The betroth of the Prince of Wales to the Princess of the Belgians, on the 9th ultimo. This statement, so far as it implies the sealing of the engagement, by a formal ceremonial of betrothal, rests on the authority of a Belgian provincial journal, and, therefore, wants confirmation. But the Times announces in semi-official form, that the marriage has been "privately settled"—that it is one "based entirely pon mutual affection, and upon the personal merits of the young Princess"-and "that it is in no way connected with political considerations." So much "The late Prince Consort," our contemporary adds, "whose sole object was the welfare and happiness of desirable marriage. The emancipation proclamation of President Lincoln is a fruitful source of discord in the North. Its policy is severely censured by the Democratic Press: t has besides alienated the sympathies of the Unionists in the Border States. Instead, therefore, of strengthening the North it has weakened it, and it has increased the animosity of the South ten-fold. The Confederate Congress is greatly excited by it. It is regarded by the members as a violation of the usages of civilized warfare, inviting stroctous servile war, worthy the execration of mankind, and to be counteracted by severe retaliatory measures. The Richmond Whig regards the proclamation as destroying all terms between the contending parties, rendering next campaign tremendous both in extent and character. Africa is a continent of the Future. It is impossible to recite its capabilities. It is pre-eminently a cotton country, for here the plant is perennial, and requires little of that heart-breaking toil necessary where it is an exotic; no frosts endanger the crops, and the best qualities yield largely. Slave-hunting is the greatest draw-back known-it depopulates the country, so that labour becomes dead in proportion to its prevalence. The Portuguese possessions on the Zambezi are valueless because all labor is deported to Bourbon, the subjects of his most Frightful Majesty of Lisbon having performed the part of the boy of the Goose with the Golden Egg.

In addition to the missions of the English Universities two other missions in this region are contemplated. Healthy localities can be secured on the highlands, which rise on our East to a hieght of some 7,000 or 8,000 feet above the sea. I am, &c., DAVID LIVINGSTON.

RESOURCES OF AFRICA.—These consist of cotton, palm oil, ground nuts, etc. Africa is capable of furnishing all kinds of tropical produce. Mr. Barley states that it is a great fact, that Western Africa can supply cotton equal in quality to that on which England has been hitherto dependent from America. The late Consul Campbell was an advocate of industrial agency as a great regenerator of Africa. He induced several chiefs to grow cotton. One grew it to such an extent as to be able to export some to England, on his own account. The Egba & Yoruba country could furnish vast supplies of cotton. The people have expressed a desire to enter into commercial relations with England for the supply of palm oil and cotton, but the great difficulty is in the barba-rous conduct of the King of Dahomey. Samples of cotton, sent to Manchester, England, have been proper lb. in the market. The whole continent of Africa abounds in cotton and palm oil.
