to be populated thickly upon both sides, while nearly all its remaining length are mere surveyors' lines over which people may walk back and forth without any consciousness of their presence. No part of this line can be made any more difficult to pass by writing it down on paper or parchment as a national boundary.

The fact of separation, if it comes, gives up on the part of the sectional obligations upon the seceding section of the fugitive slave clause, along with all other constitutional obligations upon the section seceded from, while I should expect no treaty stipulation would ever be made to take its place.

But there is another difficulty. The great interior region bounded east by the Alleghanies, north by the British dominions, west by the Rocky Mountains, and south by the line along which the culture of cotton meets, and which includes part of Virginia, part of Tennessee, all of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, and the territories of Dacotah, Nebraska, and part of Colerado, has above ten millions of people, and will have fifty millions within fifty years, if not prevented by any political folly or mistake. It contains more than one third of the country owned by the United States-certainly more than one million of square miles. Once half as populous as Massachusetts already is, it would have more than seventy-five millions of people. A glance at the map shows that, territorially speaking, it is the great body of the Republic. The other parts are but marginal borders

The magnificent region sloping west from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific being the deepest, and also the richest, in developed resources, in the production of provisions, grains, grasses, and all which proceed from them. ARTICLE-Congress may appropriate money and otherwise provide for colonizing free colored persons, with their own consent, at any place or places without the United States.

I beg indulgence to discuss these proposed articles at some length. Without slavery the rebellion never could have existed, without slavery it could not continue among the friends of the Union. There is great diversity of sentiment and of policy in regard would abolish it suddenly, and without compensation. he calls on the North to stop making war on th Some would abolish it gradually, and with compen- South. This is all, we ask, or have ever asked. In sation. Some would remove the freed people from us, and some would retain them with us, and there the war, the cry of the South was always "Let u are yet other minor diversities. Because of these diversities we waste much strength by struggles among ourselves. By mutual concessions we should harmonize and act together. This would be a compromise among the friends and not with the enemies of the Union. The articles are intended to embody a plan of such mutual concessions.

If the plan shall be adopted, it is assumed that emancipation will follow at least in several of the states. As to the first article the main points are :--1st, the emancipation; 2d, the length of time consum- thirty-nine Sioux Indians. mating (thirty-seven years); and 3d, the compensation.

advocates of perpetual slavery, but the length of time ing for their removal. should greatly mitigate their dissatisfaction. The time spares both races from the evils of sudden derangements, in fact from the necessity of any derangement. While most of those whose habitual course of thought will be disturbed by the measure will have passed away before its consummation. They will never see it. Another class will hail the prospect of emancipation, but will deprecate the length of time. They will feel that it gives too little to the now living slaves. But it really gives them much. It saves them from the vagrant destitution which must largely attend immediate emancipation in localities where their number are very great, and it gives the inspiriting houses on river bank at 6 o'clock. assurance that their posterity shall be free forever.

The plan leaves to each State choosing to act under it, to abolish slavery now, or at the end of the century, or at any intermediate time, or by degrees, extending over the whole or any part of the period, and it obliges no two States to proceed alike: it also provides for compensation, and generally the mode of making it. This, it would seem, must further mitigate the dissatisfaction of those who favor perpetual slavery, and especially of those who are to receive compensation. Doubtless some of those who are to pay, and not to receive, will object; yet that the measure is both just and economical, is certain.

The liberation of the slaves is the destruction of property—property acquired by descent or by pur-hase, the same as any other property. It is no less true for having been often said, that the people of the South are no more responsible for the original introduction of this property than are the people of the North; and when it is remembered how unhesita- born in 1844, and is only in her eighteenth year. tingly we all of us use cottons, and share the profits | She is the eldest daughfer of Christian, Prince of Denof dealing in them, it may not be quite safe to say mark, and granddaughter of the Duke of Schleswig, that the South has been more responsible than the Holstein, Sonderburg, Gluksburg, the heir of the North for its continuance. > THE FUTURE OF THE EMANCIPATED SLAVES. The plan consisting of these articles is recommended not but that a restoration of the national authority would be accepted without its adoption; nor will the war, now proceeding under the proclamation of Sept. 22, 1862, be stayed, because of the recommendation of this plan. Its timely adoption, I doubt not, would bring restoration, and thereby stay both. And not withstanding this plan, the recommendation that Congress provide by law for compensating any State which may adopt emancipation before this plan shall have been acted upon, is hereby earnestly renewed. Such would only be an advance part of the plan, and, the same arguments apply to both.

This plan is recommended as a means not in exclusion of, but additional to, all others for restoring and preserving the national authority throughout the Union. The subject is presented exclusively in it | economical aspect. The plan would I am confident. secure peace more speedily than can be done by force alone. While it would cost less, considering thamounts and manner of payment and times of pay ment. And the amounts would be easier paid that will be the additional cost of the war if we rely solely upon force. It is most likely, very likely, that i would cost no blood at all. The plan is proposed a a permanent constitutional law. It cannot become such without the concurrence of, first, two-thirds o Congress, and afterwards three-fourths of the States The requisite three-fourths of the States will neces sarily include several of the slave States. Their con currence, if obtained, will give assurance of their severally adopting emancipation at no distant day, upon the new constitutional terms. The Princess Alexandra will be warmly welcomed in this country, and the best wish of millions for her, the best prayer connected with temporal matters in her behalf, is that she may be only Princess of Wales for very many years. Even in that position the Princess may exercise a great influence on society. From a lady so young it would be affectation to anticipate more than a desire to learn the habits and manners of the nation with whom she will be so intimately connected, and in whose history she will necessarily have an important part. In all ordinary affairs there is little to learn. Scandinavian society closely resembles that of this country, and is, indeed, modelled almost insensibly on our manner of life.
