the debate, quitted his seat, and retiring to a remote part of the room, was overheard, by a lady who was just entering, to ejaculate, with deep feeling, "Lamb of God, Lamb of God, calm my perturbed
